TAM O'SHANTER GOLF CARNIVAL OF THE YEAR

Some Super-Duper Golfing Seen in Circus-Like Event That Attracts Huge Crowd

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, July 23 — (AP) — The super-duper golfing triple-header at Tam O'Shanter is on the way to being a fabulous success.

The spectacle is attracting the biggest assemblage of spectators in the history of the game, and also figures to profit in the greatest war-stamp selling drive credited to any sport.

To-date more than $400,000 in War Bonds have been sold, with three more days to go. The goal is $1,000,000 in bonds and $100,000 in War Stamps.

Admission to this amazing carnival is the purchase of a stamp which the purchaser retains. The goal is 100,000 stamps or 75,000 to 100,000.

The circus-like event is golf on a tremendous scale. It is three tournaments in one, hailing a full week, where the best amateurs, professional and women players will perform.

The extravaganza opens golf—not commercialized, a very dignified sport for dignified people—to the multitudes. It is a gorgeous setup with shirt-sleeved thousands watching the world's greatest golfers swinging from 37 states.

Less than 30 per cent. are true golf fans. The rest are pop-eyed common guys and gals looking for a celebrity and peek at Betty Bond, Betty Hicks, Byron Nelson, Wilford White, Ralph Guldahl, Walter Hagen and the other big shots of the links.

It's a combination of Coney Island, Ringling Brothers Barnum and the World's Fair, rolled into one. This is Tam O'Shanter.

Bristols Move Up Notch In City Softball Race Downing Marines 8-7 in Final Game

Come From Behind to Score Winning Run in Ninth Frame, Meet the "Flyers" in Next Round

HARRIS RALLIES

It's Bristol "Bombers" and No. 1 T.N.T. "Flyers" for the Belleville and district softball diml-finals for 1943. This all came about at the Fair Grounds last night when the "Bombers" scored a ninth inning 8 to 7 victory over the SACO "Marines" in a final group series playdown, thus eliminating the "Marines" for the current season.

Despite the closeness of the score last night's game was the loosest played in the four-game series, which was due to the wet grounds. The Bristol "Bombers" scored on the Fair Grounds in a best-in-three series on Monday night.

"Marines" Score First

The "Marines" took a commanding lead with three runs in the initial frame and were never headed until the "Bombers" scored their winning run in the last inning. Jamieson and Whalen all scored for the "Marines" in the first run subsequent hits by Jamieson and Hook. The "Marines" added one run to each of the three following frames, but from the fourth to the ninth could only score once as Connie Harris and the "Bombers" tightened up and halted the "Marines" attack.

The "Bombers" got one in the first and another in the second. Then they climbed back into the game once in the fourth to tally 6 to 5. J. Tomaso and Harris scored the only two hits registered off Jim Hunter during the rally, but an error and two fielders' choices helped the "Bombers" back into the picture. The "Bombers" got single runs in the fifth and seventh, the latter run knotting the score for the "Marines" scored their last run in the sixth. All set the stage for the "Bombers" won the decision with a ninth Brooklyn, 2.

Harris Rallies

Harris, although unsteady at the start, settled away to blank the "Marines" in the last three frames during which he retired the final nine batters to face him. As a matter of fact the losers only scored one run off Harris after the fourth. He struck out six and walked five, while Jim Hunter whiffed seven and failed to walk a single Bomber via the four ball route.

The batting was evenly divided with each nine counting an even dozen base hits, but the "Bombers" counted two for extra bases, Sager's fifth inning triple and Kiser's double. Jim Hunter helped his own cause with two hits, while Jack Hook had three for five, but the "Marines" were handcuffed in the last five frames when hits might have resulted in runs.

GOLF TOURNAMENT? YES, THERE IS ONE NOW PLAYING

War has caused cancellation of most of the big golf tournaments but there is one now being played. It is the $11,300 all-American tourney at the Tam O'Shanter golf course in Chicago, July 19-25. More than 40 professionals are lined up for the event, several of them in the services. Among those playing are Byron Nelson of Toledo; Jimmy Demaret of Detroit; Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich.; Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., and Sam Snead, Virginia golfer.

Bears, Royals Win Only 'Int.' Games Played

A couple of healthy homers, mixed with effective pitching, gave Brewer Bears and Montreal Royals victories in the International League last night.

Larry Rosenthal whacked a 430-foot round tripper for the Bears with two on in the first inning to spark Newark to a 4-0 shutout over Syracuse behind Joe Page's three-hit pitching.

Gil Brack, former major leaguer, slammed a four-baser for the Royals with one on in the first inning to get the Canadians away to a fast start against Buffalo and coast to an 8-3 triumph. Given a 7-0 lead by the fifth, Al Sherer had little trouble in beating the Bisons. He allowed only seven hits, two of them by Rookie Johnny Berardino, but had the 12-hit Montreal attack with three safeties in four trips to the plate.

Page was in rare form for the Bears, fanning the first Syracuse runner reached third.

Rochester Red Wings clubbed Baltimore and Jersey City was postponed. Toronto and Rochester had an open date.

Cheap Meal

They were a sly pair, the cashier and the waitress. One day, however, they were fooled. Another man called for his bill and upon receiving it, discovered to his horror that he had been charged a shilling too much.

"How does this come about?" he asked, looking angrily at the waitress.

"Well, you see, sir," she replied, "the cashier bet me half a crown that you wouldn't see it and I bet him you would.

With a smile, the customer wrote something on the back of the bill, folded it and said: "Take that to the cashier."

She did so, and on opening it he saw, scrawled in pencil: "I'll bet five pounds I shall not be here when you get back."

And he wasn't.

There is a new regulation at no cost whatsoever....Why not invite the Women's Institute (WI) right back for another exhibition of softball? The girls in Ajax have the right idea. I decided bit here Tuesday evening.... It was the night I was supposed to hang out the S.R.O. sign at the Nurse Arena, match William Tell "Apple" Bite vs. Lucrezia Borgia "Whipper Billie" Watson, the current British Empire champion. It is only drawback here would fall to the line. Both ladies are experienced sides; as both men are top favorites to be believed. As it was the match would see a wrestling classic for a change....Maybe the Ajax Softball League don't realize it, but there's an outside chance that the Services, in should fill the Fair Grounds grandstand, for the Ajax girls are playing Civic Holiday....We refer to FO Buff Hendrick and Corporal Lucas over at the Trenton R.C.A.F. mail station....Here's a real battle of softballers where sports background alone would command a goodly following....There's Wally Stanowski vs. Eddie Bush, Roy Conacher, Mike Wycherley, Gordie Drillon and several other former N.H.L. stars, who play a strong game of softball....Why not an exhibition game between these players from the Trenton R.C.A.F. and an all-star team from our city league for Civic Holiday?....Seriously we undertstand the Deacon A.C. is trying to line up Vickie Gallant, the R.C.A.F. lassie who pitched the International "Bombers" to victory here Tuesday night....With Vicki on the lineup and the Deacons playing the class of ball they are capable of, there would be a pennant threat over night, especially with Pauline Schrieder to team up with Miss Miller.

Bristol are in.

In true Merrivell fashion the Bristol "Bombers" came from behind with a ninth inning run to beat the SACO "Marines" 8 to 7 and eliminate the Marines from the City Softball picture. The "Bombers" now meet the No. 1 T.N.T. "Flyers" in the league semi-finals commencing Monday.

CASUAL COMMENT by R.J.C.

The final game of the Bomber-Marine series was the poorest of the season, and that's saying a mouthful. Connie Harris hurling for the winners and after a shaky start settled away to blank the Marines in the last three frames when only nine batters faced him. As a matter of fact the Marines only scored one run off Harris in the last five stanzas, while the "Bombers" were sharpening their batting eye and pulling up until they forged to the front with a ninth inning rally. Jim Hunter hurled for the Marines and was touched for an even dozen hits, including a three-base blow by Sager and a double by Kiser.

Winner of the Kentucky Derby since last spring, the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, Count Fleet has been temporarily retired and may not be seen in action again until the big event all around in the fall, it was reliably stated last night.

The big moneymaker of this years racing classics is also liable to winning the Belmont Stakes by 30 lengths over the route and has done nothing more than gallop during the past 30 days. Denial was made that Count Fleet was being retired because of the injury and the explanation was given that he would take until September to get him back in good shape. The Hertz hurricane had run up $234,055 earnings this year and he looked good enough to overhaul the all-time season's record of $306,275 by Gallant Fox in 1930.

Winner of the Vesina Trophy while playing with Detroit Red Wings, Stanley Mosdell holders last season, Johnny Mowers of Niagara Falls, Ontario, is now with the RCAF and will report for aircrew training Aug. 22. The Vesina award is for the goaltender rated the most valuable during a season.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Horse Sense Bridge

—LESSON NO. 121

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bachelors have a good excuse for staying single. They can get all the quarreling they want by playing bridge. And they do not have to carry it long into the night.

There is nothing wrong with the game. So, why so many arguments? It must be what players learn. Or the way they learn it. Or the way experts teach it.

Last week this column ended a series of lessons on first round leads: the opening bidder and immediate responder. Let me remind you of the prominent basic rules in that series.

An opening bid of one: In no-trump shows five high cards, two sure tricks, no biddable suit; in a bid suit shows five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit.

Response: Pass with not more than two tricks; bid with more than two tricks and two high cards; one-jump with tricks enough for a game if you have two sure tricks.

Bids follow the order of choice in T-A-K-E: takeout; first; assist; second; no-trump, last. A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round.

A one-jump is forcing to game.

South and north have these hands:

SOUTH
♠K 6
♥A Q 3 2
♦J 9 7 2
♣A 10 5

NORTH
♣K 7 4 2

South starts with an opening bid of one heart. He has just enough for that bid. But no more. Not a single, solitary thing more.

North responds with one spade, a takeout to a new suit. That's forcing for one round. South must bid again. Not any. Must.

What should south do next? You can't have an opinion deciding that with any hand when you learn second round bids. I start on them tomorrow.

Meantime, paste the main basic rules on your eyeglass. Stick to them. Keep your yap shut when in doubt. Smile "I'm sorry" when you are criticised. Compliment your partner. And you can palm yourself off as an expert to any group of strangers.

AT THE CAPITOL

"George Washington Slept Here"

Hilarity hit a new high last night when Warner Bros.' latest laugh hit, "George Washington Slept Here," opened at the Capitol Theatre. Jack Benny's antics kept the audience in a constant state of laughter, and proved, beyond all doubt, that his work before the camera becomes more polished with each successive production.

In the feminine lead is the beautiful Ann Sheridan, who also proved her ability to handle comedy in "The Man Who Came To Dinner".

"Prairie Gunsmoke"

With Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter sharing the leading roles in Columbia's "Prairie Gunsmoke", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, action and excitement have combined to cheer about. Happily placing the emphasis on action, Director Lesley Selander keeps the film moving across the screen at a thrilling clip pace with Elliott and Elliott both coming in for an equal share of the hard riding and quick-shooting that has made them so famous.

A colored cartoon and Zane Grey's "King of the Mounties" complete a splendid program for the whole family.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Hangmen Also Die"

For the first time since the war began Hollywood has enlisted the aid of the underground. Its particular, Arnold Pressburger and Fritz Lang, in "Hangmen Also Die," a thrilling drama revolving around the hunt for the assassin of Heydrich, the Hangman, Nazi protector in Czechoslavia, now at the McCarthy Theatre, have collaborated with the Czecho Underground in that order to give their picture the authentic verisimilitude of history in the actual process of being made.

This is the fact for two reasons: First, the gladly accorded co-operation of the Czechoslovakian Legation in Washington second the collaboration of the Czech government-in-exile in London, which possesses a vast reservoir of secret documents and records all of which were made available to Fritz Lang and John Wexley, co-authors of the script.

Now comes the amazing coincidence. Lang and Wexley have in their story a certain character, a Nazi informer, Alois Gruber, named Alois Gruber. While the picture was still in progress in London, the United Press carried a wire story that told of the "elimination" by the Czech Underground of a Gestapo official named Alois Gruber.

Pity Poor Dad In After-War Woman's World

New York Writer Warns Mere Male Things Will Never be the Same Again and Mother Will Thrive on it.

(By ADELAIDE KERR)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

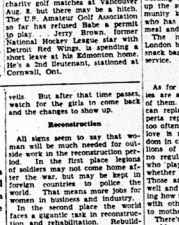
New York (CP) — What will women do after the war is over? Are they going to stick to riveters' gloves and uniforms — or will they go back to aprons, kids and—can you find his slippers warming once more on the hearth—or will he have to learn how a can-opener works?

A lot of questions like that are keeping people up nights.

Well here is my personal opinion, for whatever it may be worth. Things will never be the same again.

The changes won't show immediately, of course. When soldiers come home seeking jobs and industry switches back to peacetime production, women will drop riveters' helmets and put on wedding tiun. But after that time passes, watch for the girls to come back and the changes to show.

Reconstruction



All signs seem to say that woman will be much needed for outside work in the reconstruction period. In the first place legions of soldiers may not come home after the war, but may be kept in foreign countries to police the world. That means more jobs for women in business and industry.

In the second place the world faces a gigantic task in reconstruction and rehabilitation. Rebuilding demolished countries, feeding starved peoples, re-establishing agriculture, industry, transportation and trade are a few of the jobs. That means work for millions more.

It looks as though the need for women's services would be great. Some of them may even have to go abroad where the changes will be. But a lot of them will want to. Those who have tasted freedom, those who were used to working like adults without pay! The advantages of working on salary; better education for the children, an extra pair of stockings, a little treat now and then without having to filter it through the family budget.

So thousands will vote for the job. If mother and her daughter are both going to work outside the home conditions will be done about the tasks they used to 'do. Changes that are already being taken into consideration by industry, social welfare and educa-

Toronto, July 22—(CP) — Brian Timmis appointed to coach Hamilton Wildcats in Ontario Rugby Football Union . . .

Just a headline in a newspaper, worth 50 words or so to news agencies if they carried it at all. But worth much more to many football men, Dave Sprague, for instance.

Some of the details are vague but Dave remembers the essentials well. One particular afternoon in 1930 stands out. Hamilton Tigers, their proud line punctured by injuries, face Toronto Balmy Beach in the Eastern Canada finals. Weakened by a Western Canada series which required them to play seven games in 14 days (all victories), Tigers have only 13 men in uniform. Brian Timmis is among both the knee. Every time he falls down his team-mates drag him to his feet.

"Man, that was some game," Sprague recalls.

Sprague and Timmis were offensive backfield and defensive anchors of that club, one of the greatest in the era of two-backs-and-six football. An era which produced, among many other, Hamilton (Huck) Welch, Cap Frear, Glen Small, Ray Boadway, Ted Reeve. So now Timmis is to coach Wildcats. Sprague is located in Ottawa, an even-money bet to coach Combines in the O.R.P.U. If the games are dull this season, Dave and Brian should have plenty to talk about.

Incidentally:

George (Edmonton Journal) Hutchinson says it is doubtful if "a more efficient football statistician" could be found the length and breadth of the country than Mrs. Margaret McCallion, official scorer for the Edmonton Football Club through 315 games. Mrs. McCallion also kept batting, fielding and pitching records . . . A different angle is revealed in Bobbie (Toronto Globe and Mail) Rosenfeld's data that the United States sports writer who assigned his wife to cover a southern football game because "all the Missus' lead paragraph: "I covered the contest for the Associated Press. I'm convinced me he was 'snowed under' by the Dixie boys at three times, but it was never snow." . . . 'Vets' Send 30,000 Cigarettes Overseas In One Shipment

A shipment of 30,000 cigarettes was sent overseas to Belleville and district boys serving in the armed services by the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, unit 201, fag fund this week. Secretary James Lazenby announced today that the half-million mark of cigarettes to be sent overseas by the "Veterans" has been long since passed. This week's shipment brought the total to 535,200 cigarettes sent since the fund was first started. The cost of the provision of these fags has been $1,794. Secretary Lazenby revealed.

In a recent letter from overseas Lieut. George Laughlin wrote to say the cigarettes received from the Army and Navy Veterans last month arrived at the most opportune time. "Most of the boys were a little short at the time and appreciated the shipment and I can assure you they extend their thanks for every Canadian cigarette they can get," wrote Lieut. Laughlin as he urged the continuance of such projects.

The list of Belleville and district lads overseas sent individual packages of 200 cigarettes each this week through the Army and Navy Vets. fag fund were:

CHAPTER 17

"A defence plant! Toby? I don't believe it! He could no more do that than you could be a chambermaid." She looked out the window and said, "Toby is very neat. He's European. He's like my old friends I left over there."

"Where are they now? Your old friends, I mean."

Clare shrugged. "Dead or imbued with militarism or in some small American town and miserable. Oh, but we'll go back again. When this beastly war is over we're going back again."

"Then you are not glad to be home?"

Clare drew up her shoulders. "We were driven out of France like refugees and packed on a ship. Steerage couldn't have been more worse. I thought it might be fun to come home for a while, but when I came and saw how different it is, how different everyone is. The only person who is the same is Toby. She smiled. "This is rather a dormitory-like that, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is rather," Meegan said quietly. She arose and went to the dresser and picked up her hair brush. "I hate to be rude and go but I have a job I have to be going to shortly. I take ten children to sing beach every morning and afternoon. That's one of the things I've done for myself."

Clare tilted her head and laughed. "How appalling."

"You can't—you've never . . . never had a child, Clare."

She seemed to sit very still. "No. I can't have a child. It's too bad. Fayne would adore it. We've thought of adopting one."

Meegan looked through the mirror. She said pleasantly, "Then that's the only thing you haven't done for yourself you should do."

"Perhaps. I've wondered if it's worth the risk." She nodded, her eyes narrowing again when she said slowly, "Yes, that is the one thing I haven't done for myself. I'm done everything else, haven't I? What time is your appointment? May I drop you off?"

"I can't leave until Toby brings the car home. Shall we go downstairs on the porch and wait for him?"

They were on the porch when Toby came, bringing his mother with him. Meegan stood still, seeing her mother in Clare with outstretched hands and her happiest smile and like her, Clare was charming, making Elinor McLean feel that she was the devoted object of her visit and that she was delighted to see her again. Their words flowed warmly while Toby stood apart looking at Clare with a curious expression; a mixture of admiration and tenderness.

But when Clare turned to him, her look was one of challenging possessiveness and assertion. Clare had probably looked at many men like that any many men had loved her. Fayne loved her. Yet there was nothing about Clare that suggested, as it invariably did with women, her married state. Women loved wear a look of having been loved. Clare did not have that look. She looked as if she belonged to no one except herself and accounted to no one except herself. She had always looked like that, as if no barriers existed for her and nothing was impossible to her. Was it a philosophy Meegan wondered?

"It's good to see you back," Toby said.

"I'm very glad to be back, Toby."

"How are you feeling?"

"Splendid."

Elinor McLean said. "You're not going, Clare? Of course you are not going, dear. You're coming in to have tea with Toby and me."

When Meegan took the keys from Toby, she thought, the silver tea service, Hazel's tarnished since Erica's visit. A few minutes later she turned back to look at them. Clare and Toby were walking together and Toby's shoulder was drooping more than usual. Elinor McLean walked a little before them, her innocent face smiling in anticipation of tea with her boy loved son and the woman who always came back. . .

A midnight call from Paul in Texas precipitated an unexpected trip to Washington for Meegan. Granted a short leave in order to see his attorney there about an estate recently left him (someone, it seemed to Meegan, was always dying and leaving him an estate) he would not have time to visit the island and had suggested that she meet him in Washington for luncheon. Since his parents were spending the summer on their farm in Virginia, he would go to see them directly he left Meegan.

She realized how isolated she had been and how long it had been since she had left the island when she found herself dressing for the occasion with particular care and anticipation for the luncheon. She chose a sheer navy frock with a frilly white jabot and an enormous little navy straw hat that sat back from the high waves of her hair. She left the island in good spirits but her thoughts began to play a record with a broken needle and stayed again and again.

Away from the island, seeing strange faces on the crowded day coach, she realized how her imagination had been playing her false. Was it not true that the dread she had felt of Paul's sexuality and their feelings of evil and impending disaster were things of her mind? The only concrete happenings were the tale of Mary, the caddie, and the obvious fact that Clare and Toby were involved in an emotional struggle that had reached a climax the night before Clare had gone away. It was only a thing of her mind also that Clare had returned, not looking as if she had been a guest at a wedding but rather as if she had been sleeping and resting in a quiet place. Perhaps, Meegan thought, her fears were mystic emerging from her own depraved mind. Perhaps they came from jealousy and envy of the woman who had married Fayne. Perhaps her shrinking from Clare was the shrinking of the little-minded from the wide have more room to grow from those who moved untouched and untroubled on the periphery of a generous world. The train shuddered and stopped.

There was, as always, so festive an air about the lobby of that particular Washington hotel she was told that Paul was late. When she saw a young woman and young man meet and embrace with the kind of kind of joy that showed how long it had been since she had seen anyone with a friendly or pressed joy. She thought, I have never really been in love with anyone except Fayne and that is all in my mind and imagination, too. Why can't I meet someone and fall in love with him as other girls do and say it and show it and live it?

When she saw Paul, thinner than he had been, his thick stubborn sandy hair close-cropped, his grin amiable, she was overcome by that she coul' not love him, that her emotions centered with the uncommon sense, Paul would be kind to her for the rest of her life and he could so provide for her mother that Elinor McLean would never have to worry about her next permanent wave or the failure of her cooking.

"I'm sorry I'm late," he said. Characteristically Paul, Meegan thought with a smile. He would never say he was happy to see her or that she looked nice.

"It's all right, really. I've had fun looking at the people."

He grinned again because to Paul it was incredible that anyone could have fun but by looking at strange people.

At the table she asked about his air training and received only meagre answers. With him one always had to prod to keep the conversation going and then his responses were so general they were never satisfactory. The schedule was plenty tough, he said, the lectures at the school were swell, the food wasn't bad and the life was strictly Spartan. How was everything on the island? Meegan said all right and it was an answer that seemed to satisfy him.

Turning the cocktail glass around and around in his hand he said, "A lot of people are getting married now. The war and . . ."

"A lot of people are getting married who shouldn't."

"Yes, maybe you're right but it may be now or never."

She looked up and smiled, "Are you, by any chance, proposing to me, Paul?"

"Well, I'd sort of like to know you were being taken care of."

"You're sweet to think that and there are times when I want terribly to be taken care of. Sometimes the most I want is for someone to be kind to me and think and for me to be kind to him. That's like wanting to sleep your life away. It isn't really love. I'm sure of that. I'm sorry, but I can't marry you because I'd like you too much to love you too little."

"That's okay. When you're older, you'll feel differently."

"You think I'm suffering from romantic immaturity?"

He grinned. "Something like that. Girls have funny ideas. Some do, at least. The others just want to get married."

She laughed. "As if a mere ceremony made the joining of two people a perfect thing. But I am glad to see you and" her eyes swept over the room filled with the voices of attractive people. "I'm glad to be here. I like the feeling of being anonymous, just one other person having luncheon in Washington today. It stimulated me. You see, I'm a writer with funny ideas."

Goebbels Offers Weak Arguments On War Situation

London, July 23 — (CP) — Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told the German people in his weekly article in Das Reich that "there is nothing to excite the battle" but admitted that although there may be reverses "here and there" he can ask the Germans "can look to future developments in the East as well as in the South with calm and composure."

The Goebbels article, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, claimed the Allies "really had not scored any large-scale victories and promising it will not score any during the future course of the war."

The Nazi propaganda chief claimed that in contrast to German operations in Russia in the past two summers, which he said were aimed at gaining territory, this year's operations were directed toward "exhausting the Russians."

Goebbels told the Germans the Allies "had succeeded in gaining ground and

Glass, The New Wonder Material of the Scientists

Science seems to be bursting its bonds in every direction. Now some scientists are talking about the Age of Glass. It seems that glass is now being used to make everything from textiles to building bricks and from plumbing to life preservers. Here's the story.

(By D. H. KILLEFER, in the Saturday Evening Post)

Have you heard about the new truck tires. They bounce along over sharp stones yet don't blow out —because imbedded in the rubber are cords of glass.

Have you seen the new draperies in many stores and homes? They look like silk. But apply a lighted match to a ravelled thread. It won't burn because it, too, is glass.

Not the sort of glass you have known, of course, that was hard, fragile, brittle. Modern glass-makers are turning out products that upset all such notions about glass, and therein lies a dramatic story of how science is being put to work to make life more healthful and more enjoyable for an increasing number of people.

One important company regularly "melts" as many as 209 kinds of glass, each differing a little from the others. From them come some 25,000 different manufactured items, ranging from tiny jewels for instrument bearings to building blocks.

Ingenious mechanics have devised intricate machines to perform precisely the operations of the blower and to repeat them swiftly and tirelessly. Glass bulbs for electric lamps used to be blown by hand and that was good enough when only hundreds of such bulbs were needed. Now intricate automatic machines consuming small rivers of molten glass perform each of the requisite steps swiftly and precisely and spew out complete bulbs as fast that the eye cannot follow them.

Other machines mould bottles with comparable speed by blowing air into molten glass to force it to conform to a surrounding mould.

Still others pour and press glass into moulds to from solid objects. Other huge machines draw window glass in continuous sheets from pots of glass and still others cast great slabs that are later polished to plate glass.

These improved methods and devices for processing glass and new chemical discoveries have resulted in what, not without reason, has been called the Age of Glass.

Glass textiles are decorative and possess the vital advantage of being quite non-inflammable in draperies for places of public assembly.

Neckties of glass cloth are quite as satisfactory as silk and will not stain. Garments can be made of glass fibres that contain no "itchiness." That new word designates glass fibres large enough to retain some brittleness, and hence likely to break into tiny bits that penetrate the skin and cause itching. Itchiness are three ten-thousandths of an inch in diameter or larger. With all the fibres in the fabric smaller than itchiness, it may system be that garments may some day be made of glass.

Tiny fibres retain the electrical insulating properties of glass itself and hence can replace silk or cotton insulation on wires, especially in motors where ordinary insulation will char at temperatures sometimes reached by overloading.

Heat insulating for houses, refrigerators, railway passenger and freight cars, ships, steam pipsing, and many other purposes utilize similar glass fibres, which are efficient and at the same time impervious to mildew and vermin and completely non-inflammable. Even asbestos, now difficult to obtain, may give way to glass.

Glass fibres are now used to handle liquids that corrode most metal. But connecting up lengths of glass pipe has been a problem. So researchers went to work on that. Now much ordinary plumbing may be done with glass pipe using a newly developed method of welding. An electric arc in a gas flame overcomes the need for complicated fittings previously employed.

They glass jewels, formed under heat and polished by flame, have replaced sapphires as bearings in the manufacture of many combat instruments produced for the army and navy.

Introduced because the war made sapphires difficult to import from Switzerland, the American-made jewels probably will be retained after the war for many electrical instruments. In certain instruments glass jewels produce less overall friction than sapphires.

War's immense demand for tool steels has also called upon glass to supply gauges for insuring precise accuracy. Normally gauges are machined with the utmost precision from high-grade steel in shapes and dimensions to give exact fits when the parts being inspected are acceptable. Now such precision gauges made of glass are not only saving steel, but are proving better than their predecessors, for glass possesses the required stability and hardness, it cannot rust and it is transparent.

So it goes: Glassmakers are continually making glass to order for specific needs as they arise. At the moment, war demands occupy their attention. A few months ago the shortage of binoculars was so acute that civilians were asked to lend theirs to the army and navy. Now glass useful in lenses is being produced at a hitherto unprecedented rate. The shortage of iron and other metals is resulting in glass being pressed into substitute service. If glass pipes can be readily welded, perhaps we shall not only see glass plumbing in new glass houses, but glass water mains in military camps—and, when the war is over, in cities.

No scientist thinks for one moment that we have approached the limits of development for glass. War-stimulated uses presage important peacetime utilisation of this rejuvenated, age-old material. Keep your eye on glass!

T.C.A. TRANSPORT HOPS ATLANTIC

Montreal, July 22 — (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines today officially inaugurated its wartime trans-Atlantic service for the Canadian Government by establishing a new record for a non-stop flight from Montreal to Britain.

Carrying 2,800 pounds of mail and three passengers, the R.C.A. transport covered an estimated 3,100 miles in 13 hours, 36 minutes to clip 25 minutes from the previous record of 13 hours, 51 minutes.

The plane left Montreal last night and landed in Britain early today.

Announcement of the first flight came several weeks after it was announced in the House of Commons that T.C.A. would go into the trans-Atlantic field to fly mail, baggage and express to and from Britain as a wartime measure on behalf of the Canadian government.

The previous non-stop record from Montreal to Britain was established by Capt. R.T.B. Cripps, D.F.C., of the Royal Air Force Transport Command. His record of 13 hours, 51 minutes was announced by the Transport Command last April 26, after he had clipped four minutes from the previous record established by Capt. C. R. Burton a year before.

MARSALA IN W. SICILY OCCUPIED BY AMERICANS

FIERCE RESISTANCE FALLS TO HALT RUSSIANS

Allied Armies Prepare Knockout For Axis in Sicily

60,000 Prisoners Are Already Taken

(BY DANIEL DE LUCE, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 24 —(AP)— American forces have captured the western Sicilian port of Marsala, Allied Headquarters announced today, and many of Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton's Yank Army units were believed converging eastward to join British and Canadian troops in a knockout blow at Axis defenders clinging to the island's northeast corner.

"A rapidly diminishing portion of the island is all that remains to the Axis," said the Allied Headquarters communique, disclosing the Americans were mopping up enemy resistance in western Sicily and had captured "large numbers of prisoners and huge quantities of enemy equipment."

South of Catania, the Germans still were fiercely resisting the British 8th Army, although Allied warships drawn up along the coast poured a destructive naval bombardment into the enemy's inner positions.

It was disclosed officially on the Allies have taken a total of 60,000 prisoners while they are expected to round up at least 50,000 more. Three were said to average about three per cent Germans.

The Germans were trying frantically to reinforce their divisions in northeast Sicily, but the Americans cut the north coast road "well east" of captured Palermo, blocking the land route from the west to Messina, Headquarters said.

Canadian Make Progress

The Canadian 1st Division under Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds was reported making progress against the tank troops of the 15th German armored division.

All airdromes in Sicily now have been either captured or neutralized and every air power in Sicily is at all. Allied planes kept all enemy reinforcements from either mainland assault yesterday.

In an attack on enemy shipping, Allied torpedo planes sank one merchantman, severely damaged two others and left a destroyer in flames.

Bishy Mainland Bases Battered

Allied medium bombers battered Italy's mainland air bases at Foggia and at Crotone on the Gulf of Taranto by daylight, following up a night attack on rail installations at Salerno, south of Naples, and at Airfield at Pratica Di Mare.

Heavy bombers raided Leverano air field, also on the mainland, scoring many direct hits and destroying a number of grounded aircraft, the communique said. Interspersed by enemy fighters, the Allied engined bombers shot down 12 of them.

Other Allied airmen hammered road and rail communications in the extreme southeastern portion of Sicily and fighter-bombers destroyed 16 enemy barges off the Sicilian coast.

Only one enemy plane was shot out of the air over Sicily yesterday but night fighters destroyed three during their patrols. All the operations including the attacks on mainland targets, cost the Allies four planes.

The Canadians, advancing eastward, were reported swinging rapidly around the Germans' west flank at Catania on their way to join the 8th Army in taking that key city.

From that position they could bear directly upon the German flank as the Axis army now blocking the 8th Army drive up the east coast at Catania, either pressing the Nazis within range of the big guns of the Allied fleet off the east coast or plunging to Messina and cutting off the only escape route remaining open.

Slogging through the hot, dusty heart of Sicily, progress of the Canadians has been necessarily slow with their columns confronted by the 15th German panzer unit which was reported last week being rushed to them.

However, Dominion troops have still to face their toughest battles of the invasion, William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported yesterday that their present advance was being made from "against the outer shell of the main Axis defence system for the island."

He also reported that they had already advanced some 75 miles since hitting the beaches near Pachino two weeks ago. But their progress, he reported, has been slow for the last three days, as they were forced to "flush every foot of their way through the sun-baked hills around Enna."

Progress Slowed Up.

Meanwhile, German forces defending Catania and the north-eastern tip were finding key aid in the person of Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army. The bitter battle which has raged at Catania's southern environs for eight days has reduced the northward drive of the British veterans to a yard-by-yard proposal.

Paul Kern Lee, Associated Press correspondent, reported the Germans are also fighting in around Catania. He said their force there is estimated at more than three divisions including the tough Hermann Goering armored division, reinforced by long-range coastal guns and large field pieces.

The Germans are especially well entrenched about a mile and a quarter north of the Simeto river on the Catania plain south of the city, with defenses stretching back to a depth of several miles and with thinner but fairly strong defenses lieing northwest and west, he said.

Enemy Planes Hit By 8th Army.

LL-Gen. George S. Patton's American forces were left free to thrust eastward yesterday by the fall of Palermo, a drive that may have ended organized Axis resistance estimated at 45,000 men.

(A German radio commentator, acknowledging in a Berlin broadcast that Palermo had fallen, said also that Axis forces had been withdrawn from Marsala and Trapani.

(Reuters News Agency quoted a Stockholm dispatch as saying Axis troops had begun evacuating Sicily. The report, not confirmed by Allied sources, was based on a dispatch in the Svenska Dagbladet from Berne, Switzerland.)

In splitting the Axis forces and toppling Palermo, the Americans smashed their modern blitzkrieg phase tactics. One column stormed into Palermo, another struck to the south-west, another from the south and southeast, and a third cut northward to trap enemy forces withdrawing toward the east.

Early Advance of Canadians in Sicily Was Ahead of Any Other Force

(Ed. Note: The Canadians have been identified through Sicily although Sicily communications have had difficulty in keeping up with them. Here is the latest Canadian dispatch, much outdated now, reporting the landing at Pachino.)

(By ROSS MUNRO)

With the Canadians in Central Sicily, (Tuesday)— (CP Cable) — Canadians have penetrated further into Sicily up to this date than any other formation in the invasion force, and are continuing their stubbing advance at top speed with a terrific force of infantry, tanks and guns. They are far ahead of schedule.

Sling Hero, reports from William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, Allied headquarters, North Africa, state that the Canadian plunge through Sicily has been carried out in keeping with the 15th German Panzer Division having to fight hard to stem the advance.)

Prisoners taken by the Dominion troops now number upwards of 1,000 Germans and Italians, Italians are surrendering. The top men now being captured have no stomach for invasion. Italy's top fighting force.

Information received from Allied headquarters reported 60,000 Axis troops had been taken prisoner up by the Allies, with another 50,000 expected.

Yesterday (July 16) the Canadians advanced 25 miles from Grammichele to Piazza Armerina. A staff officer said the Canadians are going ahead faster than any formation in the Sicilian force, despite the fact they have less transport and are going long distances afoot. The hardening training they underwent in England for some three years is now paying big dividends.

9,000-TON JAP SEAPLANE TENDER SUNK IN PACIFIC

Destroyer Damaged During Attempt to Reinforce Positions In Central Solomons

AERIAL ATTACK

By MURLIN SPENCER

Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, The Southwest Pacific, July 24 — (AP) — American bombers sank a 9,000-ton Japanese seaplane tender off Bougainville Island and damaged one of four escorting destroyers yesterday in reinforcing another Japanese attempt to reinforce their hard-pressed Central Solomons positions.

The action was announced today in an Allied Headquarters communique which also told of new aerial battles that cost the Japanese 23 planes destroyed or damaged against loss of six American planes.

A large force of bombers provided with strong fighter cover, was sent after the seaplane tender and destroyers.

While the fighters took care of intercepting Zeros, shooting down five, the bombers pressed their attack in the face of intense antiaircraft fire from the warships. Three fighters were lost.

The tender was one of the Nisshin class which carries about 16 planes and repair facilities.

Apparently badly hurt by the Allies' incessant bombing and strafing attacks on the Salamaua-Lae area, the Japanese in recent days have sent stronger air fleets to protect their holdings.

Yesterday a total of 60 Japanese fighters attempted to intercept bombers attacking Bogadjim, 30 miles south of Madang, New Guinea. The bombers were escorted by Allied fighters, however, and strong force "was decisively defeated and dispersed," the communique said. Thirteen Japanese planes were shot down, five more probably were destroyed and five others destroyed or damaged. Two Allied fighters were lost.

WANTED TO DEFINE THE BOUNDARIES

Madrid, July 24—(AP)— Press dispatches from Rome indicated today the Hitler-Mussolini meeting this week was prompted by Il Duce's desire to learn Germany's idea of where the boundaries of Europe lie.

The Rome correspondent of Efe, official Spanish foreign news agency, wrote that the Italian press, following instructions, is writing dispatches which have noted with monotonous regularity the insular position of Britain. The correspondent said he had answered that the invasion was part of the Allied plan for the invasion of Europe. "Therefore, Italy's defense also contributes to the defence of the continent," the press articles said.

CANADIANS IN HOSPITAL TELL OF LANDINGS

Wounded or Injured Relate Experiences in Campaigning in Sicily

TAKING OF PACHINO

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

A British Hospital, North Africa, July 24 — (CP Cable) — Canadian soldiers wounded and injured in the fighting in Sicily have brought back personal accounts of the initial landings and the campaigning which followed as the Canadian 1st Division troops drove inland.

I spoke to a number of them at this hospital yesterday and heard their descriptions of the invasion. Most were only slightly wounded or injured and soon will be fit to go into action again.

Some were wounded by snipers, some victims of road accidents.

Lt.Br. Joseph McAuley, 26 of Stratford, Ont., with an anti-tank unit, was a victim of what he described as a "screwy" accident.

"I was a mechanic for the unit's vehicles," McAuley explained. "I travel from gunsite to gunsite on a motorcycle for units was advancing north when snipers opened fire on us. I took cover behind a bren gun truck and kept on rolling. The truck driver was not used to driving on the right side of the road, having just come from England.

"When we came to a curve he swerved sharply inside. I was trailing an officer, was caught off balance and thrown off my bike and the big heavy wheel passed over my leg, busting my left ankle."

Sicily Beautiful

Gnr. Michael Kibbins, 22, of Winnipeg, with an anti-aircraft battery, said sixteen men, including himself, were injured when an explosive shell from a tank landed amidst them. The battery had taken up a position at a hair-pin turn in a road near Ragusa at the time.

Lieut. Andrew Roy of Westville, N.S., and Lieut. Joe Pachibi, airdrome was captured. He said, the Canadians suffered very few casualties in landing although an unexpected sandbar delayed the craft and they went ashore in broad daylight.

"Sicily is beautiful," the airdrome fought hard "until we got close," then they surrendered."

Two miles from the airdrome the Canadians encountered a storages dump in the woods. It contained land mines and vehicles. It was defended by 200 men with eight machine-guns.

"It took us about two hours to silence that gang," said Roy. "Their fire was lethal but when the Italian gunners saw the three tanks we had sent for they stood up, waved and started walking towards us with their hands raised.

"It was easier than that engagement that I stopped a bullet."

TOTAL NON-WAR ESTIMATES COME TO $650.000.000

$105,000,000 Passed in House Friday; Session is Near Completion

EXPECT MUCH DEBATE

(By C. R. BLACKBURN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 24 (CP) — More than ten hours of work which began at 11 a.m. yesterday and ended early today, with time out for meals, brought the House of Commons close to the end of the session but there was no certainty that adjournment would be reached today.

When the House rose shortly after midnight more than $125,000,000 in non-war estimates, only remaining government business, had been passed but the finance and pension and health items and some other appropriations were left for consideration today.

The total finance vote is $374,000,000 but only $11,501,000 of that has to be voted in committee. The remainder, much of it the cost of carrying the national debt, is authorized by statute.

Nevertheless, there is expected to be considerable debate when Finance Minister Ilsley starts in put through his estimates, particularly those dealing with reform.

$43,900,000 for War Pensions

The pensions and national health departmental estimates total $53,000,000, almost all of which must be voted, with the bulk of it—$45,502,000—for war pensions.

Total non-war estimates were swelled yesterday by presentation of supplementary estimates of $43,000,000, of which twenty-seven million dollars is for the wheat acreage reduction program.

This brings the total non-war estimates for the current fiscal year to more than $653,000,000, much of which has already been approved.

The Senate, which received a message from the Commons announcing this week, caught up with the House House late last evening and is expected to stand by today to complete the business of the session immediately the Commons ends its work.

Yesterday's discussion ranged over a wide field as department after department came before the committee of the whole.

Supplementary estimates of Justice department estimates, Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House that he had been called upon to intercede in some cases in which internments were reserved for too long a time.

He had been able to speed up such judgments and would do so whenever litigants or their counsel brought such instances to his attention, he said.

DAYLIGHT ATTACK ON CRETE CAUSES GREAT DAMAGE

Ammunition Dumps, Gun Positions and Wireless Stations Are Blown Up

17 BOMBERS LOST

Cairo, July 24 — (AP) — Light bombers of the R.A.F. and Greek Air Force swept through Germany on Crete in daylight yesterday, the Middle East Command announced today.

Ammunition dumps were blown up and tented camps, gun positions and wireless and power stations were shot up by the attacking airmen, the announcement said.

Seventeen Allied planes were listed as missing.

(The British raid said last night in a broadcast heard by NBC that Germany airfields on Crete, Sicily and in the Eastern Mediterranean were a prime target.

"The Germans called the damage "insignificant," and said the raid bombing was not for the main purpose of probing Axis defences in Crete.)

The Middle East announcement called the raid "A large scale offensive operation.

Factories engaged in enemy production at Iraqeplu and Heraklion were targets of the light bombers and direct hits were reported scored.

Defend to Last Man

Dispatches describing the fury of the German counter-attack at Orel, where the Russians have driven the Germans as far as Orel, say Hitler has ordered his forces to hold to the last man, told of a Russian smash across a river directly east of the city.

Eleven German counter-attacks were launched against the Russians, the dunstchey, said, and the Russians announced officially that more than 2,000 Germans were annihilated in the attempt to dislodge the Red army forces.

The Germans also stepped up their defence of Orel with fighter planes, sending 250 planes over the Russian positions, but the dispatches said Soviet fighter planes beat them off before they reached their objective. The Germans lost 52 planes over Orel in a single day, the Russians said.

In their apparent drive to encircle this city, Germans, according to the fighting Red troops also pressing in on the city from both the north and south, carrying fierce counter-attacks against it and inflicting heavy losses in men and equipment.

The Russian communique reported advances all along the front from Orel south to the Soviet river port to the Orel sector, but the fiercest fighting was reported in the area where the Germans made their strongest drive. Reinforced by their first offensive July 5, the Russians reported, the Nazis had captured several towns, killed 1,000 Germans, and disabled 18 tanks.

Progress Slowed Up.

"When the first forces enter a city they may find it paralysed with no water or electricity, no police force inactive and its people short of food and medicine," the Soviet bulletin explained.

Somewhere in New Guinea, July 24—(AP)—Within the last week fighter squadrons have shot down about 34 Japanese planes, possibly destroyed 22 more and dikhaged seven other enemy aircraft, Allies in New Guinea.

In addition to yesterday's 23 downed or damaged near Madang and Salamaua, they destroyed 14 and possibly 11 more July 21 near Madang. Two Japanese planes have been destroyed or possibly eliminated since July 19 in the sector in exchange for an Allied loss of a bomber July 19, two fighters July 21 and two more fighters yesterday.

Army Paper Says Hitler's Plans for Offensive Cause Failure in Sicily

4,500 GERMANS SLAIN

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

Moscow, July 24 —(AP)— More than 4,500 German soldiers died yesterday at the approaches to Orel where Russian forces closing a pincers about that bastion continued to throw back 11 counter-attacks and forged ahead two to four miles, front line dispatches said today.

As the fierce battle of attrition moved into its 12th day with reports of mounting German losses, Red Star, the army organ, said the battle not only crushed Hitler's hopes for a new general offensive on the eastern front but was causing him to lose the battle for Sicily.

The Red army 'offensive is breaking down the punitive German defence in Europe," Red Star said. "It makes the German rear vulnerable.

The newspaper said that Hitler had been unable to release forces for combat the Allied invasion of Sicily because he was so heavily engaged on the Russian front.

New York, July 24— (AP)— A BBC broadcast, quoting the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda, said last night that Italy, Hungary and Rumania recently asked the Vatican to mediate for a separate peace but the Vatican refused to negotiate.

The broadcast recorded here by CBS, said "this report has not yet been confirmed in London."

The newspaper said the peace feelers gore made by Count Galeazzo Ciano Italian ambassador to the Holy See, Nicolas Kallay, Hungarian prime minister who visited the Vatican in April and Mihail Antonescu, Rumanian foreign minister who was in Rome in February.

BOLOGNA, ISLAND OF VENTOTENE AND SALERNO RAIDED

Rome Statement Admits Bombings of Three Centres

REFERS TO PALERMO

London, July 24 — (CP) — Rome admitted in its daily communique that Allied air raiders struck this morning at Bologna, in the north-central section of Italy, causing some damage and casualties.

The broadcast of the war bulletin, recorded by The Associated Press, also admitted that Allied bombers raided the city of Salerno, southeast of Naples, and the island of Ventotene, off Naples, this morning.

This Allied air activity, the announcement said, followed heavy raids against the Calabrian-Sicilian coasts.

The communique also said that "increased pressure of enemy armored formations against Axis forces to reconstitute their line and evacuate Sicily" was reported.

Today's German communique claimed, vaguely, an Axis thrust was successful" in Sicily, but did not indicate in what sector the purported attack was launched. It asserted Allied forces "only hesitatingly" were entering the western part of the island and repeated a Rundfunk report that Palermo, the island's capital, was evacuated by the Axis in the very beginning" of the invasion.

Local Report

The Germans said their heavy bombers attacked Allied shipping off Augusta, damaging six transport vessels and sinking one 2,000-ton freighter.

British forces in front of Catania eased up in their attack yesterday, the Nazi radio reported, reiterating their activity to violent artillery fire that occasionally rose to drumfire intensity.

Canadians were pushing out northeast from Enna in central Sicily met "fierce Allied defence and were thrown back with the loss of four heavy tanks, a Berlin broadcast asserted. Later, however, the sector in exchange for an Allied loss of a bomber July 19, two fighters July 21 and two more fighters yesterday.

STOLEN CAR IS FOUND IN QUARRY

Driven over a ten foot embankment into the city stone quarry at the intersection of College Street and Carnilton Road, a stolen automobile was recovered by city police Friday. The machine, belonging to Sergt. H. Vallillee, of No. 6 Repair Depot Trenton, was stolen in Belleville on Thursday night. Apparently the car thieves failed to negotiate the turn off Carnilton Road onto College Street, crashing the vehicle over the ten foot drop into the stone quarry below. Smaller Number Cheese Graded In Past Week

Drying pastures have begun to take their toll in decreased milk production and as a direct result, a decrease in cheese production, it was indicated Saturday by Chief Dairy Grader, J. L. Irvin when he released cheese gradings for the central Ontario district for the week ending Friday.

During the past week 11,194 cheese were graded in the five grading districts of Belleville, Kingston, Campbellford, Lindsay and Peterboro. This is 1,236 cheese less than were graded during the week previous when 12,430 were graded.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

For almost three years on active service with the Royal Canadian Navy, Voluntary Reserve and now honorably discharged from the service, Leslie Smith, North Front Street, is now preparing to further serve his country on the production front.

Discharged from the Navy the 1st of June because of medical unfitness, former Stoker Smith is learning the intricacies of machine shop routine and is taking a three-months' course at the Belleville Collegiate learning the operation of lathes, milling machines and planers. At the completion of his course, which still has two months to go, he will take a production job in one of Canada's war industries.

Although born in England, Leslie has spent practically all of his 30 years in Canada, coming here from the Motherland when only one year old. Enlisting in the Navy in October, 1940, he trained at Kingston and at Halifax before being posted to duty aboard a sub depot ship for approximately 14 months. At the time of his discharge from the service he was aboard the corvette "Amherst" on convoy duty across the Atlantic.

Les. admittedly saw a bit of action during his two years at sea, but being of the reserved type, terms it as "mostly routine work." That is if serving submarines while on their Atlantic patrolling vigils and assisting to guard Atlantic convoys against the U-boat wolf packs, can be termed routine.

Prior to his enlistment in the navy Leslie had worked at the Quinte hotel as night clerk and engineer. Now he is learning the technique that will permit him to turn out the war materials to assist in beating the Axis. Married, Les. now resides on North Front Street with his wife and young son.

Thus, two of the Watson sisters have now their first stripes on their sleeves. The three sisters were broken up following completion of initial training when Evelyn and Ida were posted to Ottawa for a typist-stenographer course. Earlier in the week Evelyn was promoted to the rank of lance corporal. All three sisters are highly enthused with their work with the C.W.A.C.'s.

Camp cots, single beds, sleeping bags and what have you, were only a few of the sleeping equipment thought up by members of the Argyll Light Infantry to take to Connaught Camp next week. As a matter of fact two army trucks were pressed into service to take along the sleeping contrivances conceived by the boys, especially those crafty N.C.O.s. "There's nothing like the great outdoors and a bed of soft cedar boughs," cracked Sergeant Jammy Goodman last night as he threatened to leave Mabel.

"Are you kiddin'?" snapped back Squadron Sergeant "Jeff" Jeffery, and that ended that.

The advance land party left the Belleville Armouries under Squadron Sergeant Walt Harden Friday at noon. The motorized contingent consisted of two army trucks and two army cars. The remainder of the Argyll equipment will be shipped by rail.

Who are the wise boys who are sending their equipment by rail and filling their haversacks and kit bags with paper?

ONE OF A SERIES OF "ACTION PICTURES" WITH CANADA'S MECHANIZED ARMY

THE ARMY'S FLYING WING!

WHEN AN INFANTRY ADVANCE is held up by an enemy "hot spot," the Commanding Officer signals for the shock troops—the hard-riding, sharp-shooting men of the Carrier Sections. Zooming up in speedy, armoured Universal Carriers the boys in black battle dress throw themselves and their weapons into action with the wild abandon of rodeo riders—but with deadly precision and split-second teamwork.

A Carrier Section (three carriers, nine men and a Section Commander) can concentrate fire-power equal to that of an entire infantry platoon on an enemy position. On today's fluid battle lines, the Carriers are star performers. They deliver a knockout blow in one place and—before the enemy knows what hit him—are striking again far down the line.

Each man in the Carrier Troops is an accomplished driver or radio operator; each is a dead shot with rifle, Bren gun, anti-tank rifle or 2-inch mortar which are standard equipment. Useful also for laying smoke screens to cover troop movements, the Universal Carriers are often called upon to transport men and supplies over rough-and-tumble terrain which would stop a less powerful or sure-footed vehicle.

Canada can expect great things from the fast, fearless soldiers in the Carrier Section—the Army's flying wing!

One of more than 50 types of battle vehicles made and tested by Ford of Canada's craftsmen, the Universal Carrier is a versatile piece of equipment; has already figured in successful Commando raids and important United Nations advances.

"Our fighting men are trained and ready to do their share—with everything they've got. Our job is to see they have more than enough first-rate battle equipment—and the job won't be finished until our enemy has "unconditionally surrendered."

'Opening Strains of Axis Dirge'

News of such events as the fall of Palermo and the imminent collapse of the Axis resistance in Sicily can have but one effect upon the enemy, the weakening of morale. Allied power has moved with an irresistible force in these past few months because it is reaching its real stride. The marvel is that in view of the tremendous power which the Axis early exercised the Free Nations were able to co-ordinate their plans and to husband their strength while in the initial step of mobilisation of all their resources. To the nations of Europe which fell under the blitz blows of Hitler, to Britain that stood defiant and confident against the mad surge of Germanic militarism and beat it back from the Channel and on to the completion of the United States in danger's hour — one of the greatest hours of the Free Nations — the world owes its security.

Out of that great demonstration of faith and courage came the possibilities for events of those latter days.

Now into the future one can look as in the words of Associated Press correspondent, Daniel de Luce, who said on Friday that "in the hoarse roar of tanks and the crunching tread of infantry boots through the streets of Sicily, the Free World can hear the opening strains of a dirge for Axis power over Europe." Then follow those words of his:

"Palermo was more than the sixth largest Italian city.

"It was one of the queenly ports of the Tyrrhenian Sea.

"It was the civilised heart of Sicily.

"It was shielded from attack as heavily as almost any base on the Italian peninsula itself.

"The Sicilian campaign has proved these things:

"The Italian army fights no more bravely or skilfully at home than it did abroad.

"War weariness and discouragement run through almost all classes of the Italian nation.

"Allied generals know as much about lightning war today as their German teachers.

"British, American and Canadian division that never have seen battle before can be hurled into action on at least a par with experienced enemy armies — thanks to a training program that keep pace with the latest lessons of the 1943 war program.

"Amphibious warfare, the most difficult and exact type of all, has become an Allied specialty.

"The Allied Command again has demonstrated that wherever it sends its land spearheads it makes sure first of air cover and future supply line.

"The Allies have all the essentials for the conquest of Europe."

Mussolini's heart must tremble and quake as he thinks that no hideout, no cave can prevent the steady march of the days and the months that spell his doom. His hoarse boasts are lost in the cheers of victory as Palermo is liberated from Fascist and Hun.

He needed no one to tell him what meant the reports late on Friday from all over Italy and the Balkans that word of the fall of Palermo had reached the far corners of Europe. Dictatorship could not hold back the tidings. German tyranny might prevent news leaking out of Germany but repercussions must also have been felt there. Demonstrations were reported in Rome, Venice, Milan, Turin, Florence and Trieste, with crowds shouting "Peace" while waves of strikes and sabotage swept Italy. In the Balkans another type of reaction was reported, it was the renewed fighting and of rebellion against the Axis domination.

Palermo

Another victorious army has taken Palermo, capital, largest city and principal seaport of Sicily. It was founded by the great colonizing power of Phoenicia, whose traders and explorers not only travelled the Mediterranean, establishing commerce and setting up civilization but went as far as Cornwall in Britain in search of that metal which even today is one of the sinews of war in the making of the modern airplane—tin.

Palermo dates from the dawn of Mediterranean history and has long been a prize of many wars since the days when the Carthaginians, a colony of Phoenicians, who settled near where the momentous battle of Rome's Punic wars so recently fought, seized it from its founders.

The city is built on an inlet on the north shore of the island and the semicircle of mountains and hills which partly surround it to the south make it a natural stronghold. Its name means "surrounded by rocky cliffs."

Early in Roman history two centuries before Julius Caesar was the dominant figure in the world and two and a half centuries before Augustus founded the Roman Empire, this island fell into the hands of Rome. That was in 254 B.C. From the Romans in the course of history this beautiful city passed into the hands of the Goths, the Byzantines of the East-ern Empire, the Saracens, the Normans and the Hohenstaufens. In the thirteenth century it was the scene of the massacre of the French rulers and under Spanish rule it was the residence of a viceroy and a place of magnificence. Palermo and Sicily became a part of the Italian Empire after the overthrow of the Bour-bon Government by Garibldi eighty-three years ago. Six years later it was the scene of a revolution which was quelled in the beginning and was the last of its many.

Palermo was built into a naval base as a part of the Italian Empire.

'An Absurd Myth'

(Letter in London Daily Telegraph)

Sir:—One notices that the absurd myth that "England loses every battle but the last" is raising its head again. Who fathered this fatuous figment? The hard facts of history are against it.

The military career of Marlborough was a series of successes that became almost monotonous. He never lost a battle. Nor did Wellington, who in the Peninsula was called by the enthusiastic Portuguese "the invincible." The records of Havelock and Outram were never blotted by defeat. Even those soldiers like Roberts, Wolseley and Kitchener are other examples which show that the myth has no basis in fact.

Self-description is no recommendation, and our queer British habit of running down our generals and soldiers is apt to have regrettable repercussions among friends and enemies.

GEORGE BRACKLEY.

The Englishman's Dog

(London Evening Standard)

Dog shops are having quite a boom just now. There is a fig demand and prices are at least double what they were before the war.

There are two main reasons for this wartime demand for dogs. Many people who had their pets "put to sleep" are now replacing them; and women like dogs for company and protection while their men-folk are away on war work.

The chief reason for the higher prices is the fact that supplies are so restricted. Some kennels have gone out of business entirely. Those that remain cannot get food enough to maintain the kennels at peacetime strength.

It is the smaller breeds, which need less food and can live on "scraps", that are in chief demand. At the head come cocker spaniels, Scotch terriers and Sealyhams. Eight guineas or even more is asked for a fair young specimen of any of these.

Women still want to buy more "Pekes" than are being bred; 12 guineas is an ordinary price for a puppy.

True courage is cool and calm. The bravest of men have the least of a brutal bullying insolence, and in the very time of danger are found the most serene and free. — Shaftsbury.

TRIUMPH

Against the change of time and tide
And fortune's rise and fall,
Some things of triumph still abide
For memory to recall.

Hear men at table, blithe and glad,
Forgetting trade affairs,
Still boast the fishing trip they had
When glorious luck was theirs.

Some joys man's memory singles out
In its peculiar way
For him to boast and tell about
When done with work and play

That race he ran at utmost best,
A friend to friend recites,
Such prides are on the mind impressed
To tell on winter nights.

For always through the span of years
And all that time destroys
Some triumph of the past appears
For man to tell the boys.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

JULY 24TH, 1923.

The Belleville marksmen are busy practising for the forthcoming rifle matches at the Ontario Rifle Association meeting which takes place at Long Branch, Toronto, from August 6th to August 18th, and the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meeting at Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, from August 13th, to August 18th. The following are the likely competitors from the Bay of Quinte District: Argyll Light Infantry, Major D. T. McManus, Capt. O. H. Stobbs, Lieut. W. A. Elliott, Lieut. T. D. Dodds, Reg. Ernest Hurford, from the High School Cadets, Corp. J. Andrews, Corp. M. Cummings and Sergt. J. P. Symons.

At the Agricultural Park here the O.T.R. team of this city defeated the Cobourg team in a baseball game in the Central Ontario League, the score being 8 to 3. The following composed the teams: G.T.R.: Ross, Meagher, Weir, H. Mills, Williams, Casey, Brownscombe, Hagerman and Quinte: Cobourg, Butler, Thompson, Turpin, Skitch, J. Kenny, T. Kenney, Drennon, Jackson, Johnston, Derry and Payne. The umpires were Alex Kay and George Sullivan. The game took two hours to play.

A party of government engineers from Ottawa are here to make measurements in the vicinity of the new Government Dumping wharf and the Ferry House, prior to the removal of the old Grand Junction Railway piers and the dredging necessary for the construction of the new Government docks.

It is about time that the names of the streets were placed on the corners. Our active Corporation also needs revision, as there are streets on each side of the river which bear the same name.

The two chemical fire engines ordered by the Corporation from Mr. Moore, the agent, have been delivered here. One is stationed on the corner of Dundas and Bridge streets and the other in Mr. A. Diamond's carriage house on Church street. Companies are being formed to work these engines although no addition to the fire department will greatly increase the security of property on Dundas Hill.

The meeting of the Hastings Rifle Association will be held at Hambly's restaurant this evening.

TOTAL NON-WAR

Comments on Deficiency

Mr. St. Laurent commented on the deficiency in the British North America Act which makes it extremely difficult to remove a judge of the high courts when he is too old or infirm to properly perform his duties.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, raised the question of reserved judgments which he said was a "national scandal."

He also protested against the custom of giving high retiring allowance to judges for life at a time when it was impossible to get any consideration of increases in allowances for civil servants.

Just before adjournment Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South) asked Prime Minister Mitchell that so important and permanent a task as bringing up the unemployment insurance machinery should not be asked of immediately workers to face the prospect of having to make up for war-time when the war is over.

Mr. Mitchell said he recognized the important work being performed by this staff but the policy would be the start of the war to appoint only temporary staff in the public service.

Briefs From Britain

More than 100,000 London omnibus workers are getting a 51 a week wage increase.

Capt. E. A. Pitaffey, M.P., former Speaker of the House of Commons, left $1,000 in his will.

Prime Minister Churchill accepted an honorary fellowship in the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

The Fleet Air Arm has built a $1,000,000 air station within 100 miles of Capetown, South Africa.

Esmond Knight, young British actor, who lost his sight in the Bismarck action, probably can see again but only dimly.

Tovton Moor, Yorkshire, scene in 1461 of the decisive battle of the War of the Rose, is up for auction.

Lord Beaverbrook has purchased a mansion in Somerset, which was the ancestral home of the Pitts, an estate of 700 and 800 acres.

The hart of Moray, Lord Lieutenant of Elgin, Scotland, is Commander Castle the day before his 31st birthday. He is a flight officer in South Africa, inherits the title.

The fruit store of David Lloyd George on his estate at Churt, Surrey, was broken into and hundreds of pounds of black currants and raspberries stolen.

Returning from Africa, Britain's War Minister Sir James Grig with General Sir Bernard Paget, Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in Northern Ireland, visited the Isle of Portland where the Canadians are training.

Old London's pre-war fleet of four fire-lighting ships has been, by general consent, replaced by the finest fleet of fire-fighting ships in the world to protect its shipping, docks and warehouses.

Production in one British munitions town has increased 1,000 times over the pre-war figure, where output was exceeded storage space. Car parks, side streets and even refuse dumps have been taken over.

Under a new plan to increase shipbuilding facilities, the British Admiralty now takes particular care to keep the shipbuilding labor force intact. Men are not called up for the Armed Forces or transferred to other industries without the consent of the Admiralty's intentions in handling the 1943 and 1944 programs.

CapitalCloseups

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 24.—(CP)—Some of the effects of the war on the life of Ottawa has been an increase in the work of members of House of Commons committees.

The problem is to lead members of Parliament at committee meetings to have been given the authority to dispute.

"It's been quite possible to insist on rules of debate," one chairman of a House of Commons group said of the trouble we caused by the lack of opportunity to discuss private members' business on the floor of the House.

Throughout most of the session there were 18 such resolutions on the order paper. But there has been too busy to pay any attention to them. The result is that has happened every session since the war began.

Liguori Lacombe (Cdn. Laval-Two-Mountains) was making a speech in French when Douglas Harkness (Lib. Calgary East) interrupted in English.

"Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Lacombe, "since I am addressing the House in my Mother Tongue, I would ask parliamentary assistance to understand what he has to say."

* * *

Mr. Harkness said he would be so kind as to speak French the next time he rises to point of order.

* * *

"Avec plaisir," said Mr. Abbott, the Minister of Finance, in French, he proceeded to tell the House that the Government had nothing to do with the bill before the House.

Our friends in the press censorship branch are still smarting at the comment in the House by Leslie Mutchmor, (Lib. P. E. I.—Pieche, that "censorship is one of the sins of the services" which we cannot possibly win this war.

It caused a laugh in the House, too, when Mr. Mutchmor corrected the "with which" to "without which."

To make perfectly clear what he meant he added: "Censorship is as necessary, as essential, as bullets, ships, airplanes and cannon."

To which Hon. Ian Mackenzie, honorable members of the Hansard report, tritely replied, "Hear, hear."

Probably by now you've noticed the three-cent stamps have been changed from red to a mild purplish blue. Reason is because the 1943 budget raised the basic rate on first class mail from three to four cents and the basic-rate stamp under the International Postal Union rules must be a red stamp.

Supreme Bomber Has Humane Way for Enemy Folk

By SCOTT YOUNG

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 24.—(CP)—Wing Commander Guy Gibson picked up his telephone.

A voice barked: "Got any bombs back at your station?" said the source. The sports officer hedged. The voice continued: "I've got a bit busy lately on these air raids. I don't feel entitled to a back recreation." I want to knock hell out of some Nazis."

The sports officer was still unconvinced. "Who did you say you were?" he asked.

"Harris, Bomber Command", the voice replied.

He was probably too busy to say it all right out. . . . Air Vice-Marshal he was then) Sir Arthur Travers Harris, commander-in-chief, Bomber Command," . . . but the sports officer felt that Sir Arthur Harris got his tennis balls.

That is Harris, an Air Chief Marshal now. He is the man bearing the main responsibility for directing the most vital punches of the R.A.F.'s Bomber Command deep into Germany and the man whose stinger-moustached decisive 51-year-old face when a former Fifth colleague has said: "Of course we all love him. He's a terrific inhuman."

He Begy-Mas.

In actual battle, he is a humane man. He has been in the van of telling the German people, as he does, that the R.A.F. regards of the people had to lose their lives in R.A.F. bombing raids, if they worked or lived in or near war factories they had to take their chances. And his relations with his three-year-old daughter are unsullied. She is no German to her.

So his inhumanity is not in the Nazi sense. It is rather in the complete absorption of his life in the task of the Royal Air Force Bomber Command. It is in the unbending calm he maintains at the three, four and five in the morning briefings when the night's reports on a raid in progress. It is in the fact that he never sleeps in an important sense in his job but also never misses arriving at the right time to direct his shipping, docks and warehouses.

Production in one British munitions town has increased 1,000 times over the pre-war figure, where output was exceeded storage space. Car parks, side streets and even refuse dumps have been taken over.

Under a new plan to increase shipbuilding facilities, the British Admiralty now takes particular care to keep the shipbuilding labor force intact. Men are not called up for the Armed Forces or transferred to other industries without the consent of the Admiralty's intentions in handling the 1943 and 1944 programs.

Ottawa, July 24.—(CP)—Some of the indirect effects of the war on Ottawa has been an increase in the work of members of House of Commons committees.

The problem is to lead members of Parliament at committee meetings to have been given the authority to dispute.

"It's been quite possible to insist on rules of debate," one chairman of a House of Commons group said of the trouble we caused by the lack of opportunity to discuss private members' business on the floor of the House.

Throughout most of the session there were 18 such resolutions on the order paper. But there has been too busy to pay any attention to them. The result is that has happened every session since the war began.

Liguori Lacombe (Cdn. Laval-Two-Mountains) was making a speech in French when Douglas Harkness (Lib. Calgary East) Westmount) interrupted in English.

"Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Lacombe, "since I am addressing the House in my Mother Tongue, I would ask parliamentary assistance to understand what he has to say."

* * *

Mr. Harkness said he would be so kind as to speak French the next time he rises to point of order.

"Avec plaisir," said Mr. Abbott, the Minister of Finance, in French, he proceeded to tell the House that the Government had nothing to do with the bill before the House.

Our friends in the press censorship branch are still smarting at the comment in the House by Leslie Mutchmor, (Lib. P. E. I.—Pieche, that "censorship is one of the sins of the services" which we cannot possibly win this war.

It caused a laugh in the House, too, when Mr. Mutchmor corrected the "with which" to "without which."

To make perfectly clear what he meant he added: "Censorship is as necessary, as essential, as bullets, ships, airplanes and cannon."

To which Hon. Ian Mackenzie, honorable members of the Hansard report, tritely replied, "Hear, hear."

Probably by now you've noticed the three-cent stamps have been changed from red to a mild purplish blue. Reason is because the 1943 budget raised the basic rate on first class mail from three to four cents and the basic-rate stamp under the International Postal Union rules must be a red stamp.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

"Don." in the sense of taking off clothes or a hat, is merely an old contraction of "do on."

Likewise, "doff," in the sense of putting on, is a contraction of "do off."

Robert E. Lee was both the nephew and the Confederate army after the outbreak of the Civil War. At the battle of Fredericksburg he directed the Confederate artillery fire which he had himself helped to plan. After the war Lee became president of Washington College in Lexington, Virginia, by referendum decided to withdraw from the Union, Lee tendered his resignation as commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the Dominion. Technically he was still a colonel in the U.S. army when he began to wage war against the Union. The war was, of course, of many other U. S. officers from the South who took up arms against the North.

Then dreams he of another home.

The inhabitants of ancient Syracuse, which stood on the site of the present Italian city of that name in Sicily, had a method of banishment known as ostracism. When a citizen was suspected of having dangerous influence on the public mind he held a meeting and voted on the question of whether or not he should leave the community for five years. The method was similar to the one used in Athens, but it was called petalism because the Syracusans used olive leaves or petals instead of shells for ballots.

At the time of the American Revolution a body of young persons, called Macaroni soldiers, in the Continental army were known as "Macaroni" because of their gay uniforms.

Canada is the only belligerent member of the United Nations that has not adopted the steel helmet worn by the British and Russians.

The second syllable in the word "warfare" signifies journey or expedition. "Warfare" is analogous to "seafare" and "welfare" and originally meant a military expedition or a fighting trip.

Don Moynes, Well Known Belleville Boy, Relates Some of His Experiences While Serving As Seaman With Merchant Marine

Trip to Murmansk Was Filled With Many Exciting Moments During Attacks by Planes and U-Boats—Was on Last Allied Ship to Leave Antwerp

MEN UNDERGO MANY HARDSHIPS

More often than not the work of the Merchant Marine service passes unrecognized and an understanding of the trials and hardships men of this service go through is often lost in the glamour emanating from the gold and blue of the fighting Royal Canadian Navy and the proper appreciation which is felt by all never finds expression. Too often these men go about among the thousands of other citizens on the streets unistinguishable from any of the others around them, and nothing displays their association with the service that is keeping half the world fed and healthy. Outwardly they are civilians, often being misjudged, often being accused. Praise cannot be high for these men. Such a man is 1st Class Seaman Don Moynes of 58 Cedar Street, Belleville, now living with his bride in Stirling, Ontario.

Don Moynes was not a newcomer to the life aboard ship when war broke out, for eight years a sailor on the Great Lakes could be considered an introduction to sea-going life. Early in March, 1940, aboard a ship flying the Belgium flag, the "Ville de Bruge," a 22,000-ton cargo vessel, Don set out from New York Harbor on his first salt water voyage, a Trans-Atlantic crossing, destined, their destination the Port of Le Havre, France.

Before the European coast was reached trouble developed in the ship's engines and they drifted in mid-Atlantic for three days and nights, drifting 500 miles off course, before the ship sent out by the Royal Navy found them and took them in tow to a port on the South Coast of England. Ten days found their ship once again sea-worthy and the trip across the Channel to Le Havre was completed after 12 days from the time they left New York and the mouth of the Saint River.

"We crossed at nine knots per hour," said Seaman Moynes during his interview with a Staff Reporter for The Ontario Intelligencer "we could move faster but we never opened her up to top speed", When asked if he saw any thing of enemy sea or air, he replied that not a thing happened to them other than the disablement of the engines.

Sailor Arrested and Shot.

The crew was a conglomeration of nationalities, Norwegians, Frenchmen, Spaniards, Swedes, Americans and Canadians. There were no Germans in the crew and no Italians and the first encounter with enemy aliens was in Antwerp later when they had arrived at Antwerp. Belgium, and about a week after they had docked there a sailor was arrested and shot as up off the shore".

For three days, Seaman Moynes and his fellow crew members were under the leadership of the Boatswain and Fourth Mate, the Captain and other officers having gone on a'lead, tried to get some sort of transportation to get to Antwerp. "We finally arranged to hire a tractor and trailer which was owned by a Belgian who also wanted to get out of the country," said Don, "and, after being outfitted by the people of Antwerp with clothes and other things we needed, we started for the French border. We loaded the trailer with a bunch of refugees and took them with us to Ostend where we left them along with the driver".

Ship For England

After profuse manifestations of thanks and carrying with them the blessings of these rescued refugees, the crew of the now wrecked "Ville de Bruge" succeeded in getting passage on board a ship going to England. "The company paid for everything," said Don, "and the French people treated us like kings, giving us anything and everything we needed. We fact, anyone in need could not do enough for us".

The ship carrying the crew from Ostend took them up the Thames and tied up and they stayed there for several days, stopping at the Seaman's Champion Row where again their expenses were paid by the company that owned the "Ville de Bruge". Travelling from London to a port by train, the ship-wrecked crew met the vessel on a ship which took them back to New York as the conclusion to a momentous voyage. The crew was split up at New York and sent to different ships. "I saw the fellow who was with me when we were hit by the serial torpedo at Antwerp and the last time of the party when we landed just once after my return to U.S. We lay about a mile apart in a small coastal tanker plying the eight ships in the harbor. Not a single one was damaged and all of us got out of the harbor as soon as we could that night. "We unloaded the cargo that we had brought from the York and Le Havre and got out of Antwerp Harbor in ballast and about a quarter of a mile out we were hit with an aerial torpedo that crippled our ship", related Don, "and although this hazardous adventure as calmly as though he were describing a slight sprinkling of the matter on this car. "We beached her and got ashore and went back to Antwerp in a small tug that pick-

Trip to Murmansk

This, of course, was not the end of Don Moynes' adventures on the Continent after a short rest at least at his home in Belleville he signed on again on lake boats until January, 1941, when he joined a United States vessel which had been re-registered under Panamanian colors. This voyage was to take him into one of the hottest theatres of war—Murmansk. On January 19, 1941, the ship left Boston for an eastern Canadian port arriving on the 23rd. Cargo was loaded and the Atlantic crossing started four days later. On February 5th, twelve days out, we dropped anchor in the Firth of the Forth," Don went on, relating this new adventure which was to turn out to be more adventurous than the first. "We were given shore leave, a one pound note, and spent our leave and the pound in Glasgow. Contrary to universal opinion," Don continued, "the Glasgow trip was not riotous and we returned in good shape".

The coast dropped behind as the vessel sailed north. Continuing northward toward their destination, it ran into a heavy storm on February 25th, and one of their rafts was torn from its moorings on deck and washed overboard. The coast of Iceland hove into sight on the morning of March 1st, and the ship dropped her "hook" at Reykjavik but stayed only until the following day. "After leaving Iceland", said Don, "we heard that a German raider was coming after us; this was on March 6th. However, we saw nothing of this fellow. If he was after us. We saw a German plane on the 10th but were not attacked by him. On the 12th we steamed into the river and arrived at Murmansk on the 13th which happily was a Thursday and not the proverbial bad-luck day".

Russian Port Bombed

Although the voyage had been peaceful, with the exception of the one storm after leaving Scotland, and this a mere detail in the life of a sailor it was not to remain so for long. At noon on the 14th, with the boat lying at dock in Murmansk, the first German plane paid its visit to the Russian port as a kind of prelude to what was to follow that night. Murmansk was heavily raided but the ship with Don Moynes aboard escaped damage. The dock where they were tied up was damaged, however, and a shift to another pier was necessary before unloading could be completed until April 2nd. On March 31st the vessel was hit and had two shrapnel holes in her hull to show for it. Hundreds of Russians were killed in this raid. When the cargo was safely delivered on dock the ship shifted for water and on April 3rd, Good Friday, the enemy again visited and this time sank three ships. The Death toll in the city amounted to over 600 that night, it was reported.

Many Casualties

"On Saturday I saw 11 Russian Army bombers fly over us headed for a raid on the Finnish lines. Later they all returned safely. "The Germans carried out a retaliation raid that night," said Don. Easter Sunday was not held sacred by the enemy who raided Murmansk again coming over at three o'clock in the morning and causing considerable damage and many casualties in the civilian population "the anchorage was bombed thoroughly during this raid but we escaped damage again," said Seaman. On Monday morning a Russian Naval craft came along side the craft for conference and to estimate the amount of her damages. Wednesday night saw a Russian air raid on the German lines with all aircraft returning safely. Three German scout or reconnaissance planes were shot down Thursday and ran into a heavy barrage from the Anti-Aircraft defence batteries and fled back to their own bases.

On April 16th, the boat left Murmansk and joined other ships to form a convoy. "The cruiser, six destroyers and five corvettes in the escort of convoy. "The next day we sighted a JU88 which dropped a bomb near the starboard beam of the Flagship. The German plane was shot down and one came in to take his place; this one bombed a crippled ship in the convoy, killing all on decks and rigging of the convoy and it was difficult to handle the ships. The raid lasted for about 3 hours. We came in for some of the bombing but were not hit".

Ships Torpedoed

"The ship was now in the region of the Bear Island and daylight lasted the full twenty-four hours. A scout plane was sighted at 8 a.m. and a Russian ship, was torpedoed but succeeded in shooting down the enemy craft before she sank. Another ship was torpedoed and vanished beneath the waters within two and a half minutes from the time it was struck. All hands were rescued and taken aboard other ships in the convoy. "On the 19th, three German planes attacked us, coming upon us almost as soon as we sighted them," Don said. "Our ship shot one of them down but we had been hit and were badly damaged. A submarine was destroyed by one of the escorting ships of us on this day. The next day we ran into heavy fog and had a pretty rough time of it. German planes came over and dropped contact mines around us but these were quickly destroyed. On the following day we sighted a cruiser and more mines were dropped from enemy aircraft. This was by Germans with us practically all the time but, fortunately for us they never came over in large numbers".

Convoy Scattered

A British cruiser joined the convoy on the 24th and left the following day, taking with her the cruiser which had accompanied the convoy from Murmansk. A flying-boat sighted the convoy and gave them the best protection throughout that day and into the next. On the 26th we developed a leak in the hold and headed for Reykjavik, Iceland where we had our damage repaired. Three convoys left the port for Europe before the ship on which Don Moynes had experienced so many adventures got under way to join an eastern-bound convoy. Of the 7 Panamanian ships in the convoy to Russia only 3 returned. The warm air weather was setting in now and it was early in May when it left Reykjavik and dense fog rose from the still icy North Atlantic. They expected to meet the convoy on May 4th and were successful in establishing contact and joining it. For six days the ships steamed slowly in convoy through heavy fog, her destination unknown until finally they had to heave-to at 3 a.m. and the fog lifted enough to proceed. The voyage ended on May 16th when the ships left a U.S. harbor for New York but the memory of those days and nights in the Russian Arctic Ocean seaport; under constant raiding and bombing, the slow movement across the north coast of Norway under repeated air attacks, hit by an aerial torpedo, breath-taking cold and fog that settled like a blanket around them, are things which will keep this adventure always fresh in the minds of the crew and, after talking to Don Moynes, vividly portrayed in his mind each time he retraces these miles of sea in his mind.

From the time Don Moynes returned from momentous experiences to Russia he has been sailing on ships in the Atlantic Coastal route and, upon occasion, into the Great Lakes. This is comparatively peaceful after the other adventures. Don says, and he is looking forward to another trip across the Atlantic and would like very much to sail into the Mediterranean with a convoy of munitions and supplies for the Canadian troops who are chasing the Italians and Nazis out of Sicily.

Married Two Weeks Ago

Safely at home now, happily married less than two weeks, Seaman Don Moynes detailed this story with appropriate modesty. His bride, sitting in at the interview, learned things about Don's adventures she had never heard him mention before. To Don Moynes, and thousands like him, we owe a great debt and acknowledge with a definite demonstration the work he and his kind are doing to keep our industries fed and clothed and maintain the health and safekeeping of the millions of civilian men, women and children in the British Isles and their allies across the sea in one of the war's most hazardous tasks.

Aurora, Ont., July 24 —(CP)— Ontario Provincial Police reported yesterday an unidentified soldier from Camp Borden, Ont., was burned to death and three other persons seriously injured Thursday night when two automobiles collided on Yonge Street Highway south of here.

George W. See, 65, said to be the driver of the car in which the soldier burned to death, was thrown clear of the wreckage but suffered severe burns to his head and hands and a possible fracture of the neck.

Occupants of the other car, Clifford Reeves, 40, of Toronto, and H. W. Gilmour of Newmarket, Ont., suffered internal injuries and shock.

All were taken to hospital at Newmarket.

44 Sittings Held On Appropriation Bill

Ottawa, July 24 —(CP)— Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said Friday in the House of Commons that a Ontario Broadcasting Corporation bulletin Thursday night, stating the $3,800,000,000 War Appropriation Bill was passed in a few minutes contained a reflection on House members.

"Such statements, without an explanatory background, might lead listeners to believe insufficient consideration was given to the measure," said Mr. Graydon.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he was glad Mr. Graydon had raised the matter as he had planned a statement himself.

The War Appropriation resolution had been introduced in February, and the 44 sittings which considered it had extended over nine weeks.

No other measure had received as much consideration as the War Appropriation Bill.

Hickson's Party Lifted Over 100 Mines To Make Tank Opening

Ottawa, July 24 —(CP)— Sgt. George A. Hickson, D.C.M., of Belleville, Ont., won the Military Medal in North Africa for organizing a detachment to clear a gap through a mine-field so tanks could advance to their "final objective" — a job carried out under constant shell and mortar fire.

The citation for the award, announced here was issued Friday. By winning the Military Medal Hickson became the first Canadian soldier to win two decorations in this war.

Also made public Friday was the citation covering award of the Military Cross to Capt. H. V. Matthews, 28, of Sooke, B.C. In the battle of Wadi Akarit last April 22, he was the only officer left in his company and "under extremely heavy fire" he "consolidated his position on the second objective and made arrangements for reinforcement.

Sgt. Hickson's party, in less than an hour lifted more than 100 mines, making a 40-yard opening.

"It was undoubtedly due to the skill and efficiency of the N.C.O. (Hickson) that the task was completed and the tanks enabled to pass through the mine-field and assist the infantry in the capture of the final objective," said his citation.

Rome May Yet Be Declared Open City, Opinion in Madrid

London, July 24 —(AP)— A Madrid dispatch to the Daily Mail said belief was growing in the Spanish capital that Rome may yet be declared an open city.

The correspondent wrote that Hitler is reported to be urging Mussolini to move and there is talk in Rome of moving the government and military staffs to Verona.

"Particular attention is paid to the passage in the Pope's letter (concerning the bombing of Rome) in which His Holiness referred to his negotiations on behalf of the Italian capital," the Madrid dispatch said.

Meanwhile an authoritative source in London said that Rome would be spared from bombing immediately if made an open city, but that it would be up to the United States to set conditions for an open city.

Diversion Tunnel At Steep Rock Mine 'Blown In'

Atikokan, Ont., July 24 —(CP)— Providing an unique spectacle for a large group of Canadian financiers and mining men, the diversion was "blown in" on Friday to complete the first phase of the Steep Rock diversion project, about seven miles north of here.

Following the blast, the lake began flowing out by a new route—a channel 1,300 feet long and an outlet 12 feet in diameter.

Ester Dowler is but part of a gigantic engineering scheme to drain near-by Steep Rock Lake from the bed of which the Steep Rock Iron Mines Limited ultimately hopes to extract more than 2,000,000 tons of iron ore annually.

$80,000,000 SEA-AIRPORT

London, (CP)—Plans for a three-decker London sea-airport costing $80,000,000 have been prepared by aircraft designer F. G. Miles, Fureas and land planes, it would maintain a 10-minute service for 24 hours a day.

Receive Letter From Son Who Disappeared in 1941

Woodstock, July 24 —(CP)—Gen. T. Lucas, an employee of the Ontario Hospital here, said he and his wife had received a letter a few days ago from their son, Paul Howard, 21, who disappeared from his Woodstock home July 30, 1941.

The letter was the first word the parents had had from the youth, who left home at the age of 19 because of his disappearance.

In the letter he said he has been with a Canadian artillery unit overseas for some time, has gone through two air raids but has spent the past six months in military hospital recovering from injuries.

Mr. Lucas, "who now lives at nearby Embro, said he has communicated with Defence Minister Ralston in an effort to arrange for the boy's discharge from the army or at least his return to Canada.

The boy told his parents he had enlisted at Calgary in November, 1941 using an assumed name.

WEDDINGS

HEIM—SCOTT

White and flowers added fruitful formed the impressive setting for a very lovely summer wedding this afternoon (to Christ Church at three p.m., when Margaret Isabel Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Hayward Scott, became the bride of Walter Clare Heim, of Merritt, B.C., son of Mr. W. Scott Heim, of Chinchaud, Ont. The Rev. G. O. Wright solemnized the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Miss Dorothy Grant.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a charming figure as she entered the church in her wedding gown of white lace, hand-fashioned in long torso effect, with heart-shaped neckline and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil was caught to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of Johanna Hill roses, Swansonia and Bridesmaid.

Miss Victoria Scott, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a lovely her floor-length dress of blue matelasse taffeta. A blue cartwheel hat sat daintily atop her head and she carried a cascade of butterfly roses, gladioli petals and sweet peas.

Mr. Gordon Heim, of Hamilton, son, attended the groom. The ushers were Messrs. Charles Hopkins and Bertram C. Scott.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received the guests wearing an attractive ensemble of Iceland blue crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of carnations and Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and points east, the bride wore a two-piece dress of blue and white with navy accessories and corsage of white gardenias and Stephanotis. Upon their return they will reside in Moncton, New Brunswick.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hopkins, Miss Elizabeth Hoskins and Mr. and Mrs. G. D. C. Scott, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. G. Rutter, Miss Mary Scott and Miss Phyllis Wright, of Kingston; Group Captain and Mrs. Godwin, Ottawa; Miss Connie Patterson and Miss Ann Honey, Montreal and Miss Mary Bellour, of Brampton.

Tall Fashion Stories

While quite a bit of attention has been directed to clothes for the short woman, her taller sister has had to shift for herself. That sorry tall girls can handle their clothes problems beautifully is demonstrated by lovely Bunny Walters who is over six feet tall but who doesn't let that look it, thanks to her clothes sense. Here she wears a slinky, figured and monotone fabrics. The waistcoat jacket and skirt are in black and white checked woollen tweed, the blouse of black crepe. The oval line of the vest is interesting and the skirt is the sporty checked cap.

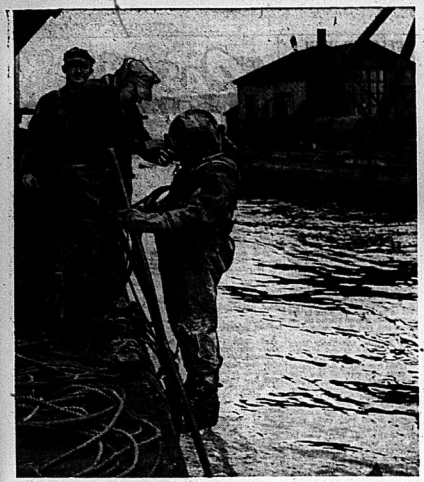
Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Unwise for Wife Has Alimony Affair With Husband's Girl Friend

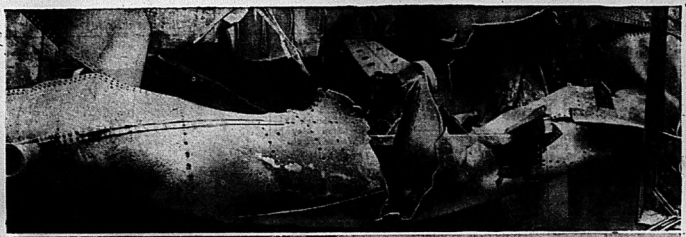
Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do men who have affairs with young girls ever forget or forgive them up for good? My husband for three years kept up a secret affair with a girl, not much older than our daughter. When I first heard of it he promised on taking her out several nights a week, and then he has not been at home as he said he was throughout.

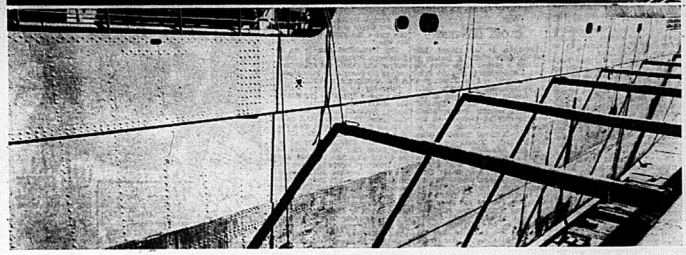


But I found out they still meet, because my daughter has seen him places with her. Now, many married 25 years and don't you think he'd be ashamed to run after another woman by this time. She works, but I'm sure she doesn't make enough to pay the bars and jewelry which she wears. And I know for certain she gets all of it from my settlement. He even has a key to it.

He has threatened me several times, and is very stingy with his money, whereas he was always very generous before. Would you advise me to tell this girl what I think of her and ask her to stop seeing my husband? I still love him and want him to help me make a go of our marriage.



A. R.



Judging from the experience of many wives, it is useless to call "other women." The more you would bring out his better traits, the more you would push your self respect, for example; and probably your husband for good. For it might create at last the situation that would encourage him to summon to force your husband to do what he, apparently, has not been able to by bring himself to do, and that is to stop seeing the girl.

The dignity and wisdom with which you handle the situation will do more to win back your husband than "nagging" or "calling on the other woman," for he may need understanding help in escaping from the girl. However, there is one thing about which you should and must be firm. Your husband is your responsibility and he is your responsibility and he is your responsibility and he

Pitchers Still Fool Hitters In Game's Upside-Down Year, As Cards and Yanks Roll On

Five of Yesterday's Nine Games Decided by One Run, Margin as Two Went Overtime

SOME HITTING

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

There's the story out of Buffalo, N.Y., about homesick Hunk Geary asking the Pittsburgh Pirates to sell him to Buffalo—and somehow, you know it had to happen this year.

It just fits into this scrambled season as the picture of a big league ball player pleading to be sent back to the minors.

In yesterday's nine games half-a-dozen of the hurlers served up good enough performances to win on practically any other day, but one of the tussels were decided by one run; two went into extra innings and 14 of the starting jobs were eight-hitters or better.

St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees stayed 5 and 6½ games in front of their pursuing pennants, respectively, with a couple of 1-0 decisions. The Cards did it to New York's woeful Giants on a combination six-hit job by Harry Gumbert and Howie Krist, although Ken Chase limited the hitter Brooklyn Dodgers to the Yanks, belted the Brownies of St. Louis back into sixth place on error by Jimmy Chartak and a double by Bill Dickey.

Another 1-0 job was chalked up by Mel Harder, a five-hit, 2-hour victory for Cleveland Indians over the Chicago Aldridge Mack's sixth-inning homer won the game.

18 Innings

With the help of a major league record-equaling total of 18 putouts by his outfield, Dizzy Dean whiffed Wyatt hurled brooklyn to a 2-0 decision over Cincinnati Reds with a four-hit job.

The 18-inning whitewashing was pained by the old Chicago Cub expert, Claude Passeau, who held the Braves to four safeties and gave them a 3-0 decision.

In fact, the only places the game thumpers knocked the rust in were Boston and Washington. In Boston the Red Sox pounded Jack Knott for six safe hits with homers. The Red Sox after trailing 7-2, tied up the opener on Bobby Doerr's four-bagger in the sixth and Pete Fox' three-run homer in the ninth and won out, 8-7, with a tally in the 10th. Vince Castino the White Sox catcher, made his first big league round-tripper a grand slam by clouting one with the bases loaded in the eighth. This gave the White Sox the verdict 6-3 on Thornton Rose's seven-hitter.

In Washington meantime, the Senators and Detroit Tigers went down in order six all told in the 10th inning, the Tigers hit the jackpot for eighth runs and a 13-6 victory.

LOIS CALCUTT HURLS ONE-HIT GAME TO WIN

Monnie Freeburn's Single Only Bingle Registered in Girls' Game as Bristol Win

CLOSE CONTEST

Returning to the mound, Lois Calcutt came within a margin of pitching a perfect game when she fired a one-hitter to give the Bristol "Bombers" a 5 to 0 win over the Bell-Sargents in the ladies' softball league fixture played at the Armouries last night. Monnie Freeburn's second inning single was the only hit garnered off the Bristol hurler's effort as both Lois Calcutt reired the side in order for six straight innings.

In the sgnanlime, Bill Davis' Bristol lassies were having some trouble of their own scoring runs off the deliveries of Bessie Donnelly, the Sargents' hurler; Bristols pushed over a first inning run as the result of a hit by Jean Smith and Waite and cinched the piece with two more in the fourth after they had been retired when Allison, Calcutt and Vickers had struck out in succession to push three over the fourth base mark. The remaining winners' fifth run on Elliott's one base knock.

Bristol batsmen fielded strongly behind Mrs. Calcutt's one-hit pitching effort as Lois whiffed four while Bessie Doolittle struck out six. Hits were rather scarce, however, as the winners collected but five safeties in all against Bristol with a four-hit job.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 123

By SAM GORDON
The Ekister

Hi, Tools, Let's step out to second round bids. Take along the next lesson in Horse Sense bridge. It is number 23. It reads: All subsequent bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N.

T-A-N means takeout, assist, notrump. Look first for a takeout, then with no more takeouts or assist. With no more takeouts or assists, bid no-trump. That is, if you do not pass.

That's how you choose your first bid. That's the way you pick out your bid when you have a second chance. That's your guide for selecting your bid in any round of bidding.

An opening bid of one in a suit shows at least five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable suit. A responding bid shows at least three tricks with two high cards.

If partner responds with a takeout to a new suit, it is forcing for one round. Any other response without a jump is not forcing.

A suit of four cards with two top faces is biddable. With two equal length suits, first bid the higher rank. Then bid the other.

Sure tricks are ace (one), K Q (one), A K (two). A high card is any ace or king or queen. A trick is any high card or short card.

You have this hand:

♠A Q 6
♥A Q 9 3
♦K J 10 4

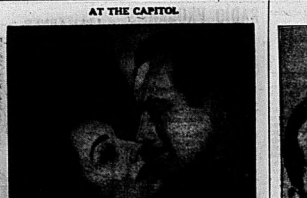
You have a biddable suits of the same length, two sure tricks, five high cards. You have six tricks; five high cards and a short card in clubs. Your opening bid is one heart.

Suppose partner responds with one spade, a takeout in a new suit. That forces you to keep the bidding open for one round. Following T-A-N, your second round bid is a takeout to two diamonds.

That gives you one slant on a second round bid. But don't go away folks. Hang onto this hand for a few days. We are going to use it some more to show still more with any first response.



Bridge is a grand game when you treat it right. Try it some time.

AT THE BELLE

"FLIGHT FOR FREEDOM"

A thrilling chapter in the secret history of naval intelligence is the unusual basis of "Flight for Freedom", which opens at the Belle for Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray, now at the Belle Theatre screen.

Filled with exciting glimpses of aerial warfare and peacetime round flights, the story turns on a flying romance which becomes involved with U.S. espionage in the South Pacific at the time when the Japs were illegally fortifying the mandated islands.

Miss Russell, MacMurray and Herbert Marshall are the trio of fliers concerned in the romance, with the girl trying to make up her mind between the two men, both of them are in love with her. Believing she has come to a final decision, she starts out on what is to be her last flight, a solo trip around the world. But the irony furthermore, because of her how vital it is for this country to know just what the Japs are up to in the South Pacific, and arranges for her to conveniently become lost while flying in that region.

Actually, she is to land at a remote island where a naval vessel will pick her up—after navy planes have scoured the area searching for her—and incidentally photographing Jap bases and airfields. But she is not about to take off from New Guinea the day the start of the trip she finds out the Japs know of the whole plan.

It is too late to alter arrangements and the girl knows by important it is for this country to have its information in case of war with Japan. There is but one thing for her to do, and she does it, bravely and cheerfully, in a gripping climax to an unusual picture.

David Hempstead produced the RKO Radio film, with Nathan Mendes directing. Edward Ciannelli, Walter Kingsford, Matt McHugh and Damian O'Flynn are featured.

Fred MacMurray and Rosalind Russell are the principal actors in the romance which so brightly covers RKO Radio's "Flight for Freedom".

The Belle latest news from home and abroad, and Walt Disney's outstanding 1943 cartoon carton, "Pull Out, Pall In" complete the program. Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Ape Man"

Strange situations fill the story of "The Ape Man," the spine-tingling Monogram drama which comes to the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight. The sinister Bela Lugosi is starred, and his supporting cast includes Wallace Ford, Louise Currie, Henry Hall, Minerva Urecal, Ralph Littlefield, Emil von Horn, J. Farrell MacDonald, Geo. Kirby and Wheeler Oakman. The picture was produced by Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz, and William Beaudine directed. The screenplay is by Harvey Gates from the pen of Barney Sarecky who also acted as associate producer.

"They All Kissed the Bride"

A tender romance wrestled in gayety . . . a joyous picture warmed by the touch of "heart" that makes love stories memorable . . . a love story that tells in a thrilling new way the things that Eve told Adam!

They All Kissed the Bride" is a gay comedy of love . . . of a girl with a career who preferred a career . . . and of a guy who needed a slave! With Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas starred, the new comedy opens at the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight. Alexander Hall directed, with the same swift, sure restful tempo which made box-office sensations of his "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" and "This Thing Called Love." Supporting players include Roland Young, Billie Burke and Allen Jenkins. P. J. Wolfson penned the love-and-laugh screen play.

Little Benny's Note Book

Mrs. Ribbles came to see ma this afternoon with her funny looking little boy with the big glasses, and ma said, Benny, take little Lorrence outside with you so he can play with the other children.

Ma thinks good sight, I cant take that kid out, the fellows would all ask me where I got him. And I said, I'll take him up in the woods and show him my stamp albun and things.

How nice, Mrs. Ribbles said, how play nicely Lorrence. At the first sound of any arguing I'll make you come right down again. Lorrence has quite a strong little personality and insists on having his own way exclusive of the desires of others, she said.

Giving me a idea to make him start arguing so his mother would call him down and I could go out with the fellows, and as soon as we got up in my room I said, What side are you on?

How do you mean, what side of what? Lorrence said, and I said, Civil War or war of secession. Don't you even know which side you're on? I said.

Sure I'm on our side, of course Lorrence said, and I said, I'm not. I'm for the Germans and the Japs.

Then so am I, Lorrence said, sing Hoogah, G whatever talk about your stubborn little guys. And I said, Then you don't know what you're talking about because I'm for our side, so you must be a darn traitor.

I dont care, do you? Lorrence said, and I said, Good night dont you care if you're a traitor or not, what kind of a darn little sap are you?

Yelling it loud as anything, and ma called up, Benny, I'm ashamed of you, you dont hear little Lorrence raising his voice like that.

Proving it may take two to make a fight, but one's enough just to get mad.

Toronto, July 24 — (CP) — Earl McCready has been part of the Canadian wrestling scene long enough to rate a brief biographical accolade. Such a chronicle must include his early years in a village near Belleville, Ont., ably quickly over his reluctant toil as farmhand at Amulet, Sask., and dwell on the shining day Earl sighted a correspondence school advertisement — "Handle big men easily."

Thus his wrestling career began. Today, at 36 (a wrestler's prime) Earl can look back upon 15 years in which victories always outnumbered reverses, assured him an annual income of more than $5,000. The successes are too frequent to enumerate, but one is worth embellishment. It was in Regina's Exhibition Stadium that he won the title of lightweight champion of the old college try because the Boers were throwing troops into the ring. Creasy thought the cops were kidding, all Boers vanished when 300 policemen crowded round the ring. In this dime novel atmosphere Earl went to work. "I was never so brutal with an opponent before or since," he told the Toronto Star. "The police were delighted. They said I had saved them from a most difficult and perilous situation.

Meegan's face sobered then when she thought she would like to shake Paul from his apathy, shake him into an awakening of his deeper feelings. If he would touch her with desire; if he would speak the things his deeper feelings had him... But he sat grinning at her with gentleness and kindness and, if he had not changed, eagerly anticipating the coming food. If thus married Paul, they could sit thus at their dining room table for the next fifty odd years, he munching at her with gentleness and tolerance and being hungry, she leaning forward, her excitement over some trivial thing meeting a ghastly inertness on his part, his common pact. She thought, in her shocked sense is wrong. I'd rather be dead than married to him. I'd be fifty odd years dying slowly.

She said, "I'm embarrassed that my train for Richmond leaves before Paul. I've checked the schedule and that's how it is. You'll have about half an hour to wait. That is, if you're going back this afternoon."

"I'm going back."

"I hate to rush off like this but I don't know when I'll see Mother and Dad again. My training gets stiffer."

"You like flying, don't you?"

"I'd rather fly than eat. I didn't like it at first and I was scared to death. You don't admit that until basic is over."

"I think you'll make a good pilot Paul. You're cool and I've never seen you lose your head. You take things as they come."

"I don't think my instructor thought that for a long time. I expected to be washed-out any day. It takes me a long while to get something but when I've got it, I keep it."

During luncheon they talked a little of the island. Paul asked about Adele's tennis and Van's golf score and how was Toby getting on. Meegan felt her little string up. The conversation of these two faces around her no longer seemed attractive and animated but dull, as dull as Paul's face. And rather than wishing to prolong her visit she wished she had not come at all. A pain lay somewhere in her, the sick pain of disappointment. When would she learn that it was futile to hope that the "next time" she saw Paul she would care for him, see Paul she had been wrong and that some magic had wrought her by distance that would make her see in a fairy-tale-like revelation that he was the man for her?

After luncheon they walked until it was time to get a taxi to the station. It was better to walk without the thought. A hundred little things, comic and tragic and a minute or two, caught her eye. Had she been with anyone else, she thought, she would have talked about them. But Paul walked stiffly beside her, only grinning at her now and then to let her know he knew she was still with him.

In the station they stood near the gate, Meegan's futile attempts at conversation smothered by the wailing of a fat baby in the arms of a disgruntled young mother.

Paul said, "Mother and Dad are coming down to see me get my wings. I get through..."

"I've heard it's a wonderful sight."

"It's something to see, all right. But I'll write you more in detail about that later."

"I hope you make it, Paul. I know it means a lot to you."

"Thanks. Well, this looks like good-bye, doesn't it?" He moved closer to her and held out his hand. "It was swell, seeing you, Meegan. Remember me to the gang at the island. I will. I wish you'd change your mind."

She stood on the toes of her blue pumps and kissed his cheek coolly. "I'm sure about the things I said. Very sure, but I'll write. You'd better go now. You can't miss that train. Your father and mother are meeting it."

"I wish you were . . well, sort of going along."

"I can't this time. Remember me to them. You'll have to hurry."

"Good-bye."

He ran awkwardly, his bag flapping against his legs, his big brown hat dancing tentatively on his head. Poor Paul, dear Paul, so wrong and yet so right. So wrong for her, so right for another girl. She found herself flung headlong into the sad, sick feeling of being utterly alone. You can stand in a station that was fast becoming the centre of the world and feel that you are the only person in the world.

When the train moved, she turned and began to walk into the waiting room when she was conscious of a person walking beside her. She glanced up quickly, a rather hostile glance, and saw Payne.

"Hello," he said. "You're the last person I expected to see here. I've never think of you as having any life except the one on the island."

Meegan said, "I rarely do."

It was curious to see him away from the island and from Clare and the house in which they lived and in uniform. He seemed taller, broader, fairer, his smile not slow but startled but the quick white flash of a spontaneous smile that so warmed her. It was as if she had never turned cold in her life. They were walking together. Payne with a surprise in his voice at the aliveness of him making her feel once again that she was living until she saw him. There was color in his face beneath his tan and his eyes were eyes that would miss nothing, that would take in everything about him in one swift, expansive comprehending glance. And all at once the people ceased to be slowly moving clods and became alert, intelligent people in a station that was fast becoming the magnetic centre of the world.

"I was just putting a chap on the train," he said.

"So was I."

He stopped and looked down at her. "And then I was going back to my place and change and get some things together and make a few calls and drive down to the island. Are you driving or will you drive down with me?"

"No, I'm not driving. I was going back on the next train."

"But you're not. You're going down with me."

She nodded and smiled. It was so easy, too easy to smile. It was far too easy, too, to feel that they were lovers meeting, terribly glad to see each other and planning a wonderful afternoon together.

They came out into the crowded street and walked side by side to his car. In the car he said, "And they say that coincidences never happen."

"They rarely do when you want them to."

"Don't they?" He laughed. "You wanted this one. It's a long, comfortably trip back by train and bus."

Driving through the crowded city absorbed him until he stopped the car before an old town house on a shady street.

"I have a small place here. A bachelor. In Washington you're extremely lucky to have a place of your own. Won't you come in while I attend to a few things and make some calls?"

They walked up a colonial staircase and Payne opened the door into a comfortable, cool, dim living room. The deep chairs, the large mahogany desk, the filled bookcases, the colored etchings on the beige wall and the large crystal ashtray spoke for the taste and ace of its occupant. But in place there was nothing of Clare. There was nothing to say there or to see strange and there was nothing which reminded those who knew or who had met her, not even a photograph of her. There was nothing.

She was conscious of Payne's sigh, the sigh of a tired man who had come home, as she pulled off her gloves and walked to the window.

"It's a very domestic scene you'll be from there," he said.

Looking out the window, she smiled. "You have a farm, a nurse and I'm trying to teach a little boy how to ride a bike."

He smiled. "She's been trying to teach him for a week. I've been following his progress. He falls off, loses his courage. After a while he tries again."

Meegan looked back to him. "Please don't bother about me. I'll be all right. I'm always all right when I see books."

"You'll have to tell me about the newer ones. I never have time to read."

She laughed, "I don't think I'll stay long enough to make a report."

He was walking toward the door beyond which lay his bedroom where he stopped and chuckled. "Then take a few of them with you. It won't be forgiven me unless you do. Away from the island you're probably like a fish out of water. And I'd like to get in a swim today."

As she turned to look out the window again she knew that he was still standing by the door. Presently he opens' it and went in and closed it and she heard his voice as he was speaking over the telephone.

Battle-Line Close-Ups

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Central Sicily, July 21 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Battle-line close ups:—

A group of young staff officers on brigade staffs has been doing a magnificent job keeping the Canadian Brigades rolling forward in their headlong push into Sicily.

Brigade Headquarters have not settled down for more than a night or a few hours during the day. Without sleep and working at top speed, the staffs were kept going somehow.

Among the officers on these staffs are Captain Mike Darr, Stratford, Ont., Lieut. Art Curlis, Welland, Ont.

Capt. Mike Webber of Ottawa who was with the Signals unit and the Spitsbergen Expedition in 1941, is also a Brigade Signals officer here.

A French-Canadian regiment is using mule cart trains to bring up stacks of equipment needed immediately. Night and day 25 mule carts crawl along the road with the mules urged on by the shouting voice and the whip of a French, Italian and English curses.

The toughest prisoner of war assignment: Sgt. Jack Ilfett of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and seven of his men had to march nearly 30 miles over the line in fierce heat and dust with 750 prisoners in tow. At the time there were no vehicles available.

With Ilfett were Cpl. Doug Post, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; and Pte. Charlie Gerrie, Hush, Man., both of Milton Ont., and Herb Martin, Cobourg, Ont.

The Italian prisoners finally got their own trucks, coming in one sector. They don't like hooting back to prisons of war camps any more than their guards so they are 25 per cent of their crew, and filled the tanks with Italian gasoline. Driven by Italian soldiers, the trucks made parallel course over the forward areas to prisoner of war camps.

Palermo's Fall Pinches Off Main Routes

By SGT. LESLIE L. SIMPSON

The fall of Palermo, Sicilian capital, to American armored forces, moving more swiftly than did the once-vaunted Nazi Panzer units headed at the outset of the war, does more than "write off" the war for Italy.

It clamps a powerful, steel-shod screen in the two main Sicilian inland communication routes north and south of the Peloritan Mountains, and therefore the exact ward on either will take Axis forces on the flank. An indicated 15-mile further Canadian advance from the Ramacca region to the east centre of the Allied line toward Adrano would turn the inshore end of the Nazi line on the south and southeast slopes of Mount Etna. Simultaneously, the advance at Catania.

Naxi retreat into the jumbled hills of the Messina Peninsula and her the triple Allied pressure is closely impending, with small prospect that any considerable part of the shattered Axis armies in Sicily can escape to the Italian mainland. They are dependent for re-inforcements and supplies on such small trickles of aid as can reach them at night across the Straits of Strait in light surface craft. There is virtually no airlift remaining open to them in all Sicily.

Northeast Objective Now.

How long it may take to mop up the last Axis resistance in Northeastern Sicily can only be guessed at; but it well may be only a matter of days. West of the American break-through in the north coast at Palermo, there is little reason to expect any major fighting. And just westward are the Italian with its harbors, its network of hard-surfaced roads and railways and its span of only 86 miles to Cape Bon in Tunisia is already pointing an ominous Allied threat at Sardinia, Corsica and the southeastern coast of Axis invaded France itself.

Mountains, Barrier

Western Sicily is the logical first advance base for the mounting of that drive to liberate Continental France. It seems obvious that the return to France when it comes will be by the shortest route, not British seaports, with French troops in the van. Giraud has pledged himself to that.

Next Steps Indicated.

The first step in Sicily now has been taken. The next to Sardinia and Corsica cannot be long delayed to complete a land-based Allied stranglehold line about Italy proper to the west.

Both are in a virtual state of siege now. From bases in Northwestern Sicily Allied planes can sweep the Mediterranean to Libyan area that wash Italy's south and east coasts. Allied naval power based on Sicily can range those Italian waters at will with little fear of what is left of Italy's once powerful fleet, Sardinia and Corsica are no longer a trap for their isolated Axis garrisons is Sicily proved, and it reinforces as Sicily proved, and it reinforces even a token resistance.

Well adapted in terrain for making troop concentrations, both islands—and particularly Sardinia—have good airfield sites from which the whole Continental coast from Toulon to Genoa is in fighter-protected bomber range. And Corsica is only 12 miles from Italy's mainland Italian invaders. It obviously offers brilliant prospects of a quick Allied advance to within 100 miles of the mainland coast of Northern Italy.

Canadians Told To Be Friendly With Foe Civilians

By SCOTT YOUNG

London, July 24 (CP)—Canadian troops in Sicily were told officially by their commanders not to make the invasion most effective they must attempt to make friends with the Italian people by respecting their religion, making sure the harm is done to art treasures and monuments and not wantonly destroying churches and women.

A booklet issued to the Canadians in both England and Sicily and also—believed issued to British and American troops in Sicily, tells them, "You will know how to deal with the Italian as a fighting man, but your attitude and conduct toward the Italian people can help or hurt Italy's military resistance, shorten the war and determine relations with them afterward."

Regarding Italian customs, the booklet said the people love games, but believe in revenge. They can be cruel and are not weaklings.

"As to the women, the less you have to do with them the better it will went on. "The men are jealous, the code of morals is strict and the women are practically unknown except in the larger towns or villages . . . Even the most harmless behavior on your part will arouse suspicion and give rise offense, while anything in the nature of courting is to look for trouble and to get it."

Seeds of Fair Play.

The booklet says the Italians respect the Canadians as fighting men and realize all they believe in our sense of chivalry and fair play. Regarding propaganda, it says: "Axis to injure or even destroy them and fasten the blame of vandalism on us. You will see to it that this sort of thing is not allowed to happen. We will want the co-operation of these ordinary Italians once we have rid them of their Fascist bosses."

The booklet traces the size of Italy, its population, principal cities, climate, and the Kingdom's history from the time of the Roman Empire.

Fascism, it said, "is not in the least like our Conservative, C.C.F. or Liberal parties" and in simple language gives a brief outline of fascism's development in Italy.

The Canadians were told that because of the "lies and deceit" the propaganda forced upon them for years by Mussolini many Italians are not anti-Axis but are not sense of patriotism.

One section is devoted to the Pope, the Vatican and the Roman Catholic Church's history. It points out that the German and Italian people have been told the British people are anti-religious, and "your attitude and behavior can disprove it."

The troops were advised to make the best use of their time in "study and research" of Italian art treasures.

Drunkenness Rare.

Typical Italian food and drink are described and the Canadians were told drunkenness is rare and is considered disgraceful.

Dress, currency and customs are described and the Canadians were warned that "in Sicily be careful not to praise or admire a person or animal or thing too openly" because it sometimes happened that to the object of praise may be attributed all your wrestly and you may be shunned or even attacked."

The Canadians were told to keep to the right of the road as in Canada and were given a map of the Mediterranean and etching with a comprehensive glossary of common Italian words and phrases.

Among them were: "If you deceive me you will be punished," "Where is the mayor?" "Have any soldiers passed?" "What kind?" "Sorry, we cannot help it," and "Excuse me."

The booklet concludes: "You will find that you can learn much from the Italy of the past and have a message of hope and freedom for the Italy of today. Do not waste your opportunity."

GUNMAN KILLS 5 INCLUDING JUDGE

Ogden, Utah, Scene of Bloody Deeds, Which End in His Capture

Ogden, Utah, July 24 (AP). — A gunman killed five persons—one of them a district judge who had granted the assailant's wife a divorce —in bloody attacks in two Ogden homes, then fired a final shotgun blast at the police station where he was captured early today.

The dead:

District Judge Lewis V. Trueman, 53; Mrs. Jane Stauffer, 39; Mrs. Burton Allred, 40, of Layton; Mrs. Stauffer's mother; Mrs. Betty (Ol) A. Brooks, a neighbor of Mrs. Stauffer; Sam Nelson, 40, another neighbor.

Mrs. Stauffer's husband, Bert Stauffer, 36, was critically injured, and Mrs. Brooks' husband, F. Dale Brooks, was shot in the hand.

A policeman was nicked in the ear by the final blast at the police station.

Sheriff John R. Watson said the gunman was Austin Cox, Jr., of Ogden. He said Cox had recently obtained a divorce in Judge Trueman's court. His estranged wife husband, Watson said, of beating her and of ence trying to tear her tongue out.

With a manhunt on after the shooting, Cox was taken into custody up unnoticed behind the police station.

John A. Smith, assistant prosecutor marshal of the Ogden area, on duty at the station, said Cox entered the door, his 12-gauge shotgun in his hands.

One shot went wild, and Smith said he jumped at Cox, knocking the gun to the ground. Other officers rushed to aid him.

THE WAR TODAY

(By DEWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

When we put the magnifying glass on the scattered events of the War we become acutely aware that we are involved in numerous individual crises, each with a dramatic angle. Typical—the sort of hot-spots one jots down and studies in one's head as a reminder to keep an eye on them for specific developments—and here, apart from the Allied avalanche sweeping Sicily, are some worth watching:

Italo-German relations: Indications increase that Hitler and Mussolini may be close to a parting of the ways, due to Hitler's inability—or disinclination—to give badly needed additional aid to a stooge who has ceased to be useful.

Morale of the Italian people: This interlocks with the preceding crisis. There's no doubt that a vast number of Italians hate both Hitler Mussolini and the war.

Relations between the Vatican and the Allies: Possibly the term "crisis" is too strong in this case in connection with the aftermath of the bombing of Rome. However, it certainly is a matter of moment when there's any difference of opinion between the leaders of the United Nations and His Holiness, the Pope, to whom a world-wide religious empire looks for guidance.

Red drive on Orel: The next reinforcement of this city, in face of fierce Reds resistance, represents more than a threat to a single strong point and the great German army defending it. Orel is the pivotal fortress for hundreds of miles of the Nazi line south of Moscow. Its fall might presage a collapse or Hitler's entire right flank, against which the Reds are believed to be massing for a counter-thrust.

Turkey's neutrality: If the Allies do invade the Balkans, will the Turks at long last abandon neutrality and join in, or at least permit passage of United Nations troops through Turkish territory? That might happen, for the Turks are the friends of the Allies. In any event it would be a momentous development.

Invasion of Kiska: We probably shall see an American amphibious operation against the Japanese occupied Aleutian Island soon. While this isn't a major crisis, it's of great importance, and the last hostile soil the Japs have in these American Islands.

Munda and Salamaua: Munda, on New Georgia, and Salamaua on New Guinea Island in the Southwest Pacific are probably reported to be at last "in reach of capture." Violent fighting with all three arms—air, land and sea—has marked the battle for this strategic position. Our final assault may be under way even as this is written. Westward in the great island of New Guinea United States forces are driving northward against another important Japanese base—Salamaua, of bloody history.

Possession of Munda and Salamaua might provide the additional leverage to oust the Mikado's forces from Kolombangara, main base of the Southwest Pacific.

$3,890,000,000 WAR BILL PASSES

Committee on War Expenditures Granted Leave to Continue Work

By FRANK PLEARY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 23.— (CP) — Parliament went forth in long and adjournment today while preparations are made for at least two Commons committees to carry on their work in the interval between now and Jan. 26, the date set for reassembly.

Today, the Commons returns to consideration of the non-war estimates which occupied it most of yesterday and which constitutes the business left to be disposed of.

Yesterday in a nine-hour sitting, the $3,890,000,000 war appropriation bill was passed after consideration at intervals over a period of months. The non-war estimates amount to something over $500,000,000 and at yesterday's sitting items totalling $71,391,251 were approved.

The special reconstruction committee reported to the House with a request that it be permitted to continue its work during adjournment. Its job is to consider plans for providing employment and rehabilitation after the war.

Committee to Continue

A request of the war expenditures committee to sit while the House is adjourned already has been granted. The special social security committee, which is expected to report tomorrow, has completed its main task of examining the proposed health insurance bill, t may ask leave to continue its work during the adjournment.

A debate developed yesterday on war service minister LaPointe's items in the war appropriation bill on censorship with Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative, leader, questioning the necessity of all the censorship measures being applied.

Gen. LaPlante assured Mr. Graydon censorship was concerned only with war matters. He said criticism of the judiciary such as was reportedly made recently by Mr. Ralston against the government for parliament, was not a matter for censorship.

Justice Minister St. Laurent had spoken "without reflection" when, earlier in the House last month about Miss Macphail's statement, he said he would bring it to the attention of the censors.

Mr. Graydon said the press had "taken issue" with the authorities as to the necessity of some censorship regulations.

He read a letter published in the Toronto Globe and Mail on June 22, 1943, signed by Dr. W. J. Rattenbury, South, a postal censor in the languages of Central and Western Europe from 1939 to 1943.

This letter referred to "inquisitorial censorship" and praised the Globe and Mail editorial of this subject published June 16.

The letter had been "widely speculated upon in every part of Canada," said Mr. Graydon and he thought the minister should tell the House just why certain drastic restrictions were necessary.

A "colonial resignation" of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was necessary to clear the Board of suspicions of partisanship, Mr. Graydon suggested. He said Rene Morin, of Montreal, Chairman of the Board, was a former Liberal member of parliament and E. M. Chapleau, of Ottawa, a member, had recently presided at a Liberal meeting.

I want to buy a jeep—and so does every other soldier in the Canadian Army.

No other piece of mechanized equipment has captured the imagination of the infantry such as was reportedly made recently by Major-Agnes Macphail, former member of parliament, was not a matter for censorship.

Justice Minister St. Laurent had spoken "without reflection" when, earlier in the House last month about Miss Macphail's statement, he said he would bring it to the attention of the censors.

Mr. Graydon said the press had "taken issue" with the authorities as to the necessity of some censorship regulations.

He read a letter published in the Toronto Globe and Mail on June 22, 1943, signed by Dr. W. J. Rattenbury, South, a postal censor in the languages of Central and Western Europe from 1939 to 1943.

This letter referred to "inquisitorial censorship" and praised the Globe and Mail editorial of this subject published June 16.

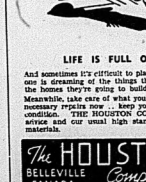
The letter had been "widely speculated upon in every part of Canada," said Mr. Graydon and he thought the minister should tell the House just why certain drastic restrictions were necessary.

A "colonial resignation" of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was necessary to clear the Board of suspicions of partisanship, Mr. Graydon suggested. He said Rene Morin, of Montreal, Chairman of the Board, was a former Liberal member of parliament and E. M. Chapleau, of Ottawa, a member, had recently presided at a Liberal meeting.

Letter Pays Tribute to Dr. Faulkner And Associates for Their Work In Annual Tonsil Clinics in North

Bonarlaw, Ont. (Special) — The gate in 15 speckled trout that we following angling jaunt has been received from Fred D. Peake of Toronto Public Schools:

Many Canadian citizens are making donations and sacrifices to build up the youth of our country, but we know of no more worthy or important work than the Annual Tonsil Clinic carried on by Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner since 1871 at the request of the Red Cross.



I have had the privilege of accompanying Dr. Faulkner's party on two trips through our far northern Country. This year our former Minister of Health was fortunate in securing the services of Dr. J. G. McPhedran, of Toronto, his personal physician, and Dr. Joseph Chant, or Belleville, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, who has been chief surgeon since the clinic started, and has always been most willing to give his services and time to the cause. Dr. Anderson, of Bancroft, also extended his helping hand, and seemed most willing to help the boys and girls in his locality to retain good health.

Dr. Jeff Hill, Dr. Coe Hill, Dr. Faulkner and his party removed tonsils and adenoids from 27 boys and girls who through no fault of theirs, were unable to have the operation through lack of the necessary funds at the present time. The doctors concerned make no charge for their services. Their main concern is to build up strong boys and girls in the north where the land is poor and where these young Canadians have not the city advantages.

We were all delighted with the scenery in this part of Ontario. The lakes, rivers and evergreen trees were pleasing to the eye and the streams seemed to be well supplied with game fish. At Coe Hill, Mr. W. Henry Gilley, a former reeve of the Township of Wollaston, for seven years, gave the whole party a sumptuous trout dinner. Mr. Charles Rollins, ex-Warden of Hastings County and also of Coe Hill, en ter after their operations.

Victoria, said last night he has instructed his counsel to "take no further steps" in connection with the mandamus proceedings against Maj. Alex Lewis, chief electoral officer of Canada.

Mr. Frost, a candidate for re-election, said the mandamus proceedings would be started unless steps were taken to obtain the vote of members of the reserve army in Military District No. 2 (Kingston) who leave Sunday for military camp at Ormsby Ranges near Ottawa. Subsequently it was announced that he would break camp Aug. 3 in time to vote the following day.

I want to buy a jeep—and so does every other soldier in the Canadian Army.

No other piece of mechanized equipment has captured the imagination of the infantry such as was reportedly made recently by Major-Agnes Macphail, former member of parliament, was not a matter for censorship.

Soldiers pat their sides affectionately and speak to them like a jockey urging a horse in the stretch. We all want to purchase one after the war; and if the army ever decides to place them on sale in army surplus stores, they'll be swamped with orders.

If the army decides to keep them for the permanent force, the Willys Company will be sadly lacking in business acumen if they don't maintain their manufacture for public consumption.

Women don't understand why soldiers love jeeps. Exceptions are the CWACS, who, as soldier replacements in the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, are assigned to drive them.

The other day I said to my wife: "Lord, I'm going to buy a jeep after the war. It'll be great for getting around."

"Like fun, you are," said she. "Imagine me in a jeep."

But, of course, she had never ridden in one. A ride would convince her.

Jeeping is Great Sport

Jeeping, even in line of duty, is great sport. Their four-cylinder engine has plenty of stamina. Their three speeds forward, with a special four-speed drive in low gear for particularly rough going, will take you anywhere—and back again.

Power? They've got it to spare.

A few weeks ago, with Capt. Jean Marchand, the P.R.O., I had the occasion to ride in a Jeep through flooded areas in the Eastern Townships, where a reserve army unit was helping civilians during the state of emergency.

Roadbeds were washed away, bridges impassable, water gushed through fields and across the highways. The Jeep ploughed on more than 200 miles without a hitch. No other vehicle could have done so. Highway officials said that roads were impassable.

Fails Big Car from Mud

At one point, where we were riding in bulb-high mud, we came across as big, sleek passenger car, that had sailed in, and got.

"Can you help me?" the driver hailed us.

Imbued with faith in our little Jeep, we decided to try. Slipping into the four-wheel drive, we slithered up to the big car, bumper to bumper. The jeep was through. The car was pushed onto a firmer surface of highway, seemingly loafing under an inferiority complex. Then we, with exhaust belching smoke as though to invite oblivion.

The Jeep proudly bounced along its way, emblematic of army toughness.

The Jeep is not an entirely new development. It had its inception about ten years ago when the U.S. decided that a machine should be used to replace motorcycles for reconnaissance.

Specifications for a 1,300 pound vehicle were set to 135 combined liters. Two companies answered and one of them received an order for 70 units.

The cars were promising but too light, so the Army increased the weight to around 2,300 pounds. More of the vehicles were built. They proved their mettle and they are still rolling off the assembly lines by the hundreds.

Other armies, including the British, Russian, have also adopted the popular Jeep. The famed 8th Army used them in some and Russ Stormovi over 2,000 miles of the African desert. Russia uses them to transport arms to the front. Soviet Russia has used one at Casablanca.

How it Got Its Name

Where did the Jeep get its name? Well, it was christened by the Army Ordnance Department, who gave the darlings were known as General Purpose vehicles; or as it would appear in official papers: "Vehicles, General Purpose." Just say those brushes would appear as "Brushes, tooth," and whiner hats as "Caps, head."

The initials GP (for General Purpose) were pronounced as letters and the vehicles and they were known as Jeeps. From this name the affectionate enough for the boys who loved them, and the name lengthened the GP to Jeep.

When the model "G" went out of existence as a tidal wave of big car buying, the trend was toward longer, more luxurious, ever-more-pod pleasure cars.

If a guy back didn't own a big car, there wasn't many phone numbers in his little black book.

big car was a mark of success—even if the driver were on his way to the Government.

The jeep will change that, sure enough. There will be a few hollows in the army and those who have been accustomed to ostentation or whose duty compels them to ride in a jeep will not be able to own one, or a vehicle just like it.

There isn't much style to a rugged jeep but it gets around. It will be ideal after the war for running to the golf club, or delivering down to work, or even for taking a pretty girl for a joy ride. Commercial firms will be able to use them. What could be better for light delivery routes?

So there's an army on the jeep—and I want to make sure they get the prane they deserve.

Boys Violate Unwritten Law Of Barber Shop

Two small boys walked into a Belleville barber shop the other day. All the chairs were occupied and there were many customers waiting their turn. The boys, however, did not seem to realize that those who had arrived ahead of them had any rights under the unwritten law of "first come, first served" for as soon as one of the chairs was vacated the younger boy started towards it. The man whose turn it was was swifter, and the lad sat down again, but with the intention of waiting long. As a man stepped down from the next chair, the older boy urged fiercely, "Hurry up and get up there now; you missed the last one!"

Fighting Bitter In Yugoslavia, Berlin Declares

London, July 23 (CP)—The Berlin radio, acknowledging Allied successes in Sicily had touched off "bitter disturbances" in Italy, reported today Axis troops had fought a violent battle with Yugoslav partisans in Montenegro in which 10,000 of the guerillas were said to have been killed.

The fiercest fighting, said the German News Agency, DNB, was in the vicinity of the Komarnica valley, 50 or 60 miles southwest of Sarajevo.

The Reuters News Agency dispatch from Ankara, meanwhile, said growing unrest was reported in Greece, where many Greek officials and army officers reported to have abandoned their posts

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

(By ALAN RANDALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, July 23 (CP). — Even in the gun turret of a Lancaster life can be pretty serene — providing the luck is riding along. That's the verdict of Pit. Sgt. Jack Haywood, air-gunner from Port Arthur, Ont., who has just completed his tour of operations without any mishaps whatever.

He flew as an R.C.A.F. member of a record-breaking Aussis squadron and his instructor was Australian navy now. He bombed Berlin four times, did the same to Essen and hits his log-book to Dortmund, Karlsruhe, Stettin, Nurenburg, Lorient, Munich, Nantes and Frankfurt. Twice he went to Italy and once on the long trip to Pilsen in Czechoslovakia.

But listen to this: On all these trips he never fired his guns except when he was testing them. He saw only two night fighters and both of them were going the other way.

FO. Jerrold Campbell of Scotland, Ont., 22 year old pilot in Coastal Command, has taken a trip with a merchant navy convoy of the kind he gives protection to during his air trips. In return for such trips as Campbell's merchant navy men are taken on aerial escort patrols so they'll know how the protection they receive 'll carried out.

Usually the airmen making "return visits" board a convoy ship at one coastal port and disembark at the next Channel port of call.

When FO. Russ Harling of Winnipeg, shot down his second Nazi fighter in three days during the smashing raid on Cologne, he had to have been his last operational trip. But Russ wanted to hang on until his skipper, Pit. Sgt. Bill Gray of Vancouver, was through his tour and Harling's request was granted.

Harling has been twice rescued from the sea by emergency dinghy.

Ten bombs, sliding down towards one of the great workshops of the Schneider armament factory, are shown in one of the remarkable photographs taken at night by a bomber over a German target. The pictures were taken back by Flying Officer G. E. (Chick) MacIntosh of Winnipeg, a skilled pilot in the Moose Squadron. The pictures show the ten bombs eventually racing right on to the building the crew had been sent to hit.

With MacIntosh were FO. Larry Noble of Prince Albert, Sask., and Bill Joy of Mackey, Ont.; Sgt. Armir Lorine of Melville, Sask.; FO. Ken Harrold, Toronto, and Sgt. F. J. C. Hancock, Scotland.

At one Canadian station a strange place landed and out stepped what is well known as an "intrepid airman." He inquired of a nearby ground crew man who the station commander might be. The answer was, "Oh, some group captain."

The newcomer turned out to be none other than that same "group le". Group Capt. Henry Carscallen, of Hamilton, Ont.

Sicilian Notebook

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
(Associated Press War Correspondent)

With the A.E.F. in Sicily, July 23 —(AP)—Leaves from a war correspondent's notebook:

Come for a jeep ride east of Gela along the main southern coastal road of sun-bright Sicily. This is your war.

The asphalt highway is good except for a few bomb and shell craters. Lines of trees throw precious shade but you keep a watchful eye for German raiders.

There are several small Italian two-man tankettes lying burned out in the ditch. They look like something children would love to ride in. The Yanks on landing day found them easy pickings. A big tiger tank down below took a lot more working over.

Carts with refugees returning to their homes dot the highway.

The first city we come to is Vittoria. Its wide streets are almost deserted at midday. The houses are white and cleaner than Gela.

To the left of the road is a pillbox cleverly concealed as a cottage. The Italians have been adept camouflagers at their coastal defences.

Peasants along the road hold up their hands in a sign of victory. A few days ago they were holding up their hands in fear of capture. Their hearts are in neither sign. All they really want is to get back to their farms and be let alone. They are worn out with war and brutality, death and high taxes.

Across the ridge from Comiso lies Ragusa. Old men sit in chairs on sidewalk in the shade. Some church walls scarred with Il Duce's slogans. Two paratroopers await their turn in the barber shop while a little Sicilian flutters about, excited by the uniforms.

Canadians chat with a Sicilian family. The Canadians, who waited three and a half years in England before getting into this scrap, are indignant because the Italians refused to battle them and gave up so easily.

MUSSOLINI FORCED OUT

Martial Law Proclaimed By Marshal Badoglio; Mussolini Rumored Arrested

Change May Herald Italy's Bid for Peace

London, July 26 —(CP)— Martial law was proclaimed throughout harassed Italy today in a swift succession to a government shakeup which eliminated Benito Mussolini and his Fascist cabinet and installed the conservative Marshal Pietro Badoglio as premier.

King Victor Emmanuel made the change in the war leadership, the first major break on the Axis front and a possible prelude to an Italian bid for peace.

Unconfirmed Story of Duce's Capture

There was no Axis announcement of what had become of Mussolini but unconfirmed reports from Stockholm said he had been arrested while visiting the Germans.

Badoglio ordered the army to take over the preservation of public order throughout the country, forbade gatherings of more than 3 persons, directed the people to remain at work and empowered the troops to fire on any one who violated the instructions.

Hour by hour, developments in the situation which may hasten the end to the struggle into which Mussolini plunged Italy with the attack, as Germany's ally, upon France, June 10, 1940, were broadcast by the Rome radio and recorded by listening posts throughout the world.

Confronting by some of the gravest problems that the commander-in-chief of a beaten and dispirited army ever faced, with the belief widely current that only ruthless methods could keep the country in line, Badoglio began taking oath to serve the king as well as the dictator.

Mussolini frequently boasted of the militia as the strong arm of Fascism, organized by Benito June 24 to the party directorate, asserted that it represented an armed opposition to his regime.

The militia numbers 3 divisions and a long armored division.

In a Royal Proclamation broadcast to Italians last night, the King announced that he had accepted Mussolini's "resignation" and had installed 71-year-old Marshal Pietro Badoglio—bitter foe of Il Duce and Fascism — as head of a military government "to stand against those who have wounded the sacred soil of Italy."

"The war continues," the aged Marshal told the people in a proclamation announcing he had assumed supreme command of all Italian armies and calling on Italians to rally around the King.

But the country grew that Italy — her cities shattered, her empire vanished, internal unrest and violence growing, and a mighty Allied Army poised for the invasion — would shake the "guilty hierarchy" of Fascism and had taken the necessary steps toward peaceful peace.

The immediate effect on Germany and Italy of the end to Mussolini's 21-year reign as dictator and international bully could not be appraised yesterday afternoon.

Five hours after the Rome radio stunned Allied nations with the announcement, the Berlin radio was only to Mussolini. In 1923 it was incorporated into the army, but still kept its youth training and not to the king, as did the rest of the armed forces. In 1940 the militia men began taking oath to serve the king as well as the dictator.

Mussolini's Dismissal From Power Possible Prelude to Separate Peace

(By The Canadian Press)

From around the world today came speculation and assertion that the ouster of Benito Mussolini as premier of Italy had spelled out the prelude of a separate peace for Germany's Axis partner.

In capital after capital the reaction, although frequently only a semi-official, was the same. It was that a "softening" had now moved one step nearer to an exit from the war by Italy, and that it was natural, strategic or easier capitulation to marching Allied armies.

Some of the radios follows:—

LONDON: There was quick official reaction here since Italy had moved toward fulfilment of the conditions for unconditional surrender, the British and American governments would open peace term terms for "honorable capitulation." Meanwhile, King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Pietro Badoglio. At the same time, however, there was no evidence of an attitude by the Allies and wait for Italy to quit, but rather to "pour it on" for a swift finish.

OTTAWA: Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the resignation appears to be the beginning of the end of the Fascist regime," and added: "It is too soon to say what effect Mussolini's dismissal will have on Italy's withdrawal from the war, but it is certainly a step in the right direction."

WASHINGTON: Despite initial official silence, there was wide speculation that the King had named Marshal Badoglio to head the military government, the fact that more than nodded at the Churchill-Roosevelt invitation to the Italian people to rid themselves of their Fascist government. Since Badoglio is a Royalist and anti-Fascist, it was regarded in many quarters that his appointment might well be followed by dissolution of the Fascist party and a move for separate peace.

MOSCOW: The Russian people were electrified by the news of Mussolini's downfall. The immediate reaction, as heard in homes and on streetcars and subways, was that Germany had suffered a severe blow.

GERMANY: German propagandists asserted in press radio reports that Mussolini's exit was "among developments running counter to the Allies' wishes" their mainstrift was apparently was that the appointment of Badoglio's military government "does not imply any intention to resist continues unchanged."

CHUNGKING: There was rejoicing in the streets. Wall bulletins issued by Chinese newspapers attracted large crowds, and Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, addressing his government this morning, referred to the event. Like other members of the cabinet he appeared to be in high spirits.

ESSEN, COLOGNE AND HAMBURG SMASHED AGAIN

Concentrated Attack On Essen Krupp Works Was 57th City Has Suffered

DAYLIGHT RAID ON

London, July 26 (CP) — R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers made a concentrated attack on Essen Sunday night, while Mosquito aircraft of both British and Canada struck at Hamburg and Cologne and swept over northwest Germany, the Low Countries and France, it was announced today.

No Planes Missing

The Air Ministry listed 24 planes as missing in the far-flung overnight operations, but the R.A.F. communique said that three were R.C.A.F. bombers and one an R.C.A.F. fighter.

Five enemy aircraft were shot down, one of them by an R.C.A.F. Mosquito pilot.

The Air Ministry announcement said the raiders encountered good weather over the targets and that Essen and that preliminary reports indicated the bombing was concentrated and effective.

The great formations of night raiders scarcely had returned to their bases when fresh squadrons of Allied raiders swept out across the English Channel this morning to continue the unceasing aerial offensive—the greatest in history, — by daylight.

Sunday night's raids followed a mighty series of round-the-clock blows delivered by the R.A.F., R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Middle East Air Force, British and Canadian bombers striking at battered Hamburg Saturday night and the previous afternoon heaping destruction on the smoking ruins yesterday in their deepest penetration into Germany, the Ruhr industrial centre.

Essen, a vital industrial centre in the Ruhr, was raided by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F., the night of

The Board's order affects all canned fruits and vegetables products except canned soups, baby foods, jams, jellies and marmalades. Frozen and dehydrated products are not affected.

186 Tons Bombs Dropped at Buna — Runways and Dump Areas Strafed

5,000-TON SHIP HIT

Associated Press War Writer

Allied Headquarters, the Southwest Pacific, July 26 — The heaviest aerial assault of the Southwest Pacific war, a record 186 tons of bombs on Japanese positions at Munda, Gasmata and Buna, has been announced.

More than 200 planes with strong fighter escort participated in the attack, and only one failed to return.

Six hundred miles to the west, the Royal Australian Air Force executed the heaviest attack yet made on the Gasmata airdrome on the south coast of New Britain. Roaring in at dawn, Beauforts, Beaufighters and Bostons with Kittyhawks as cover, destroyed the radio station and grounded aircraft, and left fires and dump explosions and enemy personnel were thrown into confusion, Headquarters said. "Anti-aircraft positions were silenced."

Attacks against Japanese shipping continued, Americans intercepted an attack on Allied positions on Rendova Island a few miles south of Munda.

"The attackers were driven off with the loss of eight of their planes," the communique said. "Four others were destroyed in combat, but three of the pilots are safe."

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, July 26 — (AP) — Russian troops inspired by personal visits of Premier Joseph Stalin to the front, slashed through stubborn German resistance to advance 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 miles on the Orel front yesterday, and now stand within six miles of the Bryansk railway supplying the powerful Nazi base.

Thirty populated places were seized by Soviet and German propositions became even more precarious.

Front dispatches, broadcast by Moscow radio, said the Germans are preparing operations, it was disclosed, as the Red Army moved closer to the complete encirclement of Orel.

The German communique asserted that all Russian attacks yesterday had been frustrated, and that the Red Army suffering heavy losses in men and tanks.

Soviet assaults in the Caucasus and Lake Ladoga areas likewise were repulsed, it added.)

The new advances upon Orel were announced in a special communique.

Stubborn Opposition

The Russian gains were registered in the face of stubborn opposition by the German defenders, Moscow announced. The capture of German losses in the latest fighting were mounted to well over 2,000 dead and heavy losses of armored equipment.

Most rapid progress in the three-pronged drive on the city was made again in the direction of Soviet Bolkhov, pressing toward the railroad link to Bryansk and thereby cutting feeding men and material into the base and which is vital to the German if they are forced to evacuate the city.

South of Orel, the Russians said, Red Army troops were "breaking down stubborn resistance" of the Germans, dislodging the Germans from a number of points.

The Soviet advance, the bulletin said, was being supported by the Red Air Force, which was ranging "deep into the enemy's rear to strike at troop concentrations and supply depots."

The centre column of the Orel drive was credited with smashing to Germans defenses at Bolkhov, of the enemy. A large number of prisoners were taken, the communique added.

(Associated Press War Correspondent)

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 26. (AP)—Allied troops are squeezing tighter upon Axis last-stand defenses in the northern Sicily against bitter resistance, it was announced today, and American troops mopping up western Sicily have captured Trapani, 60 miles east of Palermo, and taken 7,000 more prisoners, including six generals, it was also announced.

"Pressure on the enemy was maintained in all sectors" Gen. Canadian, British and United States forces closing in on the Catania-Etna-Messina area, the Allied communique declared.

Canadians striking east from Central Sicily have announced that but their progress was slowed in the face of bitter resistance", it added.

Some units of the U.S. Seventh Army driving toward Messina are far to the east of Termini, and its capture consolidates the grasp upon the northern coastal area of the island.

More than 70,000 prisoners now are in Allied hands of whom 56,000 were taken by Americans. The latter figure generals and the air force alone, it was immediately identified.

To date, ten generals and two admirals have surrendered.

It was officially estimated that 3 1-2 German divisions and three Italian divisions were bottled up in the northeastern corner of Sicily. One of the Nazi units in the Messina bridgehead was identified as the 29th division, named for Gen. Count Hubert Gruenther, destroyed by the Russians at Stalingrad.

Allied planes keep up their incessant hammering and the Axis supply port of Milazzo west of Messina was blasted Saturday night with many fires started. Road objectives near Orlando also were hit.

Nine Axis aircraft were destroyed against loss of one Allied plane.

American units had all but finished the mop-up of western Sicily with occupation of Trapani during the weekend by armored forces. Soon fell into the hands of Marsala and Palermo, the other two main ports on the island.

Canadians in Fierce Battle

In a dispatch last night from Allied Headquarters William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported that Canadians engaged in bitter fighting in the centre of Sicily, but continuing their steady progress toward junction with the 5th Army.

"The Algiers radio Saturday night said that forces, including the 1st Canadian Infantry Division, driving eastward from Enna, now have linked up with the 5th Army in the Ca-

Veteran German Troops Put Up Tough Resistance to Canadians

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Gunners in Central Sicily, July 21 (Delayed)— (CP)—Cable) — Canadian attack in a 1-3 mile front in the moonlight against Japanese positions with tanks and artillery in the Enna region, Canadian infantry swarmed over the Canadian and British guns have battled their way forward.

Some of the 2 hours it has been difficult fighting in the mountainous country here and a stiff battle is being put up by German defensive troops using their familiar tactics in Tunisia and who have slowed down the Canadian advance greatly.

Some Germans, formations have been using machine-gunners under the screen of a Nazi rear-guard. Under the full moon crouching Canadian infantry pushed cautiously, hills, flattening out as German machine-gunners kept up a withering fire.

Then the infantry crawled forward in range to beat up a machine-gun post and press on to another hill. Field guns fired practically all night in support of the Infantry and tanks were moving up too. You could see the flashes of Canadian guns firing from the hills and hear the firing reached a thundering crescendo. Canadian observers when heavy concentrations were laid down.

The German artillery is stronger here than any they met to date in the Canadians' sector and keeps firing on the roads and tracks.

Canadian gunners by now were locating the enemy guns and firing on them as soon as they opened fire, creeping up on the Nazi guns too. Officers at Canadian Headquarters said elements of the Italian Livorno division were still resisting on the Canadian front. They are apparently living off the land and operating independently of the Germans.

The fighting is nearly every man he can to block the Canadians, including snipers. The whole rugged mountainous country is ideal for delaying action being fought by the Germans. The Canadian advance for some days probably will continue slowly in this territory.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

GOOD USE IS MADE OF CITY PLAY GROUNDS

The grounds and equipment for the East and West Belleville play grounds are fast being put into first class shape. Shooting and laughter accompany the use of slides, swings, teeters, ocean wave, etc., while more serious shooting and coaching marks the ball games.

Over 800 persons use the facilities in three days.

The supervisors are on the grounds regularly to provide program for all youths of the city girls and boys alike, from eight to fourteen years of age inclusive.

Many younger children are coming in accompanied by parent or guardian.

"The more the merrier," said Mr. Joe Short. "We will try to keep them all busy and happy. Later on we expect to try some evening events for adults, especially those employed during the day."

REV. D. McGINNIS SPEAKS AT FOXBORO

Returning as guest minister to the pulpit which he occupied during his student preaching days, Rev. D. McGinnis, of Milverton, near Stratford, delivered the evening sermon at Foxboro Presbyterian Church on Sunday. A graduate of Queen's University, Mr. McGinnis had acted as student minister at the Foxboro, Roslin and Fuller charge twenty years ago and during the day preached in both congregations. Rev. J. W. HARVESTING OF OATS NOW UNDERWAY

Indicating that the summer season is rapidly advancing, early oats throughout the Bay of Quinte district has had ripening with many fields already having been put under the binder. The stand of straw on oat fields sowed early is quite heavy with farmers reporting tieing up considerable twine in cutting operations.

The rapid advancement of the grain harvesting season is indicated by the fact that many farmers had to leave hay fields to cut their early oats. Many farmers in the Oak Hills district have practically all their early oats cut and still have 40 to 50 loads of hay in the fields.

J. HANNA CATCHES SWORDFISH

Continuing where successful Izaak Waltons left off last autumn, Mr. John Hanna and his son Robert brought back to the Bay of Quinte the season in Muscote Bay over the weekend, it is reported. Mr. Hanna and his son were trolling for the big fellows in the popular tourist fishing area when a 24 pounder hooked onto the latter's line and after a lengthy tussle was successfully landed in the boat. The big fellow measured exactly three feet, nine inches in length. It thus appears that the Hanna father and son Bean and company will have to trade to their locality.

Robert Hanna also hooked one of the big fellows but as the result of the luck which all fishermen dread, the muskie made a successful getaway.

Number of Proxies Received in City Is Not Known

Electoral officers in the ridings of West Hastings have no definite idea on the number of proxies which have been received from soldiers outside the province, it was stated this morning by Judge C. HOUSE CONCLUDES 6-MONTH SESSION

Raising of Old-Age Pension to $25 a Month Wound Up Army Pay Among Final Legislation

FLOOD OF ORATORY

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 26— The House of Commons today stood adjourned until Nov. 15 after a session of short of six months which ended with passage at 1 a.m. a flood of oratory on monetary reform and old-age pensions.

The House had been sitting morning, afternoon and evening since July 8, with two Saturday sessions.

Shortly before 10 p.m. Saturday, July 24, the House had been locked in oratory for two days on the Social Credit theories of the party's leader, Major C. H. Douglas.

Finish at 10.45 p.m.

In a few minutes the House, in committee of the whole, rushed through the final estimates, those for supplementary Railway, $10.43 p.m. Royal assent—had been given the estimates in the Senate.

Members of the New Democracy group, forming the Social Credit party, held the spotlight through the session. They urged that the government against any international agreement which would prevent the proper exchange of goods.

The debate on monetary reform was joined later by Arthur Slaght (L., Parry Sound), who voiced hope that in its future borrowing the government would go to the Bank of Canada instead of the

Mr. Ilsley told the monetary reformers that to borrow $1,000,000,000 from the banks would mean "Now the price ceiling control to

He said borrowing from the Bank of Canada was not inflationary than borrowing from the chartered banks. "The only money at less than one per cent interest.

Less Appropriations

Unprecedented appropriations of the Dominion's war purposes were the predominant feature of the session.

Parliament voted $5,500,000,000 to be spent in the fiscal year ending next March 31, and of that amount all but about $653,000,000 was for war.

Because ever since the war started made at the Dominion has been carried out by Orders-in-Council under authority of the War Measures Act, the government's legislative program was light.

Major items of government legislation were the following:

1. A war appropriation bill authorizing the expenditure of $3,-500,000,000 in the fiscal year;

2. A mutual aid bill authorizing expenditure of $1,000,000,00 on war supplies and services to be transferred to United Nations countries where they can be most effectively used for victory, but without reimbursement to Canada;

3. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board Act to consolidate the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, passed only in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

4. A bill to amend the Unemployment Insurance Act to raise from $2,000 to $4,000 the limit entitled to benefits to $2,400 (from $2,000) and to provide for the deduction of participants who are on piece work basis, $2,400.

5. A bill to authorize government grants to a national council on

7. The regular supply bill for normal government purposes slightly more than $600,000,000 provided for in the main estimates.

In addition to the legislation, and as a wind-up of the session, the House passed resolutions thanking ministers concerned the following

1. Arrangements for immediate legislation providing payment of a special war supplement to old-age and blind pensioners, and an adjustment of increasing the maximum basic rate of old-age pensions from $20 to $25.

2. An increase in the pay of women in the Forces to the scale of rates for men of similar rank in the Army, of $2.50.

Orslory and requests for information, and the informative statements by key ministers combined to flood nearly 6,000 pages of Hansard with the proceedings. Allied plans up the official journals of the session.

DREW CRITICAL OF CLARK'S WORDS

Prog. Conservative Leader Says His Party Plans to Make Conscription Anchor of British Connection

Wheatley, July 26. (CP.)—Col. John Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, said Saturday night that "Mackenzie King's support for the maintenance of British traditions have become a vital issue in the Dominion election that will be criticized remarks he had made in the past on Canadian-Dutch relations by Maj. James Clark, Speaker of the last legislature.

(Maj. Clark in a radio forum address in Detroit June 13 said he believed 40 to 45 per cent of Canadians favored political union with the United States.)

"Men have been held in custody, by a Liberal Minister of Justice Minister St. Laurent) without charge or trial, and was claimed should give comfort to our enemies," Col. Drew said.

"Mr. St. Laurent knows that no such statement can be justified since the beginning of the war has given such comfort to the enemy," he said. "Can this statement, as Mr. Clark's statement made over the Detroit radio station?

Col. Drew said Mr. St. Laurent's statement was made in the Italian and German broadcasts telling the people and telling the world in exact detail what Mr. Clark said in the Detroit speech.

"Could anything comfort the enemy more at a time when they are losing the war?" Col. Drew said.

The stand of the Progressive Conservative Party, Col. Drew said, is clear. By education, by conviction, by sentiment and practical measure, we intend to make Ontario the strong citadel of loyalty to the Crown and connection in Canada".

In another address at Wheatley, Col. Drew dealt with the proxy vote. The challenged anyone in the audience to find a single case where they had received proxies from overseas. There was no response.

DUSTER OF DUCE PUTS WASHINGTON IN WAITING MOOD

Speculation is Rife Step May' Mean Acceptance of Allied Invitation

ONLY ONE CHOICE

(By WILLIAM FRYE)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 26 (AP)—The Fascist collapse in Italy caused an Italy stunned Washington into temporary silence tonight. Official and high government officials took a "wait-and-see" attitude.

The White House, the War and Navy departments, congressional circle and the embassies—privately elated—put on a public poker face. Not a single high official of any Speculation was rife nonetheless. Some Victor Emmanuel and Badoglio have chosen to accept the invitation extended to the Italian people in their days ago by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt to oust the Fascist government and spare themselves further sacrifice in the war.

This remains the choice because, in the Allied estimate, it is not enough for Italy to be out of the war—the Allies must use their overwhelming power to give their forces and particularly the bombers now based in North Africa and bases from which to spring at Germany.

From Allied Standpoint

This is more important to the British-American combined chiefs of staff than the elimination of such supplies as Italy has been able to lend Germany, or even the new stresses that would result from the military machine as Italian garrisons were withdrawn from the Balkans, leaving that seething region to German occupation alone.

But Northern Italy in the hands of Allied conquerors, all Fascist activities suspended and the kind of remorseless and shattering destruction that marked a battled ball on one occasion struck the side of a house next door nearly causing an accident.

NOT SHOT FIRED AS PALERMO FELL

Italian Officers With Packed Bags Waited All Day to Hand Over City

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
(Associated Press War Correspondent)

Palermo, July 25 —(Delayed)— (AP)— Historic Palermo, capital and largest city on Sicily, fell today without firing a shot in its own defense to American infantrymen and armored columns converging from three directions.

Soldiers won the race trampling to the outskirts of the city about noon from the southwest after a 60-mile advance from Castelvetrano during which they had to halt three times to knock out harassing artillery pieces.

Happy that his forces avoided shelling into pulverization this city known throughout the world for its ancient churches, temples and monuments which make it a living tomb or Phoenician, Greek, Byzantine, Saracen, Norman, Spanish and early French civilizations, the American deputy comander under LA.-Gen. George S. Patton accepted the surrender.

Italian officers, bags packed, had been waiting all day to hand over the town of from 400,000 to 500,000 population. The Germans were out last night.

The harbor area has been heavily damaged by the Allied bombings. The city itself bore the scars of bombs but the damage is not as extensive as that visited upon a number of other Sicilian towns.

Troops who rolled into Palermo at dusk received a hearty welcome. The populace cheered, threw gifts of flowers and fruit and poured free wine in the greatest demonstration most of them had ever seen. Italian soldiers still in uniform lined the streets by the hundreds and joined in the cheers. Some of them were so glad to be out of the war they even ran out and kissed the hands of the American soldiers, rolling past in half-tracks.

C. Denure, Tweed, Drowned In L. Couchiching

Tweed, July 24 (Special)—While spending his mid-summer vacation with his family at a camp Mr. Calvin Denure of Tweed was drowned yesterday afternoon in Lake Couchiching, near Orillia, Ont. The accident happened when Mr. Denure was fishing from the shore and saw the boat in which his eldest daughter was fishing drifting away from the shore. He jumped in to catch hold of the boat and suffered a seizure which resulted in his drowning in seven feet of water.

Mr. Denure and his brother operated tea lines between Peterboro and Tweed and Peterboro and Trenton, the drowned man driving the Trenton bus. He leaves three children, two girls and one boy, the elder girl the one he tried to rescue. Mr. Denure was 42 years of age.

Lone Robber Robs Garage At Frankford

Frankford, July 24 (Special) — Believed to be the work of a lone robber, who has been terrorizing parts of Northumberland County with a series of robberies and break-ins, Charles Chase's service station was broken early Saturday morning and a quantity of cigarettes, tobacco and motor car parts taken. Town Constable Lockwood immediately notified Provincial Police in Belleville and a cordon of police thrown around the district.

Previously a lone robber was reported to have broken and entered service stations and general stores in Roseneath, Codrington, and Havelock, all in Northumberland County earlier in the week. The robbery at Chase's service station is believed to have been the work of the same individual, who is known to be travelling alone in a stolen motor car.

IS THIS WHY "BIG INTERESTS" ARE BACKING GEORGE DREW?

Hon. A. W. Roebuck, K.C., M.P., shows how earnings of labour would go to benefit owners of large properties if Drew's 50% school tax "reduction" were enacted

WE WON'T LET YOU DO IT, GEORGE!

SPEAKING over an Ontario network, Hon. Mr. Roebuck said: "But let us examine what Mr. Drew proposes to do. According to his election statement he would have the Provincial Treasury assume one-half of school taxes as against real estate, but he makes no suggestion as to where the money will come from.

"Only that can come out of the Treasury which has previously been put into the Treasury. That Mr. Drew knows this is proven by what he said in Sudbury in 1939 before he was spoofing us with election dope and when he was less cautious and more frank. He then said: 'Taxes should be placed more largely on EARNINGS and less upon REAL ESTATE.'

"Ah, there is the answer!

"He will take from the pay envelopes of the workers the where-with-all to make gifts to the large land owners!

"When Mr. Drew speaks of taxes on real estate, he mentions the 'home owners,' but he includes, of course, the owners of million-dollar big business properties and the holdings of vacant land speculators. It is for these that he will reach into the meagre wages of the artisan, the clerk and the stenographer.

"With such a policy Mr. Drew should indeed be the Darling of Bay Street, but who pays the shot for this gift to these poor but deserving millionaires?"

"We won't let you do it, George!

Mussolini First to Fall

Swiftly on the Allied successes in Sicily where in fifteen days Axis power has all but been wiped out, the premiership and dictatorship of Benito Mussolini fell on Sunday night. The news flew around the world and America knew of it in the late afternoon on the announcement from Rome that the King had accepted the "resignation" of Mussolini and had named Marshal Badoglio as premier, while King Victor Emmanuel becomes the head of the armed forces of Italy. The announcement was brief and made no reference to the state of Fascism under the change. Italians seem to see the retirement of Mussolini as a step or preludo to a bid for peace though Badoglio said that the war would go on, but as a London paper expressed it, what else could be said by Italy at this crucial time?

Mussolini was the first to seek political power through the dictatorship twenty-one years ago, after the march of the Fascist organization on Rome in 1922 which brought him to the premiership. He added to the dictatorship by the assumption of various ministries and established a complete tyranny in the name of Fascism.

Built on force and the assumption of absolute power, his tyranny lasted until developments in the war which resulted from the two tyrannies of Hitler and Mussolini and which he had helped to create, forced him to quit office.

Only last Monday Hitler and Mussolini were reported to have met in Northern Italy to discuss the military situation and the world was agog with guesses as to the result of the conference.

The communique on the parley was ominously silent about harmony such as usually was referred to in their meetings of the past.

It is remembered that long ago Prime Minister Churchill of Britain called on the people of Italy to get rid of this man Mussolini, who had led Italy into the war, who had stabbed France in the back and attacked British who had been her friend for generations. At that time Mr. Churchill foretold that the Allies would strip Italy of her empire which would be left nothing but tatters if she did not get rid of the guilty man. True prophet, Mr. Churchill saw the Italian empire, including Abyssinia, which Mussolini had foully struck in the first step of his conquest, torn from Italy and this was followed by the series of brilliant Allied victories which culminated recently in the conquest of North Africa, ending in the battle of Pantelleria.

Italy's plight has grown worse steadily and with the steady Allied advance through Italian territory in Europe, mainly by air, now almost all in Allied hands, the time came for Mussolini to go.

Though it has been an accepted belief that it would not be long before Italy was knocked out of the war, the news of the resignation of Mussolini came as a surprise.

The importance of the fall of Mussolini cannot be overestimated. It will have a potent reaction upon the United Nations strengthening their arm, it will set all overrun Europe seething and will leave Hitler alone of the Axis powers dictators to carry on. But what the immediate implications will be time will have to disclose, yet the fact remains that it is an added blow to Italian participation in the war, already rendered most, difficult and in the long run impossible.

So falls the man who was the first to come and was the first to go. He had preceded Hitler in dictatorship and Hitler had adopted something of his program. He was a political opportunist of the worst type who loved absolute power for the sake of show and greed and whose lust for authority has led him to the end of his career with every power stripped from him and his country bled white and collapse in ruin as a result of the disastrous course along which he had taken Italy.

In Il Duce's resignation and fall Hitler can read the sign of destiny, that he too in time will go, possibly in a more tragic way out than that taken by Mussolini. Hitler, who had "bestirred" in a Nazi way Mussolini's instruction, took the lead in opening the Second World War and evidently assigned Mussolini a waiting role. But the greed of the Duce was too great, he plunged into the struggle as France was falling but Italy was doomed from the start.

Ill-gotten power he used in such a way to try to lord it over other races, to rob them of their heritage of liberty and he has justly come to his political end. In these latter days there has been silence in Italy, with none of the pompous and bombastic parade as when Duce, Count Ciano and others of the Fascists held themselves up before the world as examples of power and the cheap trappings of Fascism.

The political implacations of the Duce's fall will develop rapidly but whatever they are the collapse of Mussolini's rule while surprising the world in its suddenness means that nemesis or desting is condemning all tyrannies and aggressions. The voice of freedom is mighty and her arm is strong. It is freedom and the spirit of international honor which have driven Mussolini off the world stage to ignominy and shame which he so truly deserves for his betrayal of the free nations and of international peace and amity.

'Ambassadors' of Democracy

Canadians on arrival in Sicily were told that they are "ambassadors" and can make the invasion effective by impressing upon the Sicilian people that their religion will be respected, no harm will be done to art treasures and monuments which honor events and heroes of the past ages and that no advances will be made towards Italian women.

A booklet issued to the Canadians in English and French impresses upon the Canadians as it impresses upon British and American troops to whom it is believed the book has been issued, "you will know how to deal with the Italian as a fighting man but your attitude and conduct towards the Italian people can help reduce Italy's military resistance shorten the war and determine our relations with Italy afterwards."

Allied armies are orderly armies whose men know the respect which is paid to civilian life in their own countries and will apply the same principles towards the people of occupied Sicily and other Italian territory and German territory or Axis-overrun land. They will make friends and have already been welcomed as liberators from Fascist and Nazi bondage of the Sicilian people.

Italy on Toboggan

(Montreal Gazette)

For the first time since they began their ascent from Sicily's southern beaches, the Canadians in the army of invasion have crossed the summit of the mountainous ridge north of Ragusa and have started going downhill. This also means that the Italians are on the toboggan.

I GO FISHING

"Ah," said the Bishop, "the fast day is near
And fish will be scarce in the market, I fear,
Though it's something parishioners say they don't like,
They're all of them calling for pickerel or pike
Instead of the steaks and the chops and the joints,
Because in that way they are saving on points.
So I think 'twould be well if we went to the bay
To learn for ourselves if they're biting today.

"I say, not because it's the rule of the church,
There's nothing so good as a nice mess of perch,
And with meat being rationed for all and for one
And most of our points for the month
And tomorrow being Friday, I think we should go
To that favorite spot which the two of us know
And fish for our dinner like Peter and Paul
And thank the good Lord if we get a good haul."

I should have remained at my task for the day,
I had promised myself that at work I would stay.
We had eggs on the shelf and some butter and bread
And Friday could come and I still would be fed.
What is more, when a treat for my dinner I wish,
The last thing I'd take from the menu is fish.
But the Bishop said, "Come!" and so fishing I went;
Who am I, from what Bishops decide, to dissent?

'That Blum of Bums'

This would seem to be a good tassel dangling before his eyes, time for us to refrain our memory hoor himself with an air of great with some of the more bombastic superiority when the mad Austrian threats of that blum of bums, in the greasy raincoat, who was to become Mussolini's master, paid him a humble visit, in Rome in the role of a suppliant.

Adolf Hitler took his early a humble visit, in Rome in the role lesson from the bum of bums, and of puffy orations, with a golden dagger at his belt and an absurd Mussolini, then strutting busily The Duce's stylish sycophants, about Italy and blowing out his face mobsters who had fed castor oil

Germans in the Slave Trade

Alexei Tolstoy, noted Soviet author, in the official USSR Information Bulletin tells his story of the Germans as slave-drivers:

German women, not distinguished by general for feminine charm or beauty, hastily puffing up their spotted, empty-eyed faces, feel the muscles of the ragged, barefoot girls and adolescents covered with the dust and dirt of the road, look in to their mouths—be sure the slave isn't got scurvy or bad. They poke with an umbrella at the chin of a wretched peasant—isn't he too quick-tempered or too voracious? Having chosen a slave, they drive him on foot to the farm because of the transport shortage.

And so they walk through wheat and barley fields or cabbage plots: a Russian with fresh drooping from weakness, raising clouds of dust with his black bare feet—and behind him a smug German lady with an umbrella in her hand to prod him at every minute in her bag.

This is no fantasy, no delirious dream, but actual truth, which I have gleaned from the letters of German men and women. There are many such letters. The war still scatters them through the fighting zones in addition to the Italian people a threat which must have seemed so real to the ravings of a fighting fool coming off the floor for the last time. And he himself is no more than a miserable quailing now, contemptible alike in the eyes of his ally and his foes and the laughing stock of the world.

A native of Sweden, Benson was a sailor for 20 years and started finding water beneath the ground by the forked willow branch method years ago when he cooked in northern lumber camps. Two years ago he moved into a river-bank cave where here raises a few acres of vegetables, keep a few chickens and a goat and does a regular business witching water supply for people to dig wells.

Benson knows nothing of geology. When called on to locate water, or just cast a forked willow branch, holds it straight and walks over the ground where the well is to be. When the willow stick turns perpendicular, that's where the well will be found. . . . And it always is.

Residents credit him with saving them large sums of money in locating sure they'll find water where they dig wells. His fame is spreading and with more settlees in the district, his business is booming too.

There are a number of soft water wells in this district. But when housewives ask Benson if he could pick a spot where soft water will be found he draws the line. He will promise water, but will not undertake a chance on whether it will be hard or soft.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

Protected, 1942, by The George Adams Service.

STANDING ARMIES

The founders of the American federal republic were very suspicious of standing armies.

They believed that no DF militia was sufficient military protection for the infant republic.

After the Revolution, the Continental Army was disbanded, and for many years the Confederation the United States had no regular army of any kind.

The framers of the constitution reflected the widespread suspicion of standing armies.

They made the President commander-in-chief of the army and provided that Congress could declare war. They also made provision for armies," but put on the limitation that no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years.

Even to this day Congress cannot appropriate money for the army for more than two years.

The first amendment to the constitution forbade, in the interests of the militia, any infringement of the people to keep arms, and the second amendment protects citizens against soldiers in time of peace and war.

When President Washington formed his first cabinet many people, including senators, objected to a secretary of war in time of peace. They saw in it the germ of an attempt to set up a permanent military establishment.

Members of Congress yelled "sword-rattling" and "tyranny through troops" when a bill was introduced in the first Congress "to augment the military to six-teen hundred men."

While still mulling over laying the foundation of a standing army," shouted Senator William Maclay, of Pennsylvania, who wrote in his diary:

"The justifiable reasons for using force extend only to the forcing of laws, quelling insurrections, and repelling invasions. The constitution directs all these to be done by the militia . . . This seems the meaning of the constitution, and that no troops should be kept up in peace."

Maclay patted himself on the back and thought he had dodfe a good day's work for the country when he got the number of soldiers reduced from 1,600 to 1,000!

Only four years before this Congressman Gerry had written to James Monroe: "A naval force can never endanger our liberties nor occasion bloodshed; a land force would do both."

ESSEN, COLOGNE

May 27. More than 1,000 tons of explosives were cascaded into the sprawling Krupp armament works in that assault.

This raid was the 37th by Essen—one of the most heavily bombed cities in the world.

In addition to the 24 bombers listed as missing in the overnight foray, one R.A.F. fighter also failed to return home, the Air Ministry said.

Yesterday's raid by the American sky warriors made a total of nineteen planes. The heavy bombers beat off 200 fighters and weathered a hail of flak to loose new destruction on the submarine nests and port facilities at Hamburg, the aircraft factories at Warnemunde, the seaplane base at Wustrow and the shipyards at Kiel.

Black smoke was rising four miles above Hamburg when the Americans reached their target, left by the 1,200 plane R.A.F. and Canadian raid the previous night which had started a night long attack against a single city.

Supply Bases Hit

While the United States bombers were completing their 1,500 mile round trip, American medium bombers, escorted by fighters, fanned out over Belgium, Holland and France in destructive raids on German supply bases and communication systems in the occupied areas. Four enemy planes and seven Allied planes were destroyed in the resultant battle.s

The flight from the west was duplicated by an American Liberator bomber formation wiring 1,500 miles round trip from North Africa yesterday to blast rail yards at Bologna in Northern Italy.

The unescorted formation exploded all ammunition train and blanketed the freight yards without encountering opposition fighters or flak.

Their attack also was preceded by an R.A.F. night raid, an R.A.F. Liberator shuttling back to Britain from North Africa, pounded Leghorn on Italy's northwest coast without loss.

German raiders, meanwhile, hit back at Northeast England last night in a two-hour attack on light damage and no casualties, the Air and Home Secretaries announced today. Three enemy raiders were downed.

The War Today—
Mussolini Notorious Faker; Italy May Jettison Fascism

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

So at last Mussolini has come with the feet of clay has toppled from the pedestal where he has placed himself back in those trying days after the First World War when the people of Italy and other European countries were ready to welcome any attractive political nostrum in an effort to cure their ills.

Mussolini's downfall is a sensation but not a surprise. No man inflicted with such short-sightedness as inspired his evil manner of entrance into the present war, could hope to survive.

The self-styled Duce, although possessing many accomplishments, never has been a big man. His chief assets have been a striking personality and the greatest gift of showmanship since Barnum. He is one of history's notorious fakers.

The circumstances of the dictator's collapse are such as to support the belief that Italy is preparing to jettison Fascism and make overtures to the Allies for Peace. The fact that the military regime under Badoglio says the war will continue doesn't necessarily mean that surrender isn't contemplated. Italy May Have to go Cautiously.

This method of approach is calculated to save face and provide a possible bargaining point. If the Italian government may have its eyes on the future as to avoid a display of vindictiveness by Hitler, the Italian people fully surrendering unconditionally in the near future before the Germans have a chance to get in a blow. She can't hold out for long.

With Italy in a state of near collapse, the great question is what the effect will be on other countries, especially Germany. There can be no doubt that the morale of the latter will be far reaching. It cannot help but be a tremendous shock to the morale of the other Axis countries, and it will draw the neutrals closer to the Allies.

Hitler Believed to Have Discussed Italy

From a military standpoint Hitler presumably discounted the loss of Italy some time ago. He had figured all the forces he could get of that turnip when North Africa slipped away from his. However, if he and Mussolini have been talking Italy it will provide a convenient base for possible operations in the Balkans, and that's something for the Fuehrer to worry about.

Munro Hitch-Hikes by Truck Jeep and Mule Up Cliff-Side; Among First in Mountain-Top Enna

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Enna, Sicily, July 21 (Delayed)—(CP Cable)—Along a tortuous mountain road winding up the side of a sheer cliff 1 hitch-hiked from a jeep, then a truck, jeep and mule to be among the first of the Canadians to reach the mountain-top city in the heart of Sicily.

The Americans had occupied the strategic city as the Canadians carried out other tasks in the vicinity and when I got into Enna the Yanks everywhere were taking over the jobs of organizing the place.

This is the largest and most strategic mountain slope, gives the Allies a great advantage in carrying the war into northeastern Sicily.

On Highest Peak

For days I've been within sight of Enna around which the Germans made a stern effort to stand until driven out by the Americans and Canadians. It was tantalizing to see this important city, crowded atop the highest peak in the area and looking much like Quebec City from the south shore of the St. Lawrence River. Finally the way was fairly well cleared and I hopped a truck. I drove as far as a railway bridge which the Germans had blown up, blocking the road completely.

Three Italian peasants, with two mules loaded with grain bags, caught up with me. They stopped and chatted away loudly in Italian which I couldn't understand. But they waved their arms wildly and urged me to mount one of the mules.

So I climbed atop the poor mule, adding 170 pounds to his burden and not feeling particularly sorry about it. My feet were just about worn out and my boots were breaking away at the seams from the rigors of this campaign.

Mule Sheets Way Up Slow But Sure

The mule snorted its way up the roads and paths for three miles. I kept wondering if any other war correspondents had taken to mules as transport. It was slow but surer than some vehicles I had been in. Finally the Italians had to turn off to a farm.

I jumped off my mule, gave the Italians some precious Canadian cigarets and the mule a farewell pat and started walking again.

I trudged further up this terrible road, climbed through two more craters in it, and eventually raft into some Americans who said they had been watching me with glasses and said they thought I was probably a German straggler. Evidently I had been wandering on foot and by mule in no man's land, not knowing it.

Welcomed by Yanks

I was about the first Canadian the Yanks had seen and they gave me a royal welcome. They had some jeeps behind their operations and the officer offered to drive me into Enna.

That was the best news I had heard all day. Off we went, roaring up the cliffside road with the Yanks yanking to know how the Canadians were doing and I wanted to know how the Americans were doing, so we had an exchange of information.

Enna's streets slope up to the crest of the peak, where the centre of the city is situated, and we drove through streets crowded with civilians waving at us. The Americans said they directed the most forward troops when they went in.

The shops were still shuttered but this was the first comparatively modern city I had seen since Sicily was entered. Other towns through which the Canadians have passed are squalid hovels compared with Enna.

Modernistic Buildings Absent Square

Around the central square were fine modernistic buildings. We drove right to the Governor's Palace. There were hastily-erected air raid shelters on the square and the city had been smashed in several places by bombing. The civilians said German planes had done it.

The Governor's Palace was a splendid stone and brick building Messina.

with a high tower. I went in an impressive entrance through marble halls crowded with American officers and civilians and talked with an American colonel who was helping to organize the town after the confusion in which the Germans left it. They stripped it of vehicles and any valuables they could get.

He told me that all the Canadians had been in the city and when they were coming up the road there was a tense moment as the Canadians thought the Americans around the city were Germans and the Yanks thought the Canucks were Germans. Both hesitated for a while over the identification but no shots were fired and the incident passed with the forces meeting amicably.

I went down the hall and talked with ANGOY Allied Military Government of Occupied Territory officials who are getting the municipal administration going again and arranging for feeding civilians and repairs to water mains and the electrical system, which the Germans blew up before leaving.

This put Enna in a bad spot as far as the civilians were concerned and they were decidedly unhappy about it.

ALLIES TIGHTEN

Reinforced by Nazi Division

Fresh German Army divisions was rushed across the Messina Strait in a desperate effort to bolster the rearguard action raging along the east coast.

The grim details of Tunisia as well as Stalingrad are fighting in Sicily, for the enemy has the German divisions were the Herman Goering and 15th armored division, both named after units destroyed in Tunisia.

Additional half division of Germans is believed made up of parachute troops and other crack elements.

South of Catania, a main stronghold of the Axis defence, the British 8th army reported successful patrol activity.

Typical of the Sicilian people's rebellion against Fascism was an incident, officially reported, in which British parachute troops dropped behind enemy lines went to the nearest village in search of goods and were greeted as liberators and fed with the best the countryside could provide. The little detachment remained in the village in perfect safety until an Allied advance guard relieved them.

The successful conclusion of the western campaign permitted American forces to swing around to the north and west of the principal remaining Axis forces holding positions bounded on the south by Catania, on the north by Tyrrhenian Sea. Messina, two miles from the Italian mainland and Axis escape hatch, is the apex of the triangle.

Every day now indicates the Axis was establishing a strong defence along this line and was preparing to make a last ditch stand in an effort to block an Allied invasion of Italy or at least to make a delaying action which would permit the withdrawal of some troops and equipment if Allied pressure became too great.

The Allied campaign in Sicily resembled the operations in reverse of a huge wheel, with the British 8th army at the hub in Catania area. To the left of the British are Canadian forces under Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, who are hammering the centre of the Axis line in the vicinity of Regalbuto. The Americans have wheeled into the left of the line and are beating their way up the Tyrrhenian coast. They were believed last night to have reached a point in the neighborhood of San Stefano Di Cavsaglia, approximately 80 miles from

HAMBURG BLASTED IN BIGGEST RAID ON ONE TARGET

London, July 26 (AP)—In the biggest aerial assault ever launched against a single target, R.A.F. and Canadian bombers last night attacked Hamburg, Germany's most important port and submarine centre, with more than 2,300 tons of high explosives and incendiaries and considerable destruction to residential quarters, cultural monuments and public buildings.

The assault was of the "thunderbolt" type, the Air Ministry disclosed, with the entire great weight of steel and fire hitting Hamburg within 56 crowded minutes.

Defences Swamped

"It seems to have swamped and scattered ground defences," the ministry said, possibly explaining the extremely low cost in bombers but none was missing from the "shuttle" bombing of Leghorn and only one American bomber failed to return to Britain from the 1,800-mile assault on enemy targets in Italy. Allied communiques reported. The single missing plane made a forced landing in neutral Sweden and its crew of 10 was interned.

Other British bombers attacked unspecified objectives in Western and Northwestern Germany last night, and Sergeant Allen Hibbert swept across the Channel almost at wavetop height to carry on the campaign by daylight.

The Berlin radio described the Hamburg assault as a "heavy terror attack," and said it caused heavy losses among the population and considerable destruction to residential quarters, cultural monuments and public buildings."

Defences Swamped

"It seems to have swamped and scattered ground defences," the ministry said, possibly explaining the extremely low cost in bombers

"There were vast fires, black smoke rose four miles into the air and there were many reports of violent explosions."

It was calculated here that the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. probably used 1,000 planes on the night's operations, with perhaps 700 of his four-engined bombers concentrating on the Hamburg area.

Crews of the Canadian bomber Command said they were guided to Hamburg from the Netherlands coast by great fires.

Visibility was described as excellent by the crews which said the "the crews could easily see the River Elbe and the docks at Hamburg, ringed at the very end of the attack when there was little to be seen except smoke and fires."

Declaring that casualties were "extraordinarily light in proportion to the great force which was sent to stifle one of the most heavily defended places in Europe," the Air Ministry news service said only a few bombers were reported with German fighters.

WHY IS THE C.C.F. WRONG?

C.C.F. Against Workers' Interests

Sound Reasoning Condemns Whole Idea

The coming Ontario Provincial election on August 4th is of interest to everyone because it offers the promoters of the C.C.F. a chance of establishing a dangerous foothold in the provincial parliament and thus the unsound doctrines, given a chance to thrive, could easily spread to other provinces and even our Federal Government could be affected.

We are appealing particularly now to Ontario workers and farmers, but Canadian workers and farmers everywhere need to be on the alert to this growing menace. The C.C.F. can only succeed by class prejudices, arousing animosities between individuals and classes, taking advantage of special conditions such as the war or difficult times and by promising a care and trouble-free existence to all and sundry except of course the present leaders of our country, whom, we are taught, are our selfish enemies, to be eradicated and replaced by C.C.F. Supermen.

That many of the large numbers of young, inexperienced workers drawn into our industrial plants by the war, should lend an ear to the C.C.F. bunkum, is perhaps understandable because they fail to devote sufficient time to fully comprehending the fallacies of C.C.F. doctrines but we feel sure their more mature minds will not be deluded by absurd C.C.F. claims and will have nothing to do with it. We believe too, that a little meditation will help our young workers to avoid C.C.F. pitfalls.

C.C.F. IDEAS ARE NOT NEW

There is nothing new about the ideas advanced by the C.C.F. From time to time other groups under different names, have grasped the opportunity to organize and promise Utopia to the people, most everyone is familiar with their song and dance—take away from those that have and give it to those that have not —a perfect social and political life —everything free, practically no work and mostly all pleasure—complete freedom for all except those who are now leaders or those who now possess property of any kind—bigger and better pensions for everybody.

To accomplish this purpose, a good healthy hatred must be worked up between classes. We are taught that those who worked their way to the top and who serve Canada in a most magnificent manner, should be replaced by others, whether capable or not and we are taught that only C.C.F. leaders are able to conduct our affairs in a satisfactory manner.

WHAT THE C.C.F. FORGETS TO TELL US

The C.C.F. opportunists forget to tell us that all such movements have failed in the past because they lead to dictatorship, because it is impossible to fulfil all the silly promises and because the co-operation of all classes is essential to our success and security.

The C.C.F. in collusion with the C.I.O., is pretending to be the only friend and protector of Canadian workers and farmers and is relying upon its belief that the majority of Canadian workers and farmers will prove susceptible to promises of 'something for nothing' and thus sweep a C.C.F. government into power.

CANADIAN WORKERS AND FARMERS ARE NOT FOOLISH

We believe that the C.C.F., like all other movements of a like nature, is doomed to disappointment and will not even get the chance of attaining power to destroy our successful democratic, social, industrial and economic achievements. We know that Canadian workers and farmers are not so gullible as the C.C.F. would like to make out and they do not believe in Santa Claus when it comes to our political and social life. Neither do they believe that by electing a C.C.F. government and destroying all classes except one, that we can reach the perfect solution to all our troubles.

The average Canadian worker and farmer knows that Canada has been and is blessed with good sound government as represented by the Progressive Conservative Party and the Liberal Party, beneficial to all classes and representative of all classes. It is well known that taxation has immeasurably equalized all sections of Canadian society and that social legislation is force has reached a high pinnacle, commensurate with our ability to sustain such measures and that such fundamental social legislation as is needed from time to time for the benefit of our people will be enacted and brought into action by our governments as they are constituted today and without disturbing our economic position as advocated by the C.C.F.

Canadian workers and farmers will not be hoodwinked by C.C.F. claims. We have a social system equalled by none. Why destroy it?

CHEMISTRY HELPS TO WIN THE WAR

... But A Whole Loaf is Still Better

YES, a whole loaf is better than half, but how often in the past has a half-eaten loaf been thrown away because mould had spoiled it?

In normal times bread spoiled by mould means a serious loss; in wartime such a loss is disastrous. That's why the discovery of "Mycoban" is so important to Canada and the rest of the United Nations.

"Mycoban" (sodium propionate) is a chemical product which, when added to the baker's dough, delays the growth of mould spores beyond the time when bread would normally grow stale. The addition of "Mycoban" does not affect the taste, quality, appearance or texture of the bread. Besides helping to save many thousands of loaves daily, "Mycoban" is also used to prolong the mould-free life of other bakers' products, and of butter, cheese, tobacco, honey and preserves.

Product of the Organic Chemicals Division of C-I-L, "Mycoban" is now being distributed throughout Canada to help Canadian bakers in their war against the blight of bread mould.

The contribution of "Mycoban" towards national food economy is another example of a product of Industrial Chemistry which helps Canada's war effort.

Keep Clean for Beauty

After her bath Jeanne Cagney app lies a refreshing flower fragrance.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BEAUTY defects can be overlooked. Almost everybody has some feature she does not precisely qualify. For instance, a nose that is larger than it need be. Or freckles that mar the otherwise perfect complexion. Or a figure that is not according to specifications. But defects that are suggestive of uncleanliness are not to be tolerated. They offend the eye, sometimes the nostrils. They are so unnecessary that it seem silly that any mortal these days should endure them.

The modern standard of good appearance takes it for granted that a woman takes a bath every day of her life, changes her stockings every morning, keeps her shoes in order, goes to the dry cleaner with such articles of her wardrobe as may be soiled or spotted. If she fails short of this standard she is indeed among the unfashionable and untidy. Which doesn't increase or better her social status.

Dingy elbows are a common eyesore. They can be brushed by rubbing with lemon pulp, anointed afterwards with cold cream.

Blackheads on the back and shoulders are revealed when the formal is worn. A good scouring with soap and a stiff bristle brush, followed by a sponging with alcohol or peroxide will clear the flesh of them.

Prevent Body Odor

We've no patience with the girl who buffs powder into the forward hollows. If she can't control the pad, she should sweep the powder on with the eyebrow brush, the bristles of which have been touched with brilliantine.

As for the baneful body odor, for that there is no excuse. The cure is found in the daily bath, frequent changes of undies, the use of a deodorant or dentifrice. These preparations come in various forms—powder, pastes and creams. If one dog not bring desired results, another one will.

Onion Breath—Sign of Patriotism

From the Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch:

The war was bound to bring profound changes, but one which has come about was hardly anticipated. Onion breath no longer constitutes a social error. The story of why includes aspects of everything from the commandering by the army of commercial fresh and canned vegetables, to the encouragement of the war gardens.

Anyone who has any kind of a garden at all has onion in it, and anyone who has a garden in which he is growing onions is eating them with relish.

Few vegetables are more succulent, more juicy, or more tasty than young onions. As testimony of this fact it is easy to recall how difficult it was for a while to obtain onion sets. The amateur gardeners bought them out by the pound and sometimes five pounds. And the sets once planted, promptly began to grow. Gardens from here to both coasts and north and south shot up a bumper crop of onions. And no one ever ate any onions which tasted any better than the ones he grew in his own garden.

The effects of the onions on the breath? Forget it. This is wartime. What is the use of a war garden unless you can enjoy the fruits thereof? Away with the social amenities! Eat the onions and enjoy them, and when you detect a delicate onion-odor on the breath of someone else, shake his hand, for he is a loyal rooter in a war garden and doing his best to beat the Axis, ready to contribute his last, strong breath for victory.

JUVENILE MASQUERADES IN UNIFORMS

Hamilton, July 26—(CP)—There's something about a soldier, there's something about an airmen, there's something about their uniforms that appeals to a certain fourteen- or 15-year-old. Appealed so much that he took first one, then the other and masqueraded proudly about a local beach. He got them from lakeside cottages while their owners went swimming. The juvenile's case will be heard this week.

HOSTESS CLUB ENTERTAINS AIRMEN AT PICNIC

Another very enjoyable picnic was had by the airmen from various airports of the district, and the girl hostesses of the Red-Tri-angle Hostess Club on Sunday afternoon at Massassaga Point. The picnickers were transported to the Point in a truck, instead of the usual boat ride, and during the journey to the grounds, a hearty sing-song was indulged in. Swimming and rousing games of ball were played, both by the airmen and the girls. Owing to the bad weather, the picnic broke up early. A similar picnic followed at the Y.M.C.A.

THREE GENERATIONS IN WAR WORK

Thoroid, July 26 — (CP) — War work is contagious. It spread like wildfire through three generations of a Thoroid family last week: Miss Eileen Anderson was first to be bitten by the victory bug, then her mother, Mrs. William McPhail liked her daughter's war job and got one for herself. She was closely followed by Eileen's grandmother, Mrs. Laura Anderson, who joined the production line.

WOMEN NEEDED NOW FOR RCAF
ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

● Patriotism is a clear call. It says in the tones of a bugle: "Here is your job! Here is your duty!" And duty is not a respecter of persons or of sex. It calls women as well as men. It says to the women of Canada: "Make patriotism mean something! Take your places alongside your men as the women of other nations have done."

Yes, it needs courage. But there will be no shirking when women once awake to the need—when they know what work they can do and where to go to get at it.

This is to tell you that the need is urgent—a job in the Royal Canadian Air Force is waiting—and it is your duty to fill it, not next month, but now!

WEDDINGS

JACOB — BARLOW

A very lovely summer wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when Phyllis Edna Barlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Barlow, became the bride of Corporal Robert E. Jacob, No. 4 Repair Depot, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jacob, of Kitchener. Rev. J. G. Hornsby performed the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mr. Alec Gordon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a radiant picture in her floor-length wedding gown of white sheer over taffeta, with high round neckline, bracelet length sleeves and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was caught to her hair with a small halo cap of orange blossom. She carried a cascade bouquet of Bettertime roses and bouvardia.

Miss Doris Smith, the bride's attendant, was charming in a floor-length gown of blue net over taffeta with tight-fitting bodice and sweetheart neckline. A tiny hat of matching blue, with shoulder length veil, sat daintily atop her head. She was wearing matching elbow-length gloves and carrying a Colonial bouquet of roses and sweet pea.

Sergeant Ronald Knight, of No. 6 Repair Depot, assisted the groom. The ushers were Robert Barlow and Douglas Barlow, twin brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. H. C. Brown. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a rose crepe ensemble with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother in blue crepe with black accessories and corsage of cream roses and blue cornflowers.

Miss Elizabeth McEwen, Reg. N., aunt of the groom, presided over the tea table. These assisting in serving were Misses Joyce Watson, Gertrude Pope, Gwen Burley and Mrs. H. A. Hince.

For the wedding trip to Wasaga Beach and Georgian Bay, the bride chose a turquoise blue two-piece dress with matching accessories, but beige accessories and brown tweed hat for going away. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob will reside in Belleville.

SCOTT—ATCHISON

HEALTH CHATS

President, Chicago Board of Health.

Rich And Poor Alike Suffer From Vitamin Deficiency

More and more studies are being reported to show that many people do not get enough of the vitamins they need. The simplest and best way to get these vitamins is to get them in foods—whole-grain cereals or wheat germ for the B-complex, cabbage, berries or citrus fruits for vitamin C, green, fresh vegetables for vitamin A.

On first thought, one would imagine that people in the higher income groups would be much less likely to suffer from deficiencies in the diet than would those whose income is not as great, but this is by no means true.

Doctor Herbert T. Kelly and Myrtle Sheppard of the University of Pennsylvania have made a study of more than 300 patients in the higher income groups, and they have found that more than three-fourths were lacking in vitamin B-1, and in riboflavin or vitamin B-2. It was noteworthy that these persons tended to eat an excessive amount of fat, which perhaps is related to the high income. Eating too much fat will tend to produce what is known as an acid base imbalance. That is, the amount of acid formed in the body is greater than the amount of alkaline ash. This causes a lessening in the alkaline reserve and produces acidosis with such symptoms as headache and mental and physical sluggishness.

Doctor Kelly and his co-worker found that if less than a pint of milk is used daily the diet is likely to be lacking in riboflavin and lime or calcium. If white bread is used instead of whole-grain or enriched bread, vitamin B-1 is lacking. If the amount of meat eaten is small there is a further deficiency of riboflavin and also of phosphorus and iron. If the citrus fruits, such as oranges, grapefruit and lemon, raw cabbage or raw green leafy vegetables are not included in the diet there may be a deficiency of vitamin C.

To include these necessary food parts, the diet should provide daily, at least a pint of milk, three slices of whole-grain or enriched bread, one serving of meat, one egg, two servings of vegetables, two servings of fruit, one of which should be a citrus fruit, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter or cream of fortified oleomargarine. Adding these food substances will furnish about 1500 calories, a sufficient amount of protein for rebuilding worn-out body tissues, almost all the calcium or lime needed, almost all of the iron as well as vitamins B-1, A, C, and riboflavin.

It should not be difficult even with the rationing of foods, for persons to get these foods in the necessary amounts and provision of such a diet should improve health. The use of special vitamin preparations would not be necessary to nearly as great a degree as it now seems to be, if more attention were paid to balancing the diet by including each day the foods mentioned.

The studies carried out showed that not only the persons who were on had a deficiency of various food parts, but showed also that those who were normal also seemed to neglect the same elements in their diets. In now how food deficiency may be present for some time before it causes noticeable symptoms. However, if the failure to get the necessary vitamins, minerals and proteins continues for very long, definite symptoms will develop. The type, of course, will depend on just what food parts are lacking. Every one should give some heed to his diet in order to keep up his efficiency and well-being.

Be a Ventriloquist and Be Popular

Esther Williams takes advantage of swim-time for exercises.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF YOU have a chance to go swimming, don't miss out on it. Swimming is a normalizing exercise, but is good for fattening for the plump ones. It flexes the muscles, discourages fat.

When the arms are extended to force the body through the water there is a pull on muscles extending from the shoulders to the waist. These muscles are necessary for good posture, should be kept in condition. Let the roundshouldered girls take notice.

Swimming just brings one to calisthenics a free movement of the hips, so necessary for graceful movement when walking. If you chance to be an office worker, subject to what are called chair disfigurements—meaning a thickening hips and waistline—swimming is precisely what the good looks doctor would recommend.

Respiratory muscles are toned also, and that's why the girl with the slim-line chest should make swimming a hobby. She should be in the water 30 minutes a day to get breathing exercises. Let her stand tall, hands on hips, inhale deeply through the nostrils, exhale through the lips.

Ventriloquism really isn't as hard as it seems—there really isn't any magic to it. Anyone who has the average speech equipment—larynx, a tongue, and vocal cords—can train his voice into believing that his voice comes from some place other than his mouth.

Of course you may not become famous, because nigh success demands marked ability added to relentless work. But you can have a lot of fun.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NICE to get some summer sun and yet remain nicely attired. A grand play frock is in white pique with big red and black checked clovers scattered about. The neckline is square, low and wide and there are wide shoulder straps.

LITTLE SISTER is going to like the warm and pretty reefer coats being readied for next season. Red fleece is used for a pretty reefer trimmed with notched terra collar and pocket bands of gray fur fabric that simulates Persian lamb. Double-breasted effect.

A BIG CAREER ahead for new and colorful frocks of wool crepe with clever accents. Wool crepe in honey beige is used for an attractive frock that buttons to below the waist in back with big amber buttons. Below, it is pulled into pockets with saw-tooth tops.

JUST AS FINE as anything that came from Europe is the beautifully hand-worked blouse that now comes to us from Puerto Rico. White, ravon crepe is used for a delightful blouse made with little standing collar and tailored bow made of Val lace and hand fagoting. Two lace inserts on the tucked bosom front have tiny little white satin hearts appliqued by hand.

BIGGER THAN EVER is the word for some of the new berets, especially those being shown by important milliners. Shocking pink felt is used for a really giant beret, its trimming a picot-edged bow of black grosgrain.

FIRST PLACE in the handbag field so far as leather is concerned seems to be going to those that bear of snakeskin in bright colors such as Kelley green or bright pink.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It's In Good Taste For Girl To Have Soldier as Lunch Guest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very good friend of mine, who is in the Armed Forces, will be home on furlough soon. I would like to have him do me the honor of being my guest for luncheon. Inasmuch as this is reversing the usual procedure, I wonder if you think this would be in good taste. If so, how do I go about it? At the moment that this would cause any embarrassment. I would ask you the idea entirely.

E. R.

It would be a most friendly and proper idea for you to ask this young man to your lunch arrangement. Today this is quite a "customary procedure", and that fact should give you the right assurance. You might telephone or write him something like this: "Bob, while you are at home I'd love to have you lunch with me one day (any day convenient to you) at the new restaurant. I'm to be hostess, sir, and please don't take this joy away from me. I've been happily anticipating having you as my guest. Now that that's settled — can say when."

If possible, you might order the table and the bill ahead of time and pay the check when you order. Or just take the paying-the-check procedure nonchalantly.

No seriousness about it, for it really can be passed off lightly, if you don't show any embarrassment about it.

Yes, Write To Sailor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a girl of sixteen, and I like very much a boy in our school who is joining the Navy. Do you think it would be all right for me to write to him after he leaves for the Service, even though he does not know me? I like him! Would this be too "forward"?

B.

I see no reason why you should not write a friendly note of good wishes to this school-mate of yours.

I'm sure he'd appreciate your thoughtfulness. But keep your letter on the impersonal side, just good wishes and chatty news. Say nothing about the fact that you "like" him!

Thank-You Note Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, please answer this question: A man and his wife presented a bride-to-be with a very nice wedding present. When the young lady writes a note or sent a thank-you card, how should it be addressed?

B. B.

To thank a man and his wife for their wedding gift to her, the bride-to-be would properly write a thank-you note addressed to the wife, as she is the lady of the house and should include the husband in her words of appreciation. There is really no valid reason why she should not address and write the note to both, but the former procedure is more customary. If she sent a ready-made card of thanks (which I hope she didn't, for this is bad taste) she would address it to "Mr. and Mrs.", unless on the card is added a written message of thanks to both.

The Marry-Go-Round

How to Lose a Boy Friend

Some girls have a positive genius for wrecking a romance and putting love "on the spot". They are like a woman learning to drive a car or to ride a bike; they just can't avoid doing the wrong thing. That's why we often hear such so many "How-can-I-win-him-back?"

It is a great deal easier to tell a girl how to lose a man, than how to tell her how to win him back. Getting rid of a husband or a boy Friend is a cinch; you just have or some of the surest ways.

1. Assert your claims over him. Yield to the fatal temptation to be jealous. Jealousy flatters a man at the same time that it deflates the girl's value in his eyes. One flash of jealousy in a woman's glance—and it's all over but the funeral.

2. TALK incessantly. Keep up a running fire of what he calls as "conversation". Tell him all about yourself, your hopes and dreams, your reducing diet and even your make-up and beauty secrets. Tell him everything! Many a girl has KILLED herself right out of a man's imagination —and thereby ceased to be "the girl" for him. He will love you as he does a long ratio commercial!

3. Be terribly, terribly witty! Be witty—even at his expense! Always be there with the clever comeback, and never let him be funnier or quicker than YOU are. Be bright—until the lovelight goes out. It WILL!

4. Hang on his neck and keep asking him if he loves you, how much he loves you or why he doesn't show you more. You will choke all of the enthusiasm out of him. It's quick and fatal.

5. Start a scrap with him every time he does anything you don't like. One scrap will do more, to kill romance than the breaking of all the Ten Commandments. Sure, it's fun to kiss-and-make-up; but, once that perfect sympathy and understanding—the entente cordiale—has been broken, it never, never, things are never the same, again.

6. Make a scene—preferably in public. Make it loud and conspicuous. Make a man conspicuous, too. Men abhor scenes. A girl who makes him herself ridiculous. That's something that no man can forgive or forget!

These are only six ways of getting rid of a Boy Friend—and there are a hundred more, which I could give you if I had the space. But, these half-dozen are the usual obstacles on which loves comes a shipwreck. Why can't a girl, who has "landed" a man, always keep a good head, an amiable temper and a pleasant There, she need never lose the Boy Friend.

Para-troopers In Contingent

An East Coast Canadian Port, July 26 (CP).—Hundreds of soldiers and airmen, accompanied by a crew of young Canadian sailors to take over a warship in England sailed from this port recently, announcement of their arrival overseas was made last night.

Eager and well trained, they were anxiously awaiting their chance to take part in any "combined operation" the High Command might have planned for them.

At a time when Canucks were plowing their way into the heart of Sicily, "action talk" was the order of the day aboard the man-packed troopship.

British and Australian graduates of the British Commonwealth Air Training Schools in Canada, Canadian airmen, infantry, paratroopers, artillerymen and reinforcements for other branches of the service, all were included in the movement.

A former aberdeshire worker in Winnipeg, Spr. Joseph Rachwaiski was making his first ocean trip. The foremost topic on his mind was seasickness, and he hoped "I don't get it."

Keyed for action, a group of Canadian parachutemen with the Imperials, all graduates of the Fort Benning, Ga., parachute - troop training centre, and although only five practice jumps are needed to qualify for their wings most of them had eight or nine jumps to their credit.

Two brothers from Parry Sound, each had an equal desire for action and met each other before the medical officer for examination and

Baseball No Longer Young Man's Game As Veterans Pave Way for Many Loop Victories

Pirates Beat Dodgers Twice to Run Wins Up to Ten of Last 13 Games

VETERANS WIN

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Frisch appears to have come up with something that would at least give the host-laugh to the old gag that baseball is a young man's game. Now that he's found it, he has his Pittsburgh Pirates parading up the trail.

Including yesterday's twin win over the busted bubble of Brooklyn —the Dodgers — the Pirates have put together four victories in a row and 10 out of 13, and at this writing they are close enough to second place in the National League to reach over and give the Bums a G. I. haircut.

Inasmuch as the Pirates hitting packs little power, it is obvious their boost lately lies in the elbowing forces Professor Frana has been privseating. More particularly, it tests on three aged pitching arms, belonging to Rip Sewell, Bob Klinger and Wally Hebert.

These three have won 29 of the Bucs' 48 games to date. Klinger tossed a two-hitter over the first day's opener and Hebert backed it up with a four-hitter in the afterpiece, and the Pirates rang the cash register 7-1 each time.

Of course, all this is just so much extra gravy for the Cardinals of St. Louis, because they also grabbed off a pair, knocking over Boston Braves 5-1 and 7-3 to run their winning string to eight straight and skyrocket their National League lead to 8 1-2 games.

Yankees Forge Ahead

Over in the American League, meantime, the Yankees hoisted their lead to seven full games by splitting with Chicago White Sox. The Sox squeaked through in the opener 2-1 on Thurman Tucker's ninth inning homer, while the Bombers hit the jackpot 6-3 in the afterpiece. The Sox played the second game under protest after a balk was called on pitcher Orval Grove in the eighth.

Second place Detroit Tigers dumped Philadelphia 3-0 in their first game, behind Dizzy Trout's five-hit flinging, but the Athletics came back for a 6-1 edge in the second tussle. Although held to two hits by Johnny Gorsica, Boston Red Sox belted the Brownies twice 7-0, as Tex Hughson turned in win No. 12 with a three-hitter, and 6-4 as Bobby Doerr hit his fourth homer in four playing days. Vernon Kennedy's seven-hitter gave Cleveland an 8l2 win over Washington Senators in their curtain-raiser, as the Tribe went on a four-run fourth inning spree to take the nightcap 7-2.

New York Giants' losing run reached seven straight as Chicago Cubs clouted the Coogan Bluffers twice by 4-0. A 5-1 attack gave Cincinnati Reds a 7-3 win over the Phillies, but Jimmy Wasdell knocked in two runs home to pace the Phils to a 3-1 nightcap win.

Saturday also was a busy day. In the National League Chicago trimmed New York 7-1, Pittsburgh handed the same kind of treatment to Brooklyn by a 6-1 count, Cincinnati hung a 5-3 licking on Philadelphia and St. Louis whitewashed Boston 3-0.

In the junior league Philadelphia trounced Detroit 8-4, Boston took St. Louis 10-3 and Chicago dropped the first half of a doubleheader to New York 5-1, only to take the nightcap 5-4. Cleveland took Washington 2-0.

WHAT'S DOING IN SPORT

(By The Canadian Press)

The $10,000 Tam O'Shanter tournament at Chicago, openly designated "Golfing Circus," was scheduled to break to a fizzle Sunday but it didn't — for the simple reason that an unknown, Frank White of Greenwood, Miss., and the money-veteran, Jug McSpaden of Philadelphia, each shot a 71 in the final round to come out even, 283, for the 72 holes in the open division. The pair will play off today for an added 18 holes for the big cash.

While 35,000 fans swarmed the grounds to watch the battle of the links in its final stages, still another tie developed for third place when Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., and the more famous Byron Nelson penned their tortuous way to the 18th hole of the concluding set-to to wind up with 287's. Among the ladies, however, there was a clean-cut victory for Patty Berg of Minneapolis in a field of 17 competitors with a 72-hole score of 307, five over par and five better than the second lowest card.

During tournament week, some 80,000 persons had caught glimpses of golf by paying approximately $129,750 in war bonds and war savings stamps as the price of admission.

Gunder Haagg, touring Swedish galloper, turned on the speed Saturday night to step the fastest mile ever recorded in the U. S. 4:04.3, clipping 1.4 seconds from the 1934 mark of Glenn Cunningham and coming within .7 of a second to equal his own best time. The event, at Harvard Stadium, Cambridge, Mass., saw Gils Dodds of Boston finish second 10 yards back of Haagg.

In a field of eight three-year-olds, Slide Rule, owned by W. E. Boeing of Seattle, came through to capture the Arlington classic at Chicago, Saturday, a length ahead of Bourmont and five lengths in front of the third horse Chop Chop. Slide Rule, which earned a prize worth $53,450, ran the mile and a quarter in 2:04 3/5.

A slugging match in the Gilmore Stadium, Hollywood, Saturday saw a clean-cut 10-round victory for Henry Armstrong, former lightcrown champion, against Willie Joyce for the 56th fight in Hank's comeback drive after losing his title in Fritzie Zivic. Joyce claimed his jaw was broken again midway in the tilt.

Wendall Wathen and Franklin Safford both drove to two victories in Saturday's harness racing card at Old Orchard Beach, Me., before the best-betting crowd of the meeting. Safford reined Eddy Scott to win the $1,000 2:30 pace and Direct Me to the 2:13 pace. Wathen behind Volo H took the 2:15 pace and steered Demand Money first over in the $1,000 2:30 trot.

An average of $1,470,816 per day went through the mutuels during the 36-day Empire City meeting at Jamaica track, which came to a close Saturday, to set a new record for daily wagering. The previous record of $1,458,816 which was established at the recent Aqueduct meeting.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics lost outfielder Elmo Vale to the armed forces when the player was inducted into the U.S. Army Saturday, to report for duty three weeks hence.

The stewards at Detroit fairgrounds, Saturday suspended Johnny Adams, leading jockey of the U. S. last year, for alleged failure to ride for Earl H. Beasley in the third race under the terms of a written agreement. Instead, Adams rode Amber Light in the Arlington classic at Chicago in which he finished last.

Unbeaten in three previous starts, Reveley was forced to bow to Speed King in the $1,000 R. K. Devereaux stake for 2-26 trotters at North Randall, Saturday after taking the third heat. Harry Hanneman drove Speed King to win the second start in 2:03, the fastest time of the day and followed with a third heat victory in 2:06½.

In his first race overseas, Lieut. Larry O'Connor of Toronto, British Empire champion and Olympic contestant, ran the 120-yard hurdles at an Allied Nations services meet at Epsom, England, Saturday. Sgt. Sydney Wooderson, great British runner, took the mile for the Imperial Army in 4:12.8.

New York, July 26 — (AP). — Dodging again, latest rumor is that Glenn Rums are after Jumsock Huck Geary, the Pirate shortstop, to play shortstop. Branch Rickey's concern about the home life of his players might be just what Huck needs.

Monday Maimes:

Pitcher Elmer Riddle of the Reds is in his fifth season of big league baseball and hasn't made an error yet... Joe Neville, the Delaware, O., harness racing maestro, is trying to promote a match race between pacers Adios and Senator Abbe ... amateur golfers in the Tam O'Shanter tournament had to be careful as well as good. With all the odd prizes George may put up there was danger of collecting more than the U.S.G.A. limit of $100 in war bonds and thus disqualifying themselves.

Fight Fighting:

After George Kochan, the Coast Guard middle weight, and Howard Bennett put on a torrid fight in Baltimore recently, Kochan turned to a dressing room attendant and said: "Send for the promoter" ... A few minutes later Promoters Fuchser and Goldberg tiptoed tearfully into the room, ready for a squawk ... "When do we fight again," Kochan demanded. "And next time you'd better give us a couple of clubs."

Young Men of 18 Wanted for the CANADIAN ARMY

One Full Year's Training Must Take Place Before Going on Combat Duty

ALL Canadian men who have reached their eighteenth birthday may now enlist in the Canadian Active Army. That means from the day you pass your physical tests and sign up you will receive standard rates of soldier's pay and your dependents will receive standard separation allowances. It also means that each enlisted man will receive free dental and medical care. But, it does not mean that you will be sent on combat duty at once, for each enlisted man will receive one full year's training before taking his place in the fighting line.

Here is an opportunity for young Canadians of eighteen to receive a full year of training, a real conditioning period in which muscles will be toughened, minds made more alert. A year in which to prepare for the biggest task that has yet faced us—a job of assuring freedom for ourselves and liberating millions more. It means, too, a full year's training that will make you fit and keep you fit. Regular meals, regular hours, and regular training that will put you in the pink of condition. So, if this year you have reached your eighteenth birthday, apply to your nearest Recruiting Office.

FREE YEAR IN UNIVERSITY

1270 young men between the ages of 17 and 21 who have already successfully passed university entrance and who have successfully passed physical tests will be selected for one year's university tuition. This year will apply on their B.A. or B.Sc. on return from duty overseas. Your nearest Recruiting Office will give you particulars.

Horse Sense Bridge

1ST 'ON NOSES'

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge grows on you. As soon as you learn first round bids, you yearn for what comes next. You hanker to know how to handle second round bids.

Like first round bids, all second round bids follow the order of preference in T-A-N; takeout, first; assist, second; no-trump, last. That keeps you on the beam with any hand.

You have this hand:

♠ A G 6
♥ A Q 9 5

Your opening bid with that hand is one heart. You have all the needs for an opening bid of one in a suit. With two equal length biddable suits, you should first bid the higher rank.

If partner responds with a takeout to a new suit, that is a one-round forcing signal. It forces to bid again. And to decide your next bid, you merely follow T-A-N.

Suppose partner's response is one spade or two clubs. You must bid again. A change in suit call is the first choice of bids. So you now bid two diamonds.

Instead of one spade or two clubs suppose partner's response is two diamonds. That would also be a takeout to a new suit, forcing for one round.

But now you have no new takeout suit to show. Because if partner bids diamonds, any diamond bid by you would be a no-trump. So, without a new takeout suit to show, you still assist by three diamonds.

Suppose when partner bids two diamonds, you did not have support for that suit. In that case, you would have no takeout and no assist. Therefore, you would have to bid two no-trump.

I hope this registers. When partner takes out to a new suit, you must bid again. Don't look for a takeout. Look for an assist. Don't look for a takeout or assist, bid no-trump.

T-A-N is just a simple, perfect bridge dial.

"The Ape Man"

"The Ape Man" fully lives up to the standards set for pictures starring Bela Lugosi, unquestionably the screen's most famous, or most menacing figure.

This amusing Monogram drama opened an engagement at the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight and was revealed as a "horror" film of the first grade. The psychological basis of the story is so presented as to seem very real, and thus the situations carry unusual force and impact. In fact, the circumstance results in a picture well calculated to leave the spectator limp in his chair.

Lugosi in his sinister self as the centre of an amazing series of events, and Wallace Ford and Louise Currie, as a pair of newspaper reporters, furnish excellent support. The same is true of a number of other capable players as J. Farrell MacDonald, Minerva Urecal, Henry Hall, Teddy Littlefield, George Kirby and Wheeler Oakman. Emil Stern's impressive action of a giant ape also furnishes the story with one of its principle characters.

"They All Kissed the Bride"

Joan Crawford returns to the type of romantic comedy characterization which led to her original success, joyfully returned to the Capitol Theatre, Sunday midnight in Columbia's "They All Kissed The Bride", a tender and warmly human love story with Melvyn Douglas delightfully counter-balancing Miss Crawford's flair for the bizarre, whose stellar cast includes Roland Young, Billie Burke and Allen Jenkins.

The Universal News of the day completes the big double program.

"FLIGHT FOR FREEDOM"

The dramatic story of a woman flier who sacrifices life and love on the star of Patriotism is brought to the screen in "Flight For Freedom" starring Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Joe Buzas' Fine Batting Accounts for Winning Runs As Bears Sweep Doubleheader

A Day of Doubleheader Wins for Maple Leafs and Rochester

BUFFALO'S HIGH SCORE

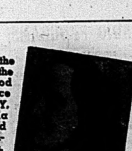
By The Associated Press

Joe Buzas is living up to the high hopes held for him at Lewisburg, Pa., when he was playing baseball for Bucknell University.

Buzas, now playing second for Newark in the Interstate League, was the only the deciding factor as the Bears swept a doubleheader from Baltimore yesterday by the identical score of 4-3. His single with the bases loaded in the seventh inning of the first game drove in the winning run. In the nightcap his fifth inning single again accounted for the winning tallyand gave Frank Hiller, former Lafayette Colleg star, his seventh triumph of the campaign. Altogether Buzas got three hits in six times at bat during the afternoon and drove in four runs.

The second place Bears failed to gain, however, as the leading Toronto Maple Leafs beat Jersey City twice, 8-3 and 3-2. Jarlett and southpaw Joe Sullivan received credit for the victories, although each needed relief from Al Shuman, recently obtained from Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rochester took both ends of a doubleheader from Syracuse, 8-1 and 1-0. Bill Donnelly twirled a four-hitter in the opener and Manager Red on Wargo's fourth inning double.



Buffalo's hitting helped to Montreal's six, but the Bisons had to be satisfied with a split of their twin bill with the Royals. Montreal took the opener, 9-2, but the Bisons outscored the aeroplane when the Bisons pounded out a 20-1 victory as Red Gentry notched his 12th triumph of the season.

Syracuse edged by Newark, 1-0, Saturday, while Toffolo earned a similarly slim, 2-1, victory over Rochester. Baltimor pushed over one extra run to take Jersey City 5-4 and Montreal executed a like squeeze to take Buffalo 7-6.

CASUAL COMMENT by R.J.C.

Nice Walking

"I say," said a bumptious individual to a man standing at the street corner, "just tell me how I can get to Blank street."

"Well," was the reply, "take the third turning on the left first to the right, second to the right again, fourth to left, first to right, fifth to left, cut across a square, pass through a cemetery, take the second to the left, and you'll get it."

The stranger joited down the particulars and followed the instructions given. After three-quarters of an hour he was starting to arrive at the place where he had asked the question, and to see the same man still standing at the corner.

"Why did you direct me wrong?" he demanded, angrily

"You asked for Blank street, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Well then. I directed you right. This is Blank street."

As they sying into the last week of their softball schedule, the Ladies' Softball League finds the clubs strung out pretty well with Bellaire and Descons battling it out for the fourth playoff spot. The American Optical gals just can't make the play-offs this year, as they only have one more league game to play. Although in the other slot today Bellaire can win, the Deacon A.C. has four more games to play, three at home and two away engagements. Then there's the Bellance nine sitting with one more game to play, which they have to win in order to break even on the season with fifty percent ball as Harold Kirby's gals today have won four and lost five. SWACO and Bristol are in the moneyed series with Bristol sporting the Red-Sargent can't do any worse than a tie even if they lose their remaining game. However, you can count Johnny Symons' nine in for the third team leaving the worrying between Deacons and Bellaire for that fourth play-off spot.

The league standing.

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Bristol	7	2	.778
SWACO	6	2	.750
Bell-Sargent	5	4	.556
Bellaire	4	5	.444
Optical	2	7	.222
Deacons	1	8	.111

Games this week: Tonight, Bellaire vs. SWACO. Wednesday, Optical vs. Deacons. Friday, Bellaire vs. Deacons.

It's play-off time.

So the clubs in the Men's Softball League have narrowed down to three, Reliance, No. 3 ITS, and Bristol "Bombers". In the next round it's the Flyers versus the Bombers, with their best-in-three series opening this evening at the Pats' Grounds.

PL. Archie Green has a new soundman in Bill Bancroft but hurl against the Bristol crowd and Connie Marsh limits. It must be remembered the Bombers went into their series with the Marines on the short end of the betting, but they finished by coming home on the long end of the scoring. The Bombers have taken on Gerald Bartlett's Pats' Grounds for the finals, and perhaps the most improved team in the circuit, the Flyers haven't played a league game in exactly two weeks, but Archie Green has kept his charges primed with inter-club exhibitions.

Incidentally on Tuesday night the Reliance and Flyers are playing a double-header batteries for a practice game that should be interesting as well as tonight's play-off.

Remember when.

The Canadian Olympic track team defeated Scotland at Greenock winning five out of seven events, 17 years ago today. E. H. Liddel, Scotch champion, was beaten in the 100 and 200 yard dashes by Cyril Coaffe of Winnipeg in seclusion.

Tucked away as the preliminary bout for Frank Tunney's weekly haul and grand show at the Hurst arena, is about as snappy a bout as could be lined up, points out a fight fan.

"Why a scrap between Texas Dick Bishop and Doc Price should be on as a preliminary is just a question I can't answer. These two have everything and if Wednesday night's curtain-raiser doesn't steal the show, well I'll give up guessing 'em," predicted the regular customer. Bishop, by the way, is the general run of the fans still won't stand idle and see "Toar" Morgan pushed around too much by "Irish Jerry" Monahan in the main affair.

NEAT SKUNK KILLED

Dundalk, Ont., July 26 (CP) — A skunk was in the habit of sneaking up and came to an untimely end here, trapped and dispatched with a rifle bullet. Like most skunks, this jimmy had a taste for chickens, but unlike most skunks, on the day in question, he worked on a system—laying his victims in a row, one hour before evening. Seventeen chickens and 19 bantams were his score before the inevitable end came.

LIKED THE RINGS

Joliet, Ill., July 26 (AP)—A young man looked at a tray of diamond rings at a jewelry store recently and then told the clerk, Mrs. Lucille Scharbich: "I like that one very much, but I don't like them all". Snatching the tray, he fled out the door and escaped. The 14 rings were valued at $8,000.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma on account of needing new shoes already, partly on account of the way my last new ones are starting to look and partly on account of the new size of my feet, and we stopped at pop's office and came home with him, and on our way in the house we started to go passed the market, ma saying, Oh, that reminds me, William, my food stamps expire today, I wish you'd stop in here with me a minute or two.

A what or two? Ye gods look at that gang of people lined up at the meat counter, pop said, and how sad, now William dont bother because you're hurt, just wait in line with me for 5 minutes, that's all I ask.

Okay, but 5 minutes wont even get us started, pop said.

Which it hardly didn't, and pop said, Let's go, it's been 5 minutes for sure, and when we came to meet us at least wait here till I find out if my tickets really expire tomorrow, but ma said we'll just go to the front of the line, the lady in back of us sayins, Why where is she going, the idea, and the man in front of us saying, That's downright chizzeling.

Gosh on, Benny, there's a draft here, pop said, and we got out of the line and who came to meet us but with wrapped un meat, pop sayins, Yve gods dont tell me pop had the nerve to charge it at the head of the line and get waited on? and ma sayins, Most definitely not, the idea. That silly unobservant butcher must of thought it was really my turn, because just as I started to inquire about the stamps he asked me what I'd have, and it was certainly quicker and more beautiful to say briefly, "Two pounds of sirloin steak and half a dozen lamb chops" than to go into a lengthy explanation of his mistake with all those people waiting. See Benny?

It's a women's world, I hope by the time I grow up I can look pop in the face in its cooked state I'll of forgotten my embarrassment, pop said.

Which he did, judging by all the steak he ate at supper.

CHAPTER 19

Leaving the window she went to the bookcase and picked up Neville Henderson's "Failure of a Mission" and sat in the deep green chair and opened it. If she could pick up one or two ideas from the book they would have something to discuss as they rode to the Island. But her hands were trembling and she hated the wild thing enclosed in her that brought the emotions to the surface and put her nerves on edge. He was Clare's husband she told herself with firmness. Clare was his wife. They had been married for five years. Payne was distant and unapproachable. He had to be. There was no sense in the pursuit of her feelings when she was with him. There was no sense in her fate when she looked at him ungraded, no sense, but a full measure of radiance and surrender oblivious of danger. Her mind was no good to her. Her feelings arrogantly overrode her mind stamping out reason and truth.

Meegan was sitting in Payne's living room looking at words in a book that ordinarily would have made extremely good sense to her and which now made none when the door opened and Payne, wearing a tan suit, came in and placed a brown Gladstone by the door.

There was amusement in his voice when he said, "There's a storm coming. Didn't you see?"

She sat up with a start. "No, I didn't notice."

He walked to the window and said, "The boy's got it. He can ride alone." And he lowered the window and drew the curtains, shutting out the window on which the rain had just begun to pelt.

"Of course we could have a cocktail while we wait." He came back and stood over her. "Is it coincidental that it rains when I'd very much like a cocktail just now?" who thought me wistful. You see.

"No. Stay where you are. The truth is that the kitchen isn't big enough for two."

When he came back he placed the tray with the cocktails on a coffee table before her and then drew up another of the deep chairs close to the table.

"I have guests here, Meegan. Consequently I have nothing else to offer you."

"I don't want anything else. This is very pleasant."

He sat back with the glass in his hand and obviously he was listening to the rain. He smiled, the quick flash of a spontaneous smile before he said, "This is the first time I've ever wanted to drink a toast to coincidence. But I should t2ink coincidence personified is a someone with a sense of humor a slightly malicious sense of humor." He did not speak at once. Then he said, his voice lower, "It's difficult to be impersonal in a setting like this and with a girl like you. But I could be. I'd like to tell you what a lovely person I think you are and how pleasant and stimulating it is to be with you. Pleasan is rather a negative word. You are certainly not negative. When you are with some persons, the clock stops. You are one of those persons."

"Thank you. Do you . . . do you think the storm will last long?"

"All night." He smiled at her. "But we can't talk about the weather, you know. It's too obvious. Let's talk about you."

"I'll only sound coy when I say there isn't anything to tell about me. Heaven forbid I should ever be coy."

"You couldn't be. Do you remember the first time you tried to ride a bike?"

"Perfectly. Suddenly you had to remember severel things at once, steering and pedalling and looking out for ot-ers. What sort of little boy were you?"

He chuckled again. "Opinions differ on that score. I thought I was a fine little chap with some splendid ideas but there were some well paid educators never complain I don't remember my mother. When you haven't a mother, you invariably feel that home is just a place where you're stopping, which probably accounts for my wanderlust. A boy's mother is the first woman in his life, the first woman he loves. If he doesn't remember her, then he begins with several strikes against him in his understanding of women."

"And then?"

He smiled. "All right. Schools here and abroad until I didn't know which country or language was mine. I was a fortunate lad in many ways. I was on my own most of the time and there was no one to spoil me."

"No one?"

"No one. My father was a busy man who left educators to the job of preparing his son for life. And I'll help you."

As long as the boy is happy even if he didn't learn anything except skiing and boxing and fishing and shooting would be splendid. Do you see I had a beautifully rounded education."

"But no home life."

"You don't miss it if you've never had it."

Meegan said, "I've often wondered why you didn't come home when the war began. I knew you had business here and there was so much to be done."

He looked away, frowning. "Clare didn't want to come back and it was unwise to coerce her. I went into government because there seemed to think I had knowledge that could be useful to them. So you see I didn't spend all my time gunning myself on the Riviera. Their aviation interested me. In fact, they began to suspect I was too much interested." Looking at her again, he smiled. "And a girl didn't know existed thought I was a slacker. . . . Curious."

"It isn't particularly curious when one is well known and the other obscure."

"The most curious thing of all is that you are not married. You don't look quite as unhappy now as you looked in the station."

"I'm not. When you saw me, I was feeling dead inside."

"The young man? What's the matter with him?"

She said, "To me the sorriest spectacle on earth is the sight of a man and woman married to each others and strangers with no thought or feeling one for another. That is beating yourself against a stone wall until you are senseless, until there is nothing left of the intangibles in yourself that you valued. That's why I won't marry him. Was the rain stopped? With the curtains drawn I can't see . . ."

"I don't want to see. I want to know about those intangibles."

"No, really, I'd rather not." She was saying too much, taking up too much time. The clock had stopped.

"I'm curious," he said. "And coincidence doesn't strike a second time, you know."

When she smiled, she saw that he was smiling at her, that they were smiling at each other.

She said, "Very well. All I have now are intangibles like faith and truth and courage. And I believe that what is to come our intangibles will keep us up and keep us going. I'm not the woman we've set up in store by in the past. I miss some of the things. It's true. Our house used to be a house with lights on every night and people dining and the silver always polished. The times that brought the war made us poor. I'm not saying this because I want sympathy. I loathe sympathy. I'm saying it to make a point, this point: that I am more than willing to give up the things I've been used to if people who had much less than I can have a little more." She can see he was an honest and lasting peace while a few have too much and a great many have too little. That sounds very grand and noble, I know. So many grand and noble things are said but never done because it's so much simpler to think them . . ."

He did not say anything. He sat there looking at her thoughtfully. Then he got up and parted the curtains, looking at the rain drying on the windows.

Unfair as it was the comparison between Paul and Payne nevertheless engaged at her during the drive to the island. As they approached Payne said, "I'll stop a moment to see how Clare is and then drive you home."

"Please don't. It's no trouble. I can walk."

"Of course you are not going to walk. You don't mind if anyone knows I brought you home, do you?"

"Why no. Certainly not."

"Wait, no. Certainly not."

He walked across the lawn, a tall, long-legged fair man whose alert step had become so lovingly familiar in so short a while as the clear directness of his blue eyes and the deep richness of his voice. And had they said in the space between? She must remember every word of it. No, she must remember none of it.

She was aware that day was fading and the long twilight lasting when she saw him walking toward her again, his head lowered a little. When he reached her, he lifted his head and she could read by his expression whether he was worried or annoyed.

He smiled. "Do you still want to go for a swim? Why don't we go together? Have you a suit in the bath house?"

"I always keep one there."

"I have one here in the car. Clare isn't home. Miss Willoughby told me she'd been delayed in town. I don't see any reason why you shouldn't get in a swim after a hot day in town. Would you like to rail your mother?"

"It isn't necessary. I didn't tell her when I'd be back."

In the bath house she changed quickly, wondering why no sense of guilt cut through her happiness as a sharp saw cuts through wood. It seemed entirely natural to be going for a swim with Payne. All at once she recalled that as they drove by the club house, she had heard Payne call in the club house porch as she always did. Certainly he had not been worried or to call attention to herself. She had waved again, but that had occurred to her either that there was anything wrong or improper in being with Payne.

The twilight had deepened and there was no one except Payne on the beach when she came out.

They went in and swam. He called to her once and she lifted her head and waved. When he saw her swimming ashore, he followed her and stood on the shore and put on their robes.

"Do you ever go in for a swim at night?" he asked.

"I used to. I haven't done it in years. We used to go in when we were forbidden to."

He smiled. "We'd better change. You're shivering."

They walked slowly up the hall she saw that there were no lights in the house. The rain had ceased. The friends with whom her mother had spent the afternoon had no difficulty in persuading her to stay to dinner.

"How is the front door?" Payne asked.

When she turned to him quickly, he was smiling. Did he know? Had he suspected?"

"Oh, it's all right now. We didn't have any more trouble with it."

When he stopped the car, he said, "Coincidence has given us a long afternoon, Meegan."

"Yes, it's been fun."

"Yes," he said, "it has been fun."

Replies to Col. Drew on Power Sites Along the Ottawa River

Drew who, he said, had been not inspiring referred to as the political orphan."

A promise by Col. Drew to reduce school taxes, he said, was on shifting the power to pay party to fulfill. The funds necessary for such undertaking must come from the pockets of the people.

Axis Breakdown Seen in Balkans, Nations Nervous

By FRANK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, July 26 — (Monday) — (AP)—Signs have begun to appear in the Balkans indicating the possibility of a breakdown in the Axis structure there, with Nervousness there, and predict that a series of swift Allied successes in the Mediterranean might cause a revolt against the Bulgarian Alliance with the Axis.

Travellers from Hungary says that the same condition prevails in that country, and that the Hungarians appear definitely set against further active participation in the war.

Surprises, perhaps swift collapse of the Axis grip on Southeastern Europe are in the offing, Moscow says, it is probable that none of the Axis satellites in the Balkans or in Europe will remain until Allied armies are close at-hand, for fear of Nazi reprisals.

August, September Canning Sugar Coupons Are Now Good

Ottawa, July 26 — (CP) — Extra sugar for August and September canning sugar coupons are good now, the Sugar Rationing Price Price Board announced in a statement which said this move was made in response to requests from fruit now available.' Expiry date of the coupons remains unchanged.

"This does not mean that additional sugar for canning purposes will be available later in the season," a statement said. "The action now is made for the convenience of women who want to can the fruit when it is ripe, instead of waiting for additional sugar allowance being increased."

The Board statement said: "A larger proportion of the total year's supply of sugar has been issued in the first six months than was expected.

"This does not mean that any greater quantity of sugar will be available during the latter part of the year, but simply that 4 greater proportion of the total supply will be delivered in the early part of the year...."

British Naval Forces Attack 2 Nazi Convoys

London, July 26 — (CP) — Fighting their way through the heavy screen of escort vessels, light British naval forces attacked a German convoy in the Ionian Island, on Saturday night and torpedoed and damaged two ships, the Admiralty announced today.

Earlier today the announcement said, another convoy, consisting of light British craft engaged the escort vessels in a sharp close-range duel, as a result of which one ship was probably sunk and others damaged.

"In the final stages of the action it was noticeable that the enemy's fighter aircraft, Spanish manned, declined," the communique added.

No confirmation from German escort vessels that at one time in the flight they were observed firing on each other, it was added.

The German escort craft were said to include destroyers, torpedo boats and "R-boats."

The British naval forces suffered no damage or casualties, the communique said.

Another German convoy was attacked almost simultaneously south of Greece, the Admiralty announced, but the results were known to have been inconclusive, it was added that the convoy was believed to have had to hit by gunfire.

The British craft participating in this engagement included cruisers, destroyers and minesweepers, but all returned, the Admiralty said.

Lord Wedgewood, 71, Dies in London, Eng.

London, July 26 — (CP) — Lord Wedgewood, 71 staunch advocate of a union of Great Britain and the United States, died at his London home today.

Elevated to the peerage in 1942 after 36 years in the House of Commons, the late Wedgewood frequently had shocked the more conservative members of Parliament by radical circles by the views which he expressed, not only on political but on many social issues which took him to the United States.

Known as a friend of the American states, Lord Wedgewood was a descendant of the family which originated the famous pottery bearing its name.

He represented the Newcastle-Under-Lyme in Commons from 1906 to 1942 — as a Liberal until 1921 and then as a Labor member. He served in the First Great War in France, in East Africa and in the Middle East, where he was awarded the D.S.O.

None of the United Nations leaders is known to have stated specifically that Hitler and Hitler and Mussolini would be jailed or executed. The purpose of the United Nations commission is to investigate and report what war criminals "regardless of rank".

8 AMERICANS ARE INDICTED FOR TREASON

Seven Are Charged With Broadcasting From Germany, One From Italy for Axis

ALL ARE ABROAD

Washington, July 26 — (AP) — Eight Americans, including two women, who have broadcast regularly from Germany and Italy in behalf of the Axis war effort, were indicted today for treason, and Attorney General Francis Biddle said they would be brought to trial when caught.

The indictments are similar, each alleging that the defendant named aided enemies of the United States by repeated broadcasts designed "to persuade citizens of the United States to decline to support the United States in the conduct of the war."

Seven of those charged have been broadcasting from Germany, one from Italy. Six are native Americana, the other two are naturalized Americans of German birth.

Names of Defendants

The defendants, with a summary of their backgrounds as outlined by the Justice Department, are:—

Ezra Pound, 57, a native of Hailey, Ida., a poet and writer; only one of the group who broadcasts from Italy.

Robert H. Best, 47, a native of Sumter, S. C., former United States Army Officer and long a correspondent for American interests in Europe.

Frederick Wilhelm Kaltenbach, 48, a native of Dubuque, Iowa, where he was discharged from a high school teaching position after organizing a Brown Shirt group among students; a former army officer, described as the Nazi's American counterpart of, "Lord Haw-Haw."

Douglas Chandler, 54, a native of Chicago who was reared in Boston; served in the United States Navy; broadcast from Germany as "Paul Revere."

Edward Leo Delany, 57, born in Olney, Ill., actor; went to Europe in 1939; known on the Nazi radio as "E. D. Vard" before his broadcasts were stopped in June, 1942.

Constance Drexel, 46, a native of Darmstadt, Germany, who acquired citizenship through her father's naturalization when she was four years old; went to Europe as a correspondent in 1915, later working for newspapers in the United States.

Jane Anderson, 50, born at Atlanta, reporter; was saved from death by the intercession of the United States' State Department after being arrested as a spy by the Spanish loyalists; her Nazi broadcasts ceased in April, 1942.

Max Otto Koischwitz, 41, a native of Germany, taught German at Columbia University; became a citizen through naturalization in 1935; he is known as "O. K." on Nazi broadcasts.

Protest High Prices Charged for Fruit

London, Ont., July 26 —(CP)— The London Consumers' Association has protested to the Prices Board against high prices being charged for fruit there. Mrs. Lucy Cole, president of the organization, said today.

"Hundreds of housewives in London have a lot of sugar on hand for canning and now they can't use it because they can't afford to buy the fruit," she said.

M. M. Robinson of the Ontario Fruit Council, in an interview in Toronto Saturday, said high prices being asked for Ontario fruit were due to a shortage.

65,000 More Women Needed in Canada's Armed Forces

Ottawa, July 26—(CP)—Canada's armed forces require the services of an additional 65,000 women, Wing Officer Willa Walker, R. C. A. F. Women's Division Staff Officer, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to an Ottawa Service Club (Rotary), she placed the recruiting quota for the services at: army 25,000, R. C. A. F. 25,000, Navy 5,000.

She said these women were needed "as quickly as they can be trained and enlisted."

"The 27,000 women now in uniform are "a component and integral part of the Navy, Army and Air Force" rather than auxiliary service, Wing Officer Walker said. At present there were some 12,000 women in the Army, a similar number in the R. C. A. F., and 3,000 in the Navy.

"In Canada there are approximately 700,000 women, exclusive of women on the farms and in war industries, between the ages of 18 and 45, single or married without dependent children, who could be enlisted."

There were 500 of W. A. C's and 400 airwomen serving overseas and they would soon be joined by Wrens in the Naval Service, in Canada women were playing a vital part in the defence of the country.

Wing Officer Walker urged those with eligible daughters, sisters or friends to encourage them to enlist.

Maid Describes Dinner at Oakes'

Nassau, Bahamas, July 26 — (AP)— While Nancy Oakes de Marigny listened intently, a Negro maid, Mabel Ellis, told today how Nancy's father, the multi-millionaire British baronet Sir Harry Oakes dined and played cards with friends shortly before he was bludgeoned and left to die in a blazing bed the night of July 7.

Nancy flashed smiles at her husband, Alfred de Marigny who is charged with murdering his father-in-law.

They were sitting near each other in the courtroom where a twice-postponed preliminary hearing for the 35-year-old De Marigny was being held.

Mabel Ellis, maid at the Oakes' estate, Westbourne, said Sir Harry dined at home July 7 with Harold C. Christie, a business associate, and a couple whose names she did not know.

Later, she continued, the four played cards.

Before leaving, she added, she placed before the door to Sir Harry's bedroom a spray gun containing insecticide.

It was this inflammable liquid, the prosecution says, which the slayer used to spray Sir Harry's body, bed and room before setting the fire which he apparently hoped would blot out evidence that the 68-year-old man had been bludgeoned.

Canadian Downs 21st Nazi Aircraft

London, July 26. (CP Cable)— R.C.A.F. Headquarters announced today that Wing Cmdr. F. E. Johnson, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, an R.A.F. leader of a Canadian fighter wing, shot down his 21st German aircraft during a sweep over Holland last night. The action took place when his wing was providing cover for a bombing raid on Schipol, Holland.

Study Labor Requirements For Fuel-Wood Cutting

Fully cognizant of what may be a distressing fuel situation in the Belleville district this winter, the local Employment and Selective Service office is giving a great deal of attention to the labor requirements for fuel-wood cutting in this area, according to Mr. Eric Naylor, acting manager of the local office.

Through a recent amendment to the National Selective Service regulations, the local office now has authority to compulsorily direct men to accept work at fuel wood cutting, it was stated. This may be done after a man has been otherwise unemployed for seven days, or a man in less important work may be directed to give his present employer seven days' notice, following which the Selective Service Officer may direct him to the cutting of fuel wood.

The employment office is trying to find as many men as may be suitable for this work among the applicants registering for job, while any man who is available to undertake this work will be a very welcome visitor at the office.

Transportation to employment will be looked after it was intimated by Mr. Naylor, while where necessary, a man may be accommodated in paying for necessities until him in paying for necessities until he receives his first pay on the job. Head Office of the Selective Service has repeatedly stressed to the local as one of the leading Canadian fuels, and of course it follows that the heavy cut expected must be made at this time of year.

Mr. Naylor pointed out that this area, which consists of the hill country surrounding Algonquin Park, is expected to produce 75,000 cords of fuel wood this year.

Say Badoglio Orders 22 Italian Divisions From Yugoslavia, Greece

Algiers, July 26 (AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio was reported today to have ordered 22 Italian divisions home from Yugoslavia and Greece and to have recalled three or four more from France.

Mussolini's Fall Is Taken Calmly In Northern Italy

London, July 26 —(CP)— News of Mussolini's downfall was taken calmly by Italians in northern cities of Milan, Milan and Turin, Swiss radio broadcasts reported today.

Telephone communication between Switzerland and Italy has been reopened and railway traffic is continuing regularly, said the broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press.

A Berne dispatch said traffic on the Chiasso railroad between the two countries was normal.

There still was no telephone communication between Stockholm and Rome, and Stockholm reported that Berlin also was said to be cut off from Rome.

Marshal Badoglio Never Had Any Love for Fascism

Marshal Pietro Badoglio the new Prime Minister of Italy, was always a soldier of his King. When the Fascists marched on Rome and Benito Mussolini was sitting in Milan waiting to take the train down to the capital, when all was safe, Badoglio, then chief of the Italian Staff, is reported to have assured Victor Emmanuel, he could, if ordered, disperse the blackshirt invaders with a single regiment. Unfortunately the King, Victor Emmanuel, never gave the word and the old marshal has had to wait until now to sweep out Mussolini and possibly the majority of his rabble.

Called on by Mussolini

The Fascists never took to Badoglio and he never took to them. It was only when the Abyssinian campaign was failing behind schedule that Mussolini was compelled to call him in as Italy's first ranking soldier to take Ethiopia that he returned for a short time to the limelight. Since then when on May 5, 1936 the grizzled gray-eyed old warrior led his troops into Addis Ababa, after a period of office as Viceroy of Abyssinia, he has been watched by the distrustful Fascists.

The marshal was born September 28, 1871, at Grassano Monferrato, in Piedmont, the Italian province of the Royal House of Savoy, and as a young man went through the military academy at Turin, Italy's Royal Military College. He was the son of a farmer. He has fought in five wars including his first east African experience as a young officer. His war experience covers the Italo-Turkey War 1911-1912; the first world war; the Libyan war of 1939; and when, brought out of retirement, to save the incompetency of Marshal Emilio DeBono, Mussolini's man, he soon wound up the Abyssinian campaign.

Always Feared Badoglio

Benito Mussolini was always afraid of him as the one man in Italy he could not subdue to his machinations. Thus his new appointment by the King shows a the last thing the old marshal could be considered is a Fascist. The marshal is married and has a daughter.

For years Mussolini tried to keep him out of Italy on official missions such as his appointment as Italian Ambassador to Brazil.

The marshal holds many titles. For his attack on Saboitno in the first World War the King created him Marquis of Sabotino; for his effective command in Abyssinia, Mussolini made him Duke of Addis Ababa. But when the Duce kept him on in Ethiopia as viceroy, the old Marshal resigned and handed the vicerosyhip over to Marshal Graziano and went home nominally to write a history of the Italian war in Africa. The marshal has always been the man Italy summons in her hour of need. Even Mussolini, who disliked him could not get around sending for Badoglian troops leave the barges for shore on rafts and small craft—some even walking waist-deep.

CANADIANS INVADE SICILY FROM GIANT BARGES

New-type barges like these sailed right in on the beaches of Sicily, bringing their cargoes of men and supplies, without serious opposition. Invasion-trained Canadians landed with lightning speed, capturing shore gun positions before the enemy could open fire. Here, Cana-

The eyes of the nation are focused here every day

People today want all the news, all the facts, all the details they can get . . . to help them understand the events that are reshaping the world . . . to help them do their part in winning the war. That's why they're reaching so eagerly for their newspapers these days . . . and reading them more thoroughly than ever before. They know that nowhere else can they satisfy their hunger for news that's full and clear and graphic. And nowhere else can they get so quickly and completely the wartime regulations and instructions they must have to guide them in their homefront tasks. • This intensified interest in both the news and the advertisements in today's newspapers, attested again and again by exhaustive scientific studies, is what makes newspapers so effective a medium for the informative and helpful messages of wartime advertisers.

ITALY WILL BE 'SEARED, SCARRED, BLACKENED' UNTIL SHE SURRENDERS CHURCHILL PROMISES

"Will Hot Up the Fire To the Utmost" Prime Minister Tells Commons

No Offers of Peace Have Been Received

(BY E. C. DANIEL, ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER)

London, July 27 —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering House of Commons today that "Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other" unless the new government headed by Marshal Pietro Badoglio abandons Germany's war against the United Nations.

Speaking at a supreme moment in his career as Britain's wartime prime minister when his arch-foe Benito Mussolini has disappeared from the scene, Mr. Churchill called orders to exert the "utmost rigor of war" against Italy have gone out to Allied commanders.

Avalanche of Fire Ready

No overturns of peace have been received from the elderly successor to Mussolini, the "first of the dictators" to go, Mr. Churchill said, and therefore no new decisions by the Allies are called for except to bring "the maximum avalanche of fire and steel upon all targets of military significance throughout the length and breadth of Italy."

"I know little or nothing of the new government," he said. "I express no opinion upon it."

"Show in Their Own Juice"

The Allied course he said, would be to let the Italians "stew in their own juice for a bit" and to "hot up the fire to the utmost" with the aim of obtaining from the Italian government full facilities for carrying on the war against Germany.

Those facilities, it was assumed, included air bases.

But in the interest of the supreme object of destroying the Nazi war machine, he warned against throwing Italy into such political chaos as to leave "no means of government in existence or agitant with policing Italy while the war is pursued against Germany.

No Piecemeal Surrender

"The unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal," he said.

Declaring that the British and United States governments are in continuous consultation, he added they are "acting in the closest concert" in the Italian situation.

The British government, he said, is conducting an "increasingly successful war and policy" and then he offered a "word of caution."

"The whole edifice of the Nazi party and regime, their whole ideological outlook of it is called, will be disturbed and darkened by events which have happened and are going to happen in Italy," he predicted, "and the overthrow and casting down in shame and ruin of the first of the dictators and aggressor will lend strength and confidence to those zoom in the ears of those that remain."

Aware of Task Ahead.

Nevertheless, he added, Italy's war power was about one-tenth of that of Germany, and the Allies must not "allow this favourable inclination of our frontiers to blind us to the intensity of the task before us."

"I certainly don't wish, in the case of Italy, to tread a path that might lead to execution squads and concentration camps, and above all to have to carry on our shoulders a 300 of people who ought to be able to carry themselves," he said.

Mr. Churchill's entry into the House of Commons to discuss the downfall of the man he had castigated as a "pinchbeck Caesar" and "Tattered Lackey," was a procession of triumph from the gates of parliament to his seat.

He was cheered by a wailing crowd at the gates as he hastily walked to the Chamber.

But there was no suggestion of gloating as he discussed the fallen dictator, and his choice of adjectives was considerably less picturesque than some that he used in the past in discussing Mussolini.

Tactful Reference Renewed

The keynote of the Fascist arch has crumbled without a whimper, using no prophesy it does not seem unlikely that the whole Fascist edifice will fall to the ground in ruin if it has not already done so," the Prime Minister said.

Making his first war statement to Commons since the invasion of Sicily and the fall of Mussolini, Mr. Churchill told the House of Commons:

"We may reasonably expect very great changes will take place in Italy. What they will be and the way how they will impinge upon the forces of German occupation and control it is too early to forecast."

Declaring that vast Allied forces are standing on the doorsteps of Italy, the Prime Minister asked:

What is it that will force the army into Italy? They may bring, if the Italian people so decide, relief from war, freedom from servitude and after an interval a restorable place in a new and rescued Europe.

Italians Tired of Germans

He added: "When I learned of the scenes enacted in the streets of the city of Palermo, of the certainty of the United States army and I review the mass of detailed information with which I have been supplied I can not doubt that the main wish of the Italian people is to be quit of the German taskmasters."

Thus far, the Prime Minister added, he has had no information on peace overtures from Premier Pietro Badoglio's new Italian government.

"The decision of Italy to continue the war or to submit to defeat will be seriously affect the general course of the war and still less, would it alter its ultimate results," he said. "The only consequence will be that the fight for victory over Italy will be seared and scalded and blackened from one end to the other."

Meanwhile Mr. Churchill expressed no opinion on the new government of Italy.

Would Keep War From Fatherland

The Germans naturally desire that Italy shall become the preliminary battleground and that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war shall be kept as far away as possible

Fierce Artillery Barrage Prepared Way for Canadians in Central Sicily

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

On The Canadian Front in Central Sicily, July 25 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — The Canadians are driving forward again in rough country in Central Sicily and advanced at least six miles before darkness yesterday, in the wake of a tremendous artillery barrage.

The artillery followed a four-day battle and was accompanied by resounding artillery support from their tanks. A German-held town was captured at the Canadians' deepest eastward within sight of towering Mount Etna.

Etnaino did not give the exact location where the fighting was taking place but evidently it was somewhere northeast of Enna.)

The artillery opened up at 3 p.m., the zero hour. Infantry followed in the wake of the bursting shells and the Allied air forces bombed targets and strafed roads behind the German lines.

Within an hour the Canadians had gained their objective — a town in a fold of the hills.

The guns have been pounding away almost without a stop ever since the night of July 22. It has been an artillery blitz on the 8th Army pattern. Of El Alamein and Marath, not on such a big scale but applying the same principles of concentrated, persistent shellfire.

The Canadians have only 8th Army formation gaining yards at a time. Their endurance and ability to continue attacking even after the lengthy and exhausting advance from their bridgehead on Pachino-Peninsula are one of the wonders of the fighting here. Today I got an eagle-nest view of Saturday's fighting from a vantage point on towering cliffs.

The artillery barrage got under way as the Canadians prepared to attack their immediate objective, a town on a hill-top. Then the barrage grew steadily more intense and the shells screamed over the Canadians. German trucks were moving, apparently to the battle area, but the big guns caught them.

Two German tanks moved into an olive grove and a Canadian forward observation officer spotted them and tipped off a gun battery by wireless. The gunners hit it on the nose. I think one tank was destroyed, for there was a flash of flame and a pillar of black smoke curled up.

Although the artillery definitely reported enemy strong points on the road ahead, the Canadian infantry really went to work. A couple of regiments at a time seemed to be fighting. The shells rumbling over the cliff-

17,000 Proxies Reported Arrived From Overseas

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—The Daily Star says that Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario has been informed in Ottawa by post office officials that 17,000 proxy forms for use in the Ontario general election Aug. 4 have arrived in Canada by plane from overseas.

They were aboard the trans Canada Airlines transport plane which completed an Atlantic round-trip Sunday.

Major Alex Lewis, chief election officer for Ontario, on the basis of rough figures from the service, estimates that about 115,000 Ontario servicemen and women were eligible to use proxy forms to name a friend or relative at home to cast their votes. About 60,000 of these have returned the rest in Canada outside Ontario.)

(By The Canadian Press)

Only Few Yet Validated

Election Boards in Ontario ridings so far have validated only a few proxies for the provincial general election Aug. 4, it was disclosed today in a survey by The Canadian Press. However, it was indicated that revising officers anticipate many more will be presented at special sittings Aug. 3.

Ridings in which votes which men and women serving overseas or in the Canadian armed forces cast ballots a relative or friend to cast; their votes, require validation by election and revising officers. Regular sittings of revising officers voted last Saturday but special sittings are scheduled for Aug. 3 to handle late-arriving proxies.

In Oxford riding, revising officers at Woodstock and Ingersoll reported that "less than 50" proxies have been validated so far. In the city of Brantford and Oxford County 300 proxies have been validated in Wellington this instead of many more are anticipated for the Aug. 3 sittings.

Others reported so far: Niplissing (Liberal), Sault Ste. Marie; North two; Elgin none; Hamilton (four ridings—Hamilton-Centre, Hamilton-Wentworth and Wentworth 10; Welland six; Brantford five; Brant one.

HAMBURG RAIDED FOR FIFTH TIME IN 48 HOURS

Flames From Recent Raids Seen by Pilots Thirty Miles From Target

OTHER TARGETS HIT

London, July 27. — (CP)—For the fifth time in 48 hours, Hamburg was attacked from the air last night, the R.A.F. sending swift Mosquito bombers over the port for third successive night, the Air Ministry announced in a communique today.

Returning air crews said there was a clear sky over the devastated city and flames could be seen while they were still more than 30 miles from the target. Airmen were quoted as saying the flak was not as intense as they had expected. However some night fighters were met, they said.

The air battle designed apparently to flatten Germany's great Port of Hamburg began Saturday night when R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers launched the greatest raid of the war, dropping 2,300 long tons of explosives and incendiaries. Since that time the R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and the U.S.A.A.F. have kept up round-the-clock attacks.

The U.S.A.A.F. hit the port in daylight Sunday with a large fleet of heavy bombers and the same night R.A.F. and Canadian Mosquitoes took up the attack.

Nothing was said concerning possible losses in the Canadian issue.

R.A.F. reconnaissance pilots went over Hamburg yesterday after the devastation from the heavy attack by R.A.F. and Canadian heavy bombers Sunday night. They reported three fires were still burning.

Canadian fliers that took part by the hundreds in the Hamburg raid, flying both with squadrons from the R.C.A.F. bomber group and with R.A.F. crews, reported the German industrial city was well plastered with explosives.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 70 MORE VILLAGES IN OREL ADVANCE

Nazis Counter-Attack to Relieve Pressure Felt at Bryansk

FURIOUS FIGHTING

(By WILLIAM McGAFFIN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, July 27.— (AP)— Rain came to the aid of desperately resisting Germans in the Orel sector and slowed down somewhat the powerful Soviet offensive, although intensive battles continued, the Russian army newspaper Red Star reported today.

Front-line dispatches said the Germans threw in big forces of infantry and tanks in a grim effort to keep one important line open north of beleaguered Orel, the now all-but-surrounded German bastion. German infantry regiments with from 50 to 70 tanks managed to delay the Red Army's advance.

Elsewhere, particularly southeast of Orel, the Germans were reported maintained their advance, capturing Mikhailovka, Semenovskoye, Mekhovaya and Beresina, according to Red Star. The latter is on the extreme right flank of the northern advance, approximately 75 miles northeast of Orel, and is only 19 miles east-southeast of Zhizdra.

Consolidate Positions

The strategy of the Soviet forces, which reported a general advance of three to six miles, apparently was aimed at consolidating positions. None of the 70 freshly-captured towns mentioned in dispatches was of any importance, however, in the Germans' counter-attacks all up and down the Orel front, launching 17 successive attacks in one narrow sector in a single day, Red Star reported.

Nazi Position Menaced By Rome Debacle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The swiftly-moving Allied successes in Russia and Sicily were crowding Hitler into a mighty tight corner even before Mussolini's downfall came to increase the difficulties of the Nazi position.

The once widely-separate operations are creating a squeeze which, irrespective of developments on the Italian mainland, may in due course force the Fuehrer to pull back his entire battleline on the eastern front. That would be one of the greatest withdrawals in history. That line represents more than 1,000 miles of defences which have been buttressed with the bodies of hundreds of thousands of German youth.

The fact is that the Nazi chief is compelled to regard the assault on Sicily as the possible forerunner of an Allied drive up through the Balkans. That is multiplied by the Italian political upheaval which may result in a separate peace. An invasion of the Balkans would create a grave threat to the whole German right wing, which is shaking under the hammering by the Red Army.

Of course, the Anglo-American team has hinted to the world, for that matter guessing as to where it will strike next. Meanwhile the Allies themselves are keeping open minds, since a quick surrender of Italy would make the Balkan adventure decidedly more attractive. Should Marshal Pietro Badoglio withdraw from Yugoslavia and Greece the Italian troops which represent the main Axis defence there (and he is unofficially reported to have issued such an order) it would be the opportunities which the Allies could scarcely ignore.

In any event, it would be folly for the Nazi gangster to disregard the continuing of an early assault through the Balkans. His hope of avoiding a wholesale retirement of his hard-won positions in Russia and in Italy is to stabilize them. Allies off until the bad autumn weather arrives to inspect military operations in the Balkan peninsula. This likely accounts for his orders to his forces in Sicily to fight to the death.

GROUND OFFENSIVE AGAINST MUNDA NOW UNDER WAY

600-Ton Air Raid and Sea Bombardment Open the Drive

JAPS BLOCKADED

Allied Headquarters, the South-West Pacific, July 27 (AP)—Prepared by a 600-ton air and sea bombardment, Allied ground forces launched the strategic Munda airbase in the central Solomons in a drive to capture it, it was announced today.

Softened up by a week's continuous pounding by Allied warplanes, ground grudgingly all along the perimeter of the Munda defences gave way today, 500 yards in one sector, and Allied troops, who had been virtually lacking it undoubtedly was the heaviest fighting of the campaign.

This first general offensive reported since the battle for New Georgia began in June, came only ago followed a destructive attack by warships which hurled shells in a shattering inferno of thunder and flame into the Munda defences and personnel targets on Kolombangara.

An unspecified number and type of Allied warships, which had not lobbed shells into the Munda defences in what a spokesman for the Allied Headquarters termed as "heavy bombardment."

The Japanese at Munda have been blockaded effectively since the Americans first dropped in a single day on that sector.

More than 30 Zeros rose in challenge but it cost the enemy 11 and probably 8 of their fighting planes in the loss of one Allied aircraft.

The bombardment was followed by a strong fighter screen, bombed dispersal and bivouac areas of the Bulin-Rail airdrome where airmen had reported an enemy plane concentration.

NEW GOVERNMENT MAY SOON ASK FOR ARMISTICE

Berne Dispatch Says Peace Negotiations Already Started in Vatican City

PEOPLE DEMONSTRATE

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, July 27—(AP) While Premier Pietro Badoglio and his newly-formed cabinet set about the task of maintaining order and loyalty in Italy at the outward crumbling of Fascism, reports from Rome today indicated a popular belief here that one of the first acts of the government would be a request for an armistice.

The London Evening news agency quoted a Berne dispatch to the Svenska Dagbladet in Stockholm, as saying that preliminary negotiations for an armistice between Italy and the Allies began in the Vatican City Monday night. There was no immediate confirmation of this report, however.

(The Svenska Dagbladet dispatch also said that German Ambassador Hans Georg Victor Von Mackensen was holding on to his job, but that Premier Badoglio, apparently to keep the latter's attitude toward Germany.)

While Badoglio has not yet officially proclaimed the Fascist party dead, his new premier and his lieutenants are cleaning house throughout the country. The Fascist party headquarters have been taken over, Mussolini and other high Fascists are being arrested and the region of Messina Strait, and said anti-aircraft defences and Italian fighters have been shot down eight planes in Gulf of Sardinia.

German planes, the communique claimed, attacked warships and merchant vessels off the northern and eastern coasts of Sicily and heavily damaged four transports, two cruisers and a destroyer.)

Carry 100 Men

Two giant German 323-Messerschmitt transports, the R.A.F. Beaufighters. These planes are capable of carrying more than 100 men, but official reports did not state whether they were filled with troops.

Enemy losses skyrocketed in the Sicilian campaign as a result of actions of the line and a number of German bombers which left their effective strength in attempts to bolster Axis forces, with less forward rush of the Allied armies apparently the only slowing movement from Central Sicily.

The Canadians are in the midst of the operation and made gains against the heaviest opposition, and the Allied communique said the American advance, too, was proceeding "according to plan." However, the Germans are also engaging to stiffen their resistance as the Americans drive into the harbor core of the enemy's defence positions.

Rail Communications Hit

Medium bombers struck at railway communications at Marina Di Paola in Southern Italy while light bombers and fighters bombers continued the assault upon shipping in Sicily harbors and on road communications on the island, the Allied communique said.

On the night of July 25-26 the U.S. Mediterranean Air Headquarters said, by medium bombers and torpedo-carrying aircraft sank an enemy merchant vessel in the Tyrrhenian Sea.

In addition to the 21 Ju-52's shot down in offensive sweeps over the Messina area on July 26, Allied fighters shot down eight of the enemy escort planes.

Hammer Ground Targets

Medium bombers, in communications, planes hit objectives at Catania, Paterno, Nicosia and Cape Orlando in northeastern Sicily and Milazzo, on the northern end of the key potato of the Axis line in Central Sicily.

Fighters along the northeast coast, including Messina and Barcelona, were active, the Allied bombs to break up or slow down Axis reinforcement of Sicily. Railway sidings, military buildings and motor transports were attacked at Bagnara. A merchant ship and smaller vessels in the Messina Strait area, barges were strafed at Stefano Marino and the landing ground was attacked by fighters. Fires were set on the runway, a fuel dump and hangars.

In a sweep over Sardinia, fighters shot down three enemy planes, one of which went to FO. Lewis F. Parsons, Ottawa.

Except for the Central sector before Americans and Canadians beat back German counter-assaults and then advanced themselves, the battle of Sicily appeared to be passing through an interim period in which neither side was gaining strength for a showdown.

The Germans and Axis troops carrying airplanes, barges and merchantmen believed much of the ward, meeting increasing German resistance as they neared the Axis heart of Termini.

While the Germans had not taken over the entire Sicilian front, elements of their troops had been rushed in to bolster the Italians as they were taking over the main section.

The Germans apparently were striking back with counter-attacks in the landings of their big aerial transport, the Messerschmitt 323 in Sicily. Several days ago it was officially stated that the Germans had arrived on the island were captured or neutralized.

The Allied communique said the battle in Sicily continued "with undiminished strength and unaffected by political developments in Italy." Axis and Allied attacks replaced Allied tank and troop columns advancing on the central, midway point along the Northern Sicilian coast, and Allied air and naval attacks on airplanes successfully. It added.)

Confined to Patrol Activity

Activity on the British 8th Army's Catania front where the Germans have been fighting a rear guard for the Messina escape port was still confined to patrol activity.

Steering through the demoralized rear guard, the Americans were last reported occupying Termini, 20 miles east of Palermo, and today the latter port was believed to be well east of that point.

Heavy attacks resulted in the capture by Americans of 7,000 additional prisoners, said the communique issued in the Sicilian campaign to 70,000, of which the Canadians have taken some 7,000.

There was little of the heavy fighting yesterday such as that which marked the early days of the campaign, but it was believed that the Axis forces under Nazi Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring were making frantic preparations for a counter-Allied assault which appeared imminent.

21 Huge German Junkers Transports Downed Over Strait

Canadian, American Troops Repulse Nazi Counter-Blows In Central Sector

MANY AXIS DEAD

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press War Correspondent

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 27 (AP) — Canadian and American troops, thrusting themselves deeper into the Mediterranean area of Sicily, have cut to pieces waves of German counter-attacks in the central sector and advanced beyond ground strewn with Axis dead, Allied Headquarters announced today.

At the same time a Headquarters communique announced Allied air forces had smashed a new enemy attempt to bring reinforcements on to the island of Sicily by shooting down 21 huge German Junkers-52 transports in a battle over Messina Strait.

It was stated officially German troops and tanks were identified all along the entire front in Northeastern Sicily where they are attempting to build a dike across the tip of the island to keep the invasion gates in Italy.

Meanwhile, the Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press from a Rome broadcast, said the situation remained unchanged in Sicily.

The Italians reported another series of Allied air raids on the Naples and the region of Messina Strait, and said anti-aircraft defences and Italian fighters shot down eight planes in Gulfs of Sardinia.

German planes, the communique claimed, attacked warships and merchant vessels off the northern and eastern coasts of Sicily and heavily damaged four transports, two cruisers and a destroyer.)

Mussolini's Former Pals Deserted Him in Violent Session of Council

By FRANK BRUTTO
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, Monday, July 26 (Delayed) (AP)—Benito Mussolini's former pals of the Fascist Grand Council cut him down in a violent battle behind closed doors early Saturday Sunday as the dictator struggled to hold on to power, the newspaper Corriere Della Sera of Milan reported today.

Luciano Fascian, the paper declared, ended in "a farce in which Mussolini could no longer agree".

Then Carlo Scorsa and Roberto Farinacci Mussolini's chief supporters, "threatened to resign in a body because as they strove futily to oppose the Duce's opponents they were told to "pronounce the end of the Fascist regime," it said.

The newspaper presented this account of the fateful weekend hours ending with Mussolini's downfall:—

The Grand Council session began in Palazzo Venezia afternoon, was interrupted after six hours of acrimonious debate, and then resumed early Saturday as the dictator struggled to hold on to power, the newspaper Corriere Della Sera of Milan reported today.

Mussolini earlier had presented a report of the situation which was violently attacked by Grandi who proposed a motion to restore all government give all power to the Crown, and entrust the King with command of all armed forces. The motion proposed was supported by Marshal Emilio de Bono, Count Cabiasca Ciano, Giuseppe Bottai, Luigi Federzoni and several others.

The Grandi resolution was adopted by a vote of 19 against 7, with one absent.

Mussolini brought to the session a great show of defiance, declaring against his former friends and, showing a pistol, said: "I have a sacrid attack upon him, said: "I must send your daughter."

Grandi reacted violently. A wild discussion followed in which Scorsa and Farinacci participated. The latter two proposed new orders of the day, but were both voted and so unfavorable to Il Duce.

Grandi, the newspaper, ended the fight began in 1921 between Mussolini and Grandi. It was in 1921 that Grandi violently attacked Mussolini's politics at a Congress of the party in Rome.

The Corriere said that, on Sunday morning, Mussolini went to the King to report the situation. After this conversation and various talks all the energetic intervention of the Italian royal house, the end of the fascist regime was a reality."

Chief Probert Warns Drunkenness in Public Not to be Tolerated

NINE CONVICTIONS

Belleville police are determined to keep public intoxication to a minimum warned Chief Probert today as no less than nine persons including one woman appeared before Magistrate Ponton in police court charged with various infractions of the law. Seven pleas of guilty were accepted on drunk charges, while two others admitted to the illegal consuming of intoxicants in public.

Fines were levied and paid in all but one case, Adolph Tolouse, 45 of Toronto, who was given 30 days to pay the conventional ten and costs and therefore will spend the next 14 days as the guest of the city in the county jail in default. The lone woman charged was arraigned on Wednesday afternoon in a noticeable condition of drunkenness.

Tolouse was also apprehended on Victoria Park late last week by P.C. Evans, Today Chief Probert warned that drinking in public parks would not be tolerated and has issued stern instructions to the department to apprehend all parties seen in violation of the L.C.A. Today's list of nine convictions was a tribute to the police intend to eliminate such activities in public.

R. Robinson, 345 Gerrard Street in Toronto, appeared on a charge of obtaining drugs at the New Queens Hotel by fraud. Robinson left the local hostel leaving behind a bill of $6.95. Deputy Chief Harrison informed the court today restitution had been made, however. At the request of Assistant Crown Attorney E. Gordon Robertson, however, sentence was adjourned.

"Witness will appear before you on a similar charge in Trenton next this afternoon. Maybe you can dispose of both cases at the same time", quoted Mr. Robertson. His Worship agreed.

J. McAninch, C.C.F., Says Old Parties Change Leaders But Not Policies

Accusing Conservatives and Liberals of often changing their leaders but never changing policies of government, C.C.F. candidate for East Hastings, J. A. McAninch of Belleville Monday evening told an open air meeting at Tweedsmuir that the day of the old parties, of compromise and opportunism, was past and that to the future belongs a better world through a co-operative commonwealth.

Quoting Graham O'Leary in his Maclean's Magazine article of December 1942 when he stated that except for the fact that there had been no differences between the Liberal Conservative of the party led by Meighen, Bennett and Stanfield and the Conservative Liberalism of the party led by Mackenzie King, Mr. McAninch declared the same held true for the two provincial party leaders of today, Col. George Drew and Premier Harry Nixon.

The two party leaders, he declared, had been hobnobbing around the country like Siamese twins, often appearing on the same platform. There had been no opposition between the Liberals and Conservatives as long as Mr. Hepburn was leading after the monopolies and combines and fighting the labor unions.

"Now with the election date set Col. Drew is going to beware of the C.C.F." stated the speaker. "Then, also, he declares, "is to destroy free enterprise. His cry is not to enlighten the people of Ontario but as a politician he desires to deceive the people. He does not tell what kind of free enterprise the C.C.F. is opposed to."

Stands for New Social Order

The aim of the C.C.F. is not to destroy the people of free enterprise but a C.C.F. government would bring about a new social order which would deprive jungle minds from exploiting the people through cartels and monopolies in industry, food distribution and the natural resources of the province. In the past these monopolies had been given almost unrestricted powers by the Liberal and Conservative governments, it was claimed.

In vigorous attack on the former Howard Ferguson government, the speaker declared the electors had been double-crossed and had been "sold down the river" several times with the financial giants of Quebec. Mr. Ferguson then resigned and turned over the keys of the government to George S. Henry. Now there is the provincial representative party led by Mr.: Drew. "They've change their leaders three times but they have never changed their policy. They have had three different platforms but never a change of policy."

Premier Harry Nixon had repudiated the Liberal government led by Mr. Hepburn, he denounced it, resigned, and walked out. They also have had three premiers in three months and like the Conservatives have not changed their policy. Premier Nixon now stands for re-election on the record of the government he denounced.

Should Increase Old Age Pensions

Old age pensions should be immediately be increased to $30 per month, according to Mr. McAninch. He declared it would cost the province only $5,000,000 yearly to increase the pensions this amount. "Driven by shame and from fear of the growth of the C.C.F., Mr. Nixon has recently granted a $3 increase in pensions, and that he gave begrudgedly, boasting of a surplus of twenty-seven millions. The Liberal government couln not afford five millions a week after the Old Age pensioners".

The reluctance of the Liberal government to increase Old Age pensions was compared by the speaker of the treatment of the Steep Rock Mines Company which he said had been granted $1,000,000 through the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission. "Wealthy speculators can get five million dollars while the people get nothing", he declared, "and these are the men who shout 'Beware of the C.C.F.'. Would Do Away With Unemployment

The C.C.F., he assured offers the opportunity to free the province of the monopolies and the combines. It is the opportunity of the electors to be the captains of their own destinies and masters of their own fates. The C.C.F. is not a party of hate, but has a policy worked out by experts over a period of years, and is ready to move forward on all fronts to see that there is work for all those who can, and who want to work, and to see that the farmers and home owners are made secure in their own homes.

The C.C.F. promises that all children ,regardless of the financial position of the family, will have access to good education, that there shall be hospitalization and medical attention provided by the State, and that the people shall have good homes instead of hovels.

Captain David Elliott acted as chairman for the meeting and introduced D. Midcalf, B.C.A.F., of [illegible] who in a brief address declared that out of this war a new [illegible] order must arise. Mr. Midcalf introduced the candidate.

Through necessity of her crowded population every last inch of tillable land is cultivated in Japan and still her people are unable to get three square meals a day. The people are badly undernourished, it was stated, one of the modern miracles to endeavour to improve the living conditions of the common Japanese. If Japanese state prisoners were fed in the manner that Canadian prisoners are fed, it was held that millions would endeavour to go to prison.

Some Nice Memories

Against the morbid memories carried away from the land which is now striving to over run the entire far-eastern hemisphere, Dr. Myers stated that one of his most delightful memories was the Imperial Gardens in Tokyo, where the beautiful landscaping set off by multi-colour coloring of Japanese iris provided a delightful background for thousands of persons taking their training at Connaught Ranges, near Ottawa. Predicts Japs Will Set-Up Democratic Form of Government After the War

After the conclusion of the present war when militaristic Japan has been beaten, is driven and taught her lesson, the people of this Oriental country will again live in a free democratic setting such as Canadians are today enjoying under the British flag.

Such was the prediction made by Dr. A. L. William Myers, Hartford Seminary Foundation, Hartford, Conn., in his address to members of the Belleville Rotary Club at their regular weekly luncheon meeting yesterday noon. Dr. Myers was visiting the summer months in Belleville as guest minister at Bridge Street United Church in the absence of Dr. James Semple, who is on vacation.

Speaking on "Impressions of Japan" gained from a visit to that country 35 years ago, Dr. Myers declared that 40 million of the country's 60 millions population s'tll have but one ideal—that of peace and permission to get at least two meals a day. That was the picture of Japan's peoples with the exception of the younger generation who from infancy have been regimented along militaristic lines, though.

People Underfed

People of Japan are for the most part grossly underfed as the direct results of the inability of the country to support its ever increasing population. Japan's total is Islands constitute an area only twice as large as England, Scotland and Wales, of which only about 15 per cent is arable. Her population is increasing one million yearly.

The government of Japan was making progress toward democracy when militaristic powers gained control, continued the speaker. The Cabinet ministers now cannot be appointed without first being approved by army and naval leaders. Japan is now the last word in autocracy with her leaders having full belief in force and fear and having no fear of social ideas getting in to the country.

Favors Inferiority Complex

Terming Japanese culture as having been copied directly from that of China, the speaker intimated that the country's people are possessed of a very marked inferiority complex, who build themselves up in their own estimation that they might not be so inferior. He stated the best thing ever to happen in Jap-great-at-arms.

"FOR PROGRESS AND UNITY"

Careful Preparation by Canadian Navy Force Preceded Sicilian Invasion

Ottawa, July 27 (CP) — The Navy today told something of the careful preparation behind its share of the invasion of Sicily—the first "combined operation" in which Canadian navy personnel retained their identity as a Canadian unit, manning their own flotillas or landing craft.

There was no lack of trained men in the Royal Canadian Navy. More than a year ago detachments were sent to the United Kingdom for combined operations training. Many took part in the attack on Dieppe last August and an even larger number participated in the North African landing late last year.

In command of the new units as group officer was Lieut. Jack Keyl, of Saskatoon, a veteran of both shows, with him were other officers of similar experience — Sub-Lt. Andrew A. Wedd of Toronto, who won the Distinguished Service Cross at Dieppe and Lieut. Robert Smith of Regina.

(Dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa said it was estimated 300 Canadian naval men took part in the Sicilian landings as members of the R.C.N., the Royal Navy, and combined operations units.)

Weeks before the attack on Sicily, the new Canadian landing force got orders to sail from the United Kingdom—destination undisclosed. They were issued with tropical kit but—it wasn't considered an authentic clue since Canadian corvettes in which left Canada before the North African campaign carried extra heavy clothing as though they might be headed for service in convoys to Russia.

It was a long voyage but there was no unforward incident. Training continued on the trip.

At their destination the Canadians split up. One group stayed aboard ship but others went ashore to a camp in the desert close to the sea. Their landing craft were in constant use.

Two weeks later the senior Canadian officer was able to include in his routine progress report that "I am satisfied with the state of training of coxswains." Yet boatwork and more boatwork remained the order of the day as each man was pushed to "top-line" efficiency.

There was practice, too, with small arms—Lewis guns, rifles and pistols. Landing craft signalmen became expert at their specialized duties; there was instruction in aircraft recognition and chemical warfare, in beach organization and seamanship.

Meantime the group which had remained aboard the liner were just as busy. By day and night the landing craft flotillas practiced manoeuvres until they could change from line ahead to line abeam with precision; scatter to lessen the target in event of attack and then reform into a close-packed unit; make beach landings and withdrawals without error or delay.

Finally the troops who were to be landed by the Canadians came aboard the ship. Within a few hours they had begun packing and loading and unloading the landing craft. Standing by in give assistance were the well-trained Canadian seamen.

Full Dress Rehearsal

Some time before the Sicilian invasion the navy, merchant navy, army and air force put on a full-dress rehearsal for the job ahead. Lt.-Cmdr. E. H. Bartlett, of Toronto, R.C.N., public relations officer in the Mediterranean, described it in a press release issued here today as "a marvellously smoothly running demonstration of well-trained men doing their jobs well."

Quiet orders from the senior naval officer started the exercises in one ship in which a Canadian flotilla was based.

"Flotilla, man your craft," said the S.N.O.

From the mess-decks where they had been drinking the inevitable cocoa with which the navy starts night operations, the Canadians made their way to their craft. It was dark but they moved as deftly and confidently as if they had been working in daylight.

"Assault force, fall in by your craft," came the order. "Assault force, fall in by your craft, stand-en ready," came the order.

The troops moved to their positions. Equipment was shrugged into more comfortable position.

The flotilla officer, the senior Canadian officer who would lead his landing craft afloat, checked his watch.

"If you're ready . . ." He suggested to an army officer. The word was passed down the line and the troops commenced embarking. There was no hitch.

Then it was the turn of the merchant navy. The carrier ship was manned by her own merchant crew. They were on duty at the davits waiting the order to lower. Quick on its heels the landing craft started to descend to the sea. Grease falls, silent winches, dropped them. The splashing of keel against water was the only sound. And then with engines turning quietly, falls were cast off and the craft, one by one, slipped away into the darkness to form into a flotilla ready to land their troops.

In the carrier ship there was no lessening of activity. More troops were to be landed and their assembly at the correct embarkation points was already in course. The return of the landing craft, once their first troops were discharged, found their second loads ready.

An army officer who, commenting on the fact the landing craft seemed to be running on unbreakable schedule, said: "These Canadian fellows know their job." The R.C.N.'s new unit was ready for Sicily, its first big show.

There Are Small 'Dictators' As Well

Dictators are not always the rulers of countries and they have no priority on the method of force. A small lad on Bridge Street this morning seemed to think that force was a very good idea, and in carrying out this method of compulsion might easily have seriously hurt a small child.

A group of children were arguing in an alleyway. It looked as though two of the children were trying to prevent the others from going down the lane, though this is not certain. Finally two of the older girls, deciding it was time to end the argument ignored their opponents and herded the others along the passage. The youngest of the two bullies, a lad of about eight years old, picked up a stick and threatened to throw it at the retreating youngsters. When no heed was paid to his threat he heaved the brick, and struck the smallest child, of about four years old on the arm. The baby let out a howl, and the attacker well-pleased with himself came out onto the street and went into a store with a very satisfied smile on his face.

The cries of the hurt child having attracted the attention of an older boy the children poured out their troubles, asking that their tormentor be punished. One could not help but think of the comparison between this incident and the struggle that is going on in the world now. It is not only the big dictators but the little dictators that must be wiped out if we are to have a "new world."

Always Be Watchful Should Fit This Story

True to the tradition. "When the cat's away, the mice will play," was maintained over the weekend in Belleville. A local citizen decided his wife's absence from the home was good enough for a special celebration and, accordingly, after inviting the cronies he likes to celebrate with, set off on a buying expedition. He bought lamb chops, bacon and other meats, man-like not considering the ration books; he purchased lemons and oranges and fruits to tempt the palates of the selected few and, with all this behind him, his parcels and packages and paper bags in his arms, a cooling drink of some quenching beverage seemed to be well earned. Faithfully trusting the driver of his fellow man he set his parcels upon the floor, drank his beverage and prepared to leave, but—his trust had been misplaced and when his assortment of meals, wasted were his wife's coupons, and — meatless were his self feel that as a result-ive dinner was served the next day. There must be a moral to this story but we can't decide what it is.

Some Small Boys Are Enterprising

A lady walking down Bridge St. carrying a suit-case was pleasantly surprised when a small boy came up to her and offered to carry the bag. She gladly handed him the suitcase, but ulterior motives were revealed as the boy looked confidentially up into her face and said, "I want to go to the show this afternoon." Two other small boys with a wagon saw a chance of driving a good bargain when they saw a woman struggling off the market-place with numerous bags and bundles. They asked her if they could transport her parcels home, and when she hesitated, enquired if she had any old newspapers at home. Assured that she had they offered to deliver the parcels in return for the newspapers. The woman eagerly accepted, and then offered further information that she also had some old rags. "Oh, boy, rags!" was the enthusiastic comment as the wagon was speedily loaded.

TWO SHIPS TORPEDOED

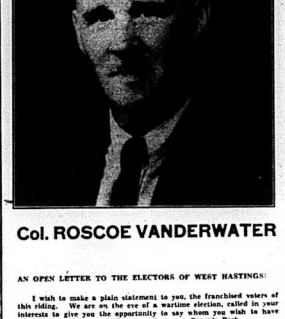
New York, July 27 (AP) — The sinking of two merchant ships in the Western Atlantic, made public last week, raised to 675 the Associated Press total of announced United Nations and neutral merchant ship losses in the area since the United States entered the war.

The Navy Department said two persons died when an Axis submarine sank an unnamed United Nations merchant vessel in the Caribbean early in July.

Stockholm authorities said the 1,641 ton Swedish freighter, Scandinavia, had been torpedoed in the South Atlantic and that survivors had been landed at "Oulnea."

KING OF ITALY OUSTS MUSSOLINI, NOW SAID TO BE UNDER ARREST

Mussolini always loved the camera and a top hat.



When he attended the races he wore a bowler.

Just when he began his 21 years of dictatorship.

Aboard his yacht in white flannels and fedora.

He loved to imitate Napoleon who was his hero.

His chin was prominent long before 1937.

A LIBERAL MESSAGE

TO THE ELECTORS OF

WEST HASTINGS

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST HASTINGS:

I wish to make a plain statement to you, the franchised voters of this riding. We are on the eve of a wartime election, called in your interests to give you the opportunity to say whom you wish to have head your government and represent you at Queen's Park.

It is for you, the voters, to decide if you wish to have continued the splendid progressive administration which our Liberal Government has given us in the past nine years. We know that the record stands clearly and simply as one of achievement and advancement on many fronts. Let us continue to advance all along the line.

Under the capable leadership of our tried and proven legislator and distinguished Premier, Harry Nixon, I promise, if elected to bend all my efforts towards the continued, unrestricted prosecution of the war. I feel that as a returned soldier from the last conflict that I can be of assistance in the re-establishing of those men who at present are fighting so valiantly to preserve the very rights which we at home will exercise on August 4th.

I am aware through practical experience of the needs and problems which our soldiers are experiencing in these trying times. We have all been affected in some measure by the stringencies of an all-out war effort. From the timberland in the north to the industrial centres in the south, the people of Hastings have contributed noble of their time, effort and money and above all of their very own loved sons, this world might be rid of those terrible forces which have brought the scourge of war and famine to so many unhappy people of the world.

I say to you then, LET US GET ON WITH THE JOB. We owe it to our boys who are fighting so gloriously in Sicily that we do not fail them.

The Liberal Government points the surest way to progressive unified prosecution of the war and the splendid record achieved ever the past nine years by the Liberal regime is a promising harbinger of a successful economical post-war economy which can win the peace by taking measures to assure every man his native right that will help him to re-adjust himself and guide him to gainful employment on his return from overseas. If elected I will do my utmost to serve you in a manner which will prove that your confidence in me was warranted.

ROSCOE VANDERWATER.

Ex-Dictator

There is an ex-dictator and ex-tyrant somewhere in Europe, but the world does not know where. It is Mussolini, stripped of everything, will power, the right to boast and the evidences of pomp and display, who until the last half year or so could hardly have even imagined such a thing happening to him and to Fascism. Now Fascism seems like discarded clothing which Italians, it may be certain, are glad to have thrown off. It is discredited along with Mussolini, the ranter and demagogue and tyrant.

Today no one would give the least significant thing in the world for the type of government Mussolini revelled in and fastened on Italy for more than a fifth of a century. So far has Fascism fallen when the evil force supporting it has been removed.

It was not many years ago this dictator dared to threaten the world that nine million bayonets in Italy alone would answer any refusal to listen to Fascism or to himself.

But he has slunk somewhere into significance. How different from the boaster! How different is he from what he would have been had he succeeded in his designs! No one could realize the difference in the man, one who thought he would make good as an aggressor in the early days and as the tyrant who has practically been forced from office.

The long history of the ancient or eternal city has never witnessed such ranting and pompous declarations of authority and power as he gave way to, nor has it looked upon a scene of such humiliation for the would-be conqueror as when it looks upon Mussolini, the ex-tyrant.

Here is no Caesar such as he pretended to be for he is but a dismantled man whose towering aims built on crime have fallen like wrecked pillars about him.

And about him in perilous danger is the Italian nation, impoverished by his war, seemingly willing to get out of the struggle but yet requiring an iron will to extract themselves out of the mess into which Mussolini has run them.

Now there is none so poor as needs to resemble his look.

It will not be he who is called to advise in the great conferences which will be held perhaps soon in Italy and then later in Germany when aggression is laid low. He and Hitler won't be there.

Germany's Turn

While Italy was losing her aggressor who was the head of the tyrannical government, Germany was not allowed to forget her troubles. While Italy was passing through the throes of a political revolution as a consequence of the overthrow of Mussolini, the land which Hitler has held in tyranny along with her neighbors, nearly four years in some parts, has had her own troubles to bother her as well as the problems arising out of Italy's condition militarily. Essen, Cologne and Hamburg have been heavily bombed.

Perhaps the Germans, too, can see in the future themselves facing a somewhat similar condition after their defeat at the hands of the Allies and of the peoples of Europe whom Hitler and his militarists have so cruelly and wantonly treated since first Poland felt the savage impact of the heartless Hun. Difficult as Italy's problem has been and will be, more so will be Hitler's and Germany's for Germany has been the forefront of the awful oppressions which have been laid upon men, women and children and peoples whose only plea was to be able to live in peace with their neighbors and develop in a democratic way.

The Italians have according to observers never seemed fully absorbed in the war but the Germans who have practicilly breathed the principle of aggression of their leaders before them ingested it and have been fed on such folly as race supremacy and know what imperialism and tyranny meant in bringing to mankind two wars, will have to undergo a much greater change.

The German war makers are not to be allowed to forget that for them lies the penalty that lay for Italy in permitting the upstarting of a man like Mussolini to climb into the seat of authority and rule with the whim and the despotism of a tyrant.

Rumors and Forecasts

The coming days will produce a great deal of rumor and forecasts as to the course of events in Italy and in German relations with that country, his ally in the Axis under Mussolini.

It is suspected that owing to the very nature of things, the war which is thundering at the doors of Italy's mainland as the battalions and armor and planes of the United Nations, British, Canadian and Americans draw near and the fact that German troops are in Italy, having come there in the days when Mussolini was supremely anxious as to the Allied threat developing on the south side of the Mediterranean, will see events developing with some speed. Some Italian opinion from outside of Italy expects very sudden changes. Conditions can hardly stay static in view of the condition through which Italy has passed.

Don't Leave Food on Plates!

(Chicago Tribune)

An observant citizen was lutching the other day with a number of Americans and a British officer recently arrived from England noticed that the Americans, without exception, helped themselves to a little more food than they ate. The young man in uniform was the only member of the party who cleaned his plate.

Our friend thought there was a lesson in the incident, and we agree with him. Americans have lived in a land of plenty for so many generations that many of us have come to regard the leaving of food on the plate as normal. Those of us who are children were taught that it was sinful to waste the gifts of a bountiful Providence seem to have forgotten the lesson. It's time we learned it again. A very appreciable saving in the nation's food stock would be made if every one in helping himself took no more than he was sure he would eat.

Those Americans who delight in following English manners and customs will no doubt be more saving of food as soon as they learn that in England it is the thing to do. The rest of us needn't wait. We can clean our plates because common sense commands it, particularly in time of war.

British Coins

(London Times)

The output of coinage last year was the highest recorded in the history of the Royal Mint. The domestic use 355.318.495 coins were struck. In value these were £12,094,030, compared with those of the preceding year valued at £6,943,157.

The nickel 12-sided threepenny bit easily heads the list at over 103.000.000. The minting of new pence was discontinued in June, 1940, in order to conserve our copper supplies. Halfpennies numbered 71,908,000 and farthings 28,857,600. In both cases these are the highest figures on record. No five shilling pieces have been struck since the Coronation year of 1937.

JUST FOLKS

"DUSTING HIS HOME TOWN"

I have it from his mother: 'Tis the custom
With them all
When they's finished with their training to fly home and pay a call.
Not as earth-bound fellows do it, nor as sailors home from sea,
But as pilots of the heavens in the cause of liberty.
And before he leaves for battle and can put his orders down,
He must do that bit of solo known as dusting off his town.

Now the trick that's known as "dusting" is the swooping from the skies,
Where his mother's sitting watching with the sadness in her eyes.
He must rouse his home-town people with that terrifying roar,
Of a bomber rushing downward bringing friends to every door,
Where they stand aghast to see him, goggled, capped and dressed in brown,
A lad they've known from boyhood back and dusting off his town.

Those acquainted with the practice know the final rite is paid
Know the boy is off to danger when that nasty task is made.
With the morning he'll be flying to some battle post afar
Where the skies with flak are troubled and the fearful hazards are.
So just pray the Lord to save him and his pluck with glory crown,
And just wish him happy landings when he's dusting off his town.

UNITED NATIONS FLAG

A new flag has been introduced among the flags of the world.

It is the flag of the 32 peoples who are fighting for freedom in this war, the United Nations.

The new world-wide symbol of freedom consists of a white field with four upright red bars representing the four freedoms "for which the United Nations are fighting.

The idea of a United Nations flag was conceived by Brenda Bridgeford Harding, who thought that, since symbols play such an important role in all great movements, there should be a world-wide symbol and flag for the free-dom-loving peoples of the world.

There was also a practical reason. On all ceremonial occasions it was necessary to display a great number of flags in addition to the national flag. If any one of the 32 national flags of the United States was missing, that country was slighted.

Last October, an unofficial pool of the embassies, and legations of the United Nations was taken in Washington and all favored some symbol to represent the combined effort of the United Nations.

The Four Freedoms Committee, with Harding as chairman, was formed, and the new United Nations flag is the result of their work.

Of course, at present the new international flag has no legal standing.

The committee hopes that it will meet with universal approval among the members of the United Nations.

The simplicity of the design is startling but effective. Although usually the colors are to be white and red, colors already international due to the International Red Cross, the symbol may be used with other colors. The committee found, for instance, that Chinese object to red, and accordingly it was decided to leave the colors optional with each country.

The committee was interested in the adoption not only of an international flag but a symbol as well.

The four upright bars can be represented by the four fingers of the hand and the symbol can be used on uniforms, equipment, ships, airplanes and tanks. It also, like "V," lends itself to psychological warfare.

On all ceremonial occasions in the United States where flags are displayed, the United Nations flag is to be flown under the Stars and Stripes to represent the other 31 United Nations. In all other members of the United Nations, the national flag of the particular country where the ceremony is held will be flown to represent the other 31 United Nations, including the United States.

Wounded Canadian Soldiers Relate Impressions of 1st Battle Action

(By WILLIAM STEWART)
(C.P. War Correspondent)

A British Hospital, North Africa, July 24 (Delayed) (C.P. Cable) — The invasion of Sicily seemed like just another army manoeuvre to a 21-year-old Alberta farm boy who landed on the Sicilian beaches with the second wave of Canadian assault troops.

The youth, whose name cannot be published until next of kin receive notice he is a casualty, was in action for seven hours and then an Italian sniper put a bullet through his left knee while the Canadian chased with some farmers six miles inland.

He was brought to a big British hospital and now has a plaster cast about his left leg from hip to toe.

He said his platoon was put down on the beach at 3 a.m. Other sections of his unit had landed but the Italians were still laying down mortar bombs and crossfire.

None Seemed Scared

"It's funny you know," he said. "None of us seemed to be that bit scared. It was a lot like a battle school. I watched the 'planes' first coming closer and closer and didn't think much of being hit. I watched the tracers. They were pretty.

"When the fire was beaten down, we marched in files, single file, with our packs and we walked fast. It was tough going, and hot. We didn't always march along roads. Sometimes we moved in through farms, taking cover. The farms in Sicily seemed pretty hardup and poverty stricken.

"It didn't really see much fighting because it was being done by fellows ahead. By 10 a.m. we got to a town, though I don't know the name of it. We were over to one side of it on a farm hidden by a big straw pile.

"After the platoon dug in we went over to the farm house and tried to talk to the farmers, using a book of Italian phrases supplied by the army. It was then he was hit.

Were Having "Fun"

He said the Canadians "sure were having fun" when he last saw them. "The thing they did when marching was to pick themselves up little jackasses and carts. They got them by domes, loaded their kit in the carts and marched that much lighter."

He said he didn't see any Germans at all and the Italian platoon looked half-starved.

The invasion also was a disappointment for a tall young lieutenant from Toronto who joined the army in 1940.

He led his infantry platoon ashore and up to Pachino airfield. Then an Italian machine gun bullet struck his upper right arm, causing a compound fracture.

"I lasted four hours in action — after three and a half years' work," he said. "I didn't even fire a shot. I carried a Thompson gun but I never got close enough to the enemy to use it."

The officer, who had been in England a year before embarking for Sicily, sprawled on a cot in a big, airy officers' ward. He said he led his platoon ashore with the company of his battalion which was scrambled in more timetable two officers landed earlier to consolidate the position.

Not Much Fighting

"When we got ashore there was a lot of noise but not much fighting," he said. "One of our monitors was shelling over our heads. We advanced on the left-hand side of Pachino Peninsula. We went up through vineyards and were fired on by an officer and two men in a blockhouse. Two of my men went after them with their bayonets. But there was no real opposition.

"One wounded Italian officer who was made prisoner said he thought a Roman Catholic padre who acted as an interpreter that our invasion was not expected for several weeks and then only from the north.

Capt. Sunde of a Norwegian merchantman, and his Canadian wife, receive their decorations from King Haakon of Norway, in London, Eng. The captain's ship was attacked by a German submarine in the Atlantic in March 1941. U-boats. His wife has been serving on his ship as wireless operator. She was formerly Fern Blodgett of Peterborough, Ont.

"This officers, who was only 23, had a wound like mine and while we were together in hospital he would come over every morning and shake hands.

The lieutenant's name cannot be disclosed immediately.

"We would if we could, BUT...."

Many people are greatly inconvenienced because they cannot get a telephone. We are sorry that this should be so, but it is part of the price of fighting a war.

Copper, rubber, steel and other vital telephone materials are also war materials. Without them we cannot expand telephone facilities. We must rigidly conserve our fast-dwindling margin of spare equipment in order that requirements essential to the war or to public health, welfare or security may be met.

And so applicants for telephones who cannot qualify as war workers with duties making a telephone essential, or who are not entitled to service in the interests of public health or public safety, must be denied. Very often, business subscribers asking for additional telephones can be shown how a re-arrangement of those telephones they have will take care of their additional needs.

Everything possible is being done to make the most effective use of present facilities. We regret that so many would-be subscribers must be denied service.

FORWARD WITH THE CCF!

People of Ontario. The public are moving strongly to the C.C.F. The old parties never realize what the C.C.F. is for unless in this election, and they are turning loose a barrage of untruths and rumors to confuse you.

Here are some of these falsehoods:

UNTRUTH NO. 1

That—"The C.C.F will confiscate your savings, life insurance, and other property."

This is absolutely false. One of the principal ideas of the C.C.F is security for the individual. What the C.C.F knows, as you well know, is that the security of the average life insurance policyholder, man, business man or farmer are not enough to take care of future illness, the education of the family or the death of the breadwinner, and other major emergencies.

Instead of taking away the savings of the hard-working people, the C.C.F will add to their security by increased insurance for old age, by more adequate unemployment allowances, by a health service and other social services for all, so that the people will have more private health, and, above all, by an adequate plan for employment after the war.

UNTRUTH NO. 2

That—"The C.C.F will take farms away from their owners and operate them by the state."

This again is absolutely false. As Agnes Macphail said in a public address recently — "All this nonsense you are hearing about the C.C.F coming to take away the farms is simply a political lie put out to reach votes with. What we really want is to keep the ownership of farms, the mortgage companies, the loan associations and others who loan on the farms, from taking your farm away."

The C.C.F government will greatly assist the farmer by reducing the spread between what farmers get for their products and what the consumer pays by helping farmers establish co-operation by strength. It will assist co-operative enterprises such as the Ontario Creamery of Hydro, by encouraging and making it possible through low interest government loans for farmers to own any on the farms and by better roads and health facilities.

UNTRUTH NO. 3

That—"The C.C.F will regiment everyone."

This is absolutely false. The basic principle of the C.C.F is democratic co-operation. The C.C.F has been fighting regimentation for years — it is the old parties who are guilty of regimentation. They refuse their workers any voice about their own conditions of work — of any kind and when set prices with which farmers and others have to comply.

These three untruths are only a few of the many heaped being used by the old parties to confuse the issue and to manipulate you into voting for them.

Here are the major points of the CCF program. You can see for yourself how reasonable they are and the necessity for them:

Immediate planning for post-war employment.
An effective unemployment insurance.
Adequate health services for all.
Improved opportunities for education.
A large scale housing plan to be put into effect immediately after the war, to provide employment and to make available good homes at lower prices.
Immediate increase of old age pensions to a minimum of $30.00 a month, as an earned right, without a means test.
Development of the province's natural resources in forests, minerals, and hydro power as a public trust, with the revenue therefrom being used to pay for health services, education and other benefits to all the people of the province.

These are things that your CCF candidates will do. It is a program drawn up by the people — for the people — to ensure that our province will make its maximum contribution to the war . . . and to create a better province for our own security and to live in when the war is over.

Miss Peacock was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts for which she expressed her appreciation and thanks.

Miss Margaret Connolly, of Kingston, spent the weekend in Belleville, the guest of her sister, Miss Deretta Connolly.

Mrs. Eleanor Hennessey of Toronto is visiting for a few days with Mrs. Brockhurst, 36 Hillside Street.

Corporal Murray Graham, R.C.A.F., Trenton, accompanied by Staff Sergeant Don Graham, of Kingston, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. H. Edwards of Hastings.

ZION W.M.S.

The Zion W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. H. K. Denyes for the July meeting with 16 members present.

The meeting was preceded by a short musical recital by Irene Sine, pupil of Mrs. Denyes. Much credit is due both Mrs. Denyes and Irene in their efforts and accompaniments. Her command of quite lengthy and difficult pieces showed not only an ability to master the art of piano music.

The regular meeting was opened in the customary manner and was presided over by the president.

During the business period, a donation of $5 was gratefully accepted from Miss Lillian Hamilton of Washington, D.C., in memory of her aunt, Mrs. James Hamilton.

Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson had charge of the program and Mrs. Sloane conducted a short worship service. Mrs. Casey, Temperance Secretary, gave a reading, "What is the truth about the Japanese-Canadians?", was the subject under discussion in the form of a playlette in which several ladies took part.

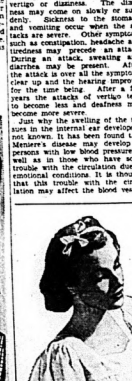
New Ration Books Ready in August

Montreal—Canadians across Canada will get their new ration books —Ration Book No. 3—during an official holiday, probably Tuesday, from August 25 to 28 inclusive, it was learned at national ration headquarters here yesterday.

The new books will be somewhat bulkier than those currently in use, as the fresh issue will be valid from September 1 to April 14. This is a period of eight months compared with approximately six months for the two previous books. Chief purpose of the longer period of validity is to avoid having to make a fresh distribution, of Ration Book No. 4, during the bad weather usually prevailing in the late winter months.

While employees of concerns with relatively large payrolls will again be able to obtain their books from a designated clerk in the plant or office where they work, it is expected that local ration boards and volunteer staffs will handle the bulk of the distribution job. It is hoped to concentrate distribution more than before in the neighborhood depots to be established by the local boards.



In view of the experience gained by local boards and volunteer helpers in the last distribution, and the satisfactory job which officials feel they did at that time, it is believed that he coming distribution can be completed even more quickly and smoothly than before. An even tighter system of check-up and prevention of abuses has been evolved to avoid errors and block any mishandling of books.

Apart from some minor changes in design of coupons, the books and the coupon sheets are generally similar in size and appearance to the current book. In the new books, meat and butter coupons will be expressly designated as such as well as the tea-coffee and sugar coupons. In the current books, two series of "spare" coupons are being used for meat and butter.

Woman Motorist Was Just Lucky

Some people are just born lucky. A woman living in the vicinity of Belleville kept putting off the renewing of her driving licence this spring, although she continued to drive her car. Finally deciding that she had delayed quite long enough, on a trip into Belleville she went to the office and had her licence renewed. That afternoon as she was driving home a policeman, on a routine checkup, stopped her and asked to see her licence. He says there's no such thing as fate!

HEALTH CHATS

President, Chicago Board of Health.

Recurring Dizziness May Indicate Trouble in Inner Ear

There is a disorder, in which there are recurrent attacks of dizziness, together with trouble of hearing. This is known as Menlere's (men-e-ar') disease. It seems that the condition is due to some disturbance in the internal ear, as a result possibly of a collection of fluid in the tissues, which produces swelling. As you may know, the internal ear has much to do with the sense of balance, and disturbance of this part of the ear will cause dizziness.

According to Doctor John R. Lindsay of Chicago, the outstanding symptoms of Meniere's disease consist of a sense of blocking in the ear with head noises, trouble in hearing, followed by an attack of vertigo or dizziness. The dizziness may come on slowly or suddenly. Sickness to the stomach and vomiting occur when the attacks are severe. Other symptoms such as constipation, headache and tiredness may precede an attack. During an attack, sweating and diarrhea may be present. After the attack is over all the symptoms clear up and the hearing improves for the time being. After a few years the attacks of vertigo tend to become less and deafness may become more severe.

Just why the swelling of the tissues in the internal ear develops is not known. It has been found that Meniere's disease may develop in persons with low blood pressure as well as in those who have some trouble with the circulation due to emotional conditions. It is thought that this trouble with the circulation may affect the blood vessels in the inner ear and thus allow the fluid to collect in the tissues and produce the swelling.

Treatment of Meniere's disease has been carried out both by operation and by medical methods. The most successful medical treatment has been carried out by controlling the fluid balance or the amount of fluid in the tissues. Limiting the amount of salt the person takes as well as the fluids and giving ammonium chloride or potassium chloride have been helpful. The ammonium chloride or potassium chloride help to get rid of fluids in the body, while salt tends to raise the body to retain fluids.

The operations which have been used consist either of removing part of the internal ear within it affected, or of cutting one part of the hearing nerve. Another operation consist of removing one or more of the semicircular canals, the part of the internal ear which has to do with the sense of balance. This operation gets rid of the dizziness and at the same time does not lessen the hearing. Cutting the eighth nerve or the hearing nerve is also a sound operation but is more difficult to carry out. The period required for recovery after this operation is much longer than that needed following the operation on the semicircular canals.

Persons who suffer from dizziness should have a careful study made to determine if they have Meniere's disease. If so, the measures mentioned should be attempted. If this is unsuccessful the advisability of operation may be considered.

SCARRED "BRUMAGEN" HAS DREAM KITCHEN

Birmingham, July 27. (CP)—In one week, 100,000 people visited an experimental kitchen on display in the heart of the plan of this city, corporation to build 100,000 modern municipal houses after the war. Thousands of suggestions for alterations or improvements have come in already.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NICE this idea of matching hat and glist or dickey. A little breton-sailor of pin-dotted white on red cotton, self-trimmed with scalloped ruches finished with white gilligee, has a matching glist with tiny pearl buttons down the front.

SOMETHING new is the demand for the short-skirted dressy afternoon frock not in black but in dark brown sheer. A pretty design has the square neckline edged with bias pleatings of pale pink net to match a tiny pink velvet rose placed at one corner of the square neckline.

VERY OFTEN the smartest frocks in a collection are apt to be of printed fabrics. A dressy frock in gray and white small printed crepe has its pleated skirt edged with fine gray lace, with matching lace edging the elbow sleeves and the soft jabot at the neckline.

IN SPITE of all the emphasis on the much-trimmed hat with its flowers and veiling, there is a big demand for the simple but chic felt hat. A good looking model is a large sailor in light green felt with crown band of white piqué finished with pearl button links.

CRISPLY PRETTY cotton nightgowns are favored by women everywhere. A pretty sheer cotton gown has a print of tiny red rosebuds and blue bows on a pink ground. It is made with ryshin's banded neckline, puffed sleeves and eyelet banded high waistline.

AN ALTERNATIVE to the woolen topper for all-occasion or casual wear during late Spring and Summer is the topper made of faille, bengaline or heavily ribbed silk in white, black or colors.

Drew Outlines Party's Policy Regarding Mines

North Bay, July 26. (CP)—Gold mining and other mining must be restored to full operation because it is the keystone to the prosperity of the north country, said Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative Leader, in an election speech here Monday night.

In his speech, prepared for broadcast over a network of North Bay, Timmins and Kirkland Lake stations, Col. Drew outlined policies which he said would be followed if it was Progressive Conservatives are returned to power in the Ontario election Aug. 4. These policies concerned mining and labor relations.

He outlined the program as follows:

1.—The burdens on mining industry must be readjusted in such a way as to permit maximized production. "We insist that all returns from mining include returns from capital should be recognized in any taxing system. When the war ends the tax burden should be considerably reduced".

2.—Taxes collected should be distributed more equitably between the three taxing bodies. "At present the Province takes most of the taxes whereas the provincial and municipal governments perform most of the services".

3.—Prospecting and development will be made attractive and the prospector and developer will be permitted to benefit from his own initiative.

4.—Where reasonable encouragement must be given to the mining industry it must be heavy taxation of base metal ores during the war years may be overcome and when mining production may again take its place in attracting new workers and settlers to the north, as well as stabilizing the Canadian financial structure.

5.—Idle mineral land suitable for production will be thrown open to encourage settlers.

7.—Labor organizations will be established for stimulation of technical developments in the mining industry.

8.—"The Ontario Securities Act will be revised to assure protection of the investor assured under positive and simple tests and laws which will on the one hand impose severe penalties upon those who attempt to perpetrate a fraud, but will on the other hand unfetter the hands of the prospector and developer, who are entitled to finance prospecting and development without bureaucratic interference so long as all essential facts are fully disclosed".

9.—Steps will be taken to make available cheaper air travel in the north.

10.—"The Department of Mines will be placed a man who understands the problems and the future of mining. He will be chosen on and his work will be pressed forward in the belief that this great industry can provide many thousands of jobs for the soldiers, sailors, airmen and munitions workers who will be returning to normal employment after the war".

Nixon Declares Drew's Promises Would Be Costly

Ottawa, July 27—(CP)—Premier Nixon of Ontario said last night that the "promises, bids and bribes" being offered by LL-Col. George Drew, Provincial Progressive Conservative Leader, in the Ontario Election Campaign were sufficient "to bankrupt the province" and would cost $100,000,000 a year.

Premier Nixon addressed a meeting held in the Ottawa Auditorium for the Ontario Liberal candidates, Hon. Robert Laurier, running in Ottawa East, and Ald. Harry Coulter, a candidate in Ottawa South.

During his address Mr. Nixon read a letter from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in which Mr. King expressed "best wishes for the success of your campaign and your continuance in office as premier."

Mr. King, in his letter, welcomed Mr. Nixon to Ottawa and said had it not been for his policy as Prime Minister, Ontario would have been in provincial political campaigns except in exceptional circumstances and there would have ended the meeting himself.

Mr. Nixon devoted a major part of his address to the financial implications of the Ontario "promises and bribes," of Col. Drew.

"The promises of Drew would cost $100,000,000 a year from the provincial revenue and would bankrupt the province," he said.

In 1934, a conservative government, under Hon. George Henry, had been "on the edge" of bankruptcy, Mr. Nixon said but on Dec. 12, 1933, Mr. Henry had appointed a board which found sufficient difficulty in getting a loan of $2,000,000 at the interest rate of 5 per cent.

"This would get that loan now by a telephone call because our credit is good at one per cent," he added.

Mr. Nixon said he would continue to concur with stipulations from the Dominion that taxation not be reduced and that the government maintain the 1941 budget as a policy of reducing grants for education and other purposes.

At that time the provincial government had also found it necessary to every dollar on carrying charges, he said, and these had been reduced to 20 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Nixon said he refused to make promises that would bankrupt the province in order to win an election.

Ontario's present favorable financial position, he said, was attained while the province had remained in the forefront in social services and the province was in a position which would enable it to engage in such post-war public works as power developments, roads and buildings.

said Mr. Jolliffe.

Referring to his election opponents, Mr. Jolliffe said that Premier Nixon had not been elected until he spoke at Timmins last week "when he came out on his government's record", while part of the program of Progressive Conservative Leader Col. Drew "was a bid to attain a very cheap imitation of the C.C.F. platform."

Mr. Jolliffe said that Col. Drew after a visit to Europe in 1937 had come home "to praise both Germany and Italy in some respects". Mr. Jolliffe said he would like the Progressive Conservative leader and his candidates "to take today a good long look at the miracle man in Italy who drew Col. Drew's admiration six years ago".

Jolliffe Urges Assistance For Young Farmers

New Liskeard, July 27.—(CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, provincial leader of the C.C.F., in an Ontario election speech here last night urged assistance to young farmers who wish to establish themselves on the land.

Mr. Jolliffe said that loans at a rate of interest not greater than two per cent should be provided in these cases. If a C.C.F. Government is elected on August 4, he added, it would assist farmers through co-operative and other marketing agencies and would further extend Hydro services through the rural areas.

Mr. Jolliffe also addressed a meeting earlier in the day at Cobalt, repeated his party's pledge that the province would pay 50 per cent of the cost of education through larger grants to municipalities and he said that a C.C.F. government would provide better educational facilities so that every child would receive a first class primary school education. Students with the intention and ability for higher education would have their opportunities.

He urged adoption of New Zealand's policy of handling health services and declared that spreads of the "old parties" who said there was no possibility of a C.C.F. program being carried out were advertising their ignorance, for it had been carried out in New Zealand.

It was not an idle dream to provide employment after the war but the program of post-war construction would have to be drafted now.

To Give Troops Extra Money For Seasonal Labor

Ottawa, July 27—(CP)—Government plans to place soldiers from army units in Canada at seasonal farm work across the Dominion will mean extra money for the troops directed to the jobs, Labor Minister Mitchell revealed last night in a statement giving some details of the scheme announced in the Commons last Saturday.

Expressing hope that provincial governments would undertake the scheme on a 50-50 financial basis with the federal government, Mr. Mitchell announced these highlights:

1. It has been suggested soldiers be paid in addition to their army pay and allowances the difference between the amount charged to the farmer at a specific rate and the army pay and allowances.

2. The employing farmer would pay the basic wages earned by the man to government agents, who would turn it over to army paymasters for payment to the soldier when his farm work ends.

3. The soldier would receive his regular army pay during his farm work and his dependents' allowances would continue.

4. The farmer would be required to guarantee full wages for the period during which a man is engaged, regardless of weather or other working conditions.

5. While remaining under military discipline and orders, the soldier would work for the farmer on the same manner as a civilian farm worker.

6. The plan would not interfere with the previous system of soldiers being given concessionate leave to return temporarily to their own farms or those of relatives.

This original photograph was flown from Sicily. It shows British infantrymen, ready to come to grips with the enemy, descending the steps from the landing craft to the beach at Sicily at the start of the invasion which has thus far proved so successful.

A British Tommy reads the "Soldiers' Guide to Sicily," while aboard a landing craft approaching the beach at Sicily. British soldiers are sticklers for observing the customs of the country they are invading.

'A British Tommy inspects an Italian pill-box camouflaged with wicker work but guarding this strong point was a dummy gun which was made of wood. This was viewed by the British troops when they entered the Italian island of Sicily. Perhaps the Italians haven't enough equipment or maybe they really didn't want to fight.

HOT UP THE FIRE

and as long as possible from the German Fatherland," Mr. Churchill said.

If Italy continues to fight with the Germans, however, he said, "from north and south and sea and from air and by ambitious descents we shall endeavor to bring the utmost rigor of war increasingly upon them."

At this point he said that orders have already been given to this effect.

Since no "approaches" have been received from the Italians he said, "no new decision is called for from us except the decision already taken to pour the sea and air power over the military target of significance throughout Italy."

Word of Caution.

Uttering a "word of caution," Mr. Churchill said now that Mussolini is gone "we should be foolish to deprive ourselves of any prospect of some profitable and even a great conclusion with the Italian nation."

"We do not see a mistake, he added, "to act so as to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian state."

Apparently implying that the Allies would accept surrender from the Badoglio military government, Mr. Churchill added:—

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal."

Hand Outstretched

Emphasizing that an immense task would be involved in occupying Italy, Mr. Churchill said:

"We must be careful not to get into the habit of position into which the Germans have blundered in so many countries, namely to hold down and administer from day to day the entire life of a very large population and thereby become responsible under hard conditions for the whole of their upkeep and well being.

"It is to the interests of Italy and also to the interests of the Allies that the unconditional surrender of Italy should be brought about wholesale and not piecemeal. Whether this can be accomplished or not I cannot tell."

Meanwhile, he said, "we should allow the Italians, to use a homely phrase, "to stew in their own juice" for a bit and hot up the fire to the utmost in order to accelerate the progress until we obtain from their governments or whoever possesses the necessary authority all the indispensable requirements we demand for carrying on against our greater and capital enemy which is not Italy but Germany."

Russia Informed of Events

He disclosed that Britain is keeping Russia informed of the progress of the campaign against Italy as well as acting in the closest concern with the United States.

Mr. Churchill said that he "corresponded personally almost very day" with Premier Stalin and that he was assumed to mean by telephone, and cabling as well as writing.

While Italy has only "about one-fourth of the power of Germany," Mr. Churchill said, "the whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime...will be enormously broken by events which happened and are going to happen in Italy."

"German hopes of U-boat warfare turning the tide of the war are sinking as fast as the U-boats themselves," he said.

Tribute to Press

The Prime Minister paid tribute to the "very complete, vivid and excellent accounts" which newspapers had given of the Sicilian operation.

"An immense army of correspondents move with the troops and carry their accounts to the heart of the fighting," he said. "An immense volume of material of deepest interest and of a very high level of quality and accuracy fills the public press from hour to hour and there is at present very little which I could add to this."

He said that the Russians in the "mighty battles" on the Russian front, far exceeding in scale any of the operations in which we and the United States have hitherto been engaged on land, have in the month of July killed over 200,000 injuries on the German army."

In the aerial war, "systematic shattering of German cities continues remorselessly and with ever-growing weight."

top on the way to the target sound like a gale sweeping through pine trees.

The rumble of artillery volleys echoed through the mountains. Gunners fired rounds of shells methodically to screen the infantry. The whole valley became the life but nothing out of it.

There were short bursts of machine-gun fire but the infantry seemed to be making rapid progress behind this barrage. Canadian mortars were on the mark, too.

I heard German machine-gun fire and then there was the crump of a mortar. The machine-gun stopped abruptly.

German Guns Quiet

ccasionally I got a glimpse of Canadians advancing on foot, crouching and creeping through groves and over rocky terraced ground which gave them fairly good cover.

The German gunners didn't even attempt to cope with the Canadian and British guntire. There was not a peep out of the German artillery all afternoon and no counter-battery work. The Canadians possessed all the high ground overlooking the battlefield and the Nazis had no observation posts to spot our gun posts, visually at any rate.

Light bombers and fighters twitted high over the advancing Canadians and there was some bombing and strafing in the area behind the Germans. I did not see any close fighting in the air ahead of the infantry but they did not seem to need it.

Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, commanding the Canadian 1st Division forces in Sicily, from an adjoining hill watched the battle through field glasses. He directed the action from the lookout.

Canadian tanks pushed on with the infantry and there was a short, sharp skirmish on the outskirts of the town. Apparently there were some German anti-tank guns in the town. The artillery concentration crept eastward. The guns of the flanking British formation also were joining in the shooting. The gunfire kept going until 9 p.m. when it petered out for a while.

The Canadians advanced at least six miles before darkness yesterday (Saturday) and seemed to be making good progress.

Vaughan's Homer With Bases Full Keeps Brooklyn Dodgers In Second Place in National

'The Bums' Require Ten Frames to Subdue the Pirates

CARDS MOVE UP

By ED MEEKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

A last second register in the form of Augie Galan's ninth inning single that tied the score followed by Arky Vaughan's grand slam homer with the bases full in the 10th, kept Brooklyn Dodgers from tumbling into third place in the National League yesterday.

After walloping the Dodgers three in a row at Forbes Field Pittsburgh Pirates, thanks to Rookie DiMaggio's two homers, led, 6-5, going into the ninth. With two on and two out all that separated the Pirates from moving into second place was one strike.

But with the count on him two and two Galan bested Max Butcher's next pitch for a single to score Dixie Walker from second base with the tying run.

Brooklyn remained 8 1-2 games out of first place however, as the Cards continuing their Canadian pace-setting ways, made it nine in a row by beating Boston Braves, 5-3. Big Mort Cooper got off to a shaky start, but hurled hitless ball after the second inning to record his 14th victory of the season against five defeats.

Win-On Three Hits

In the American League the first place New York Yankees made only three hits off Jake Wade, but beat Chicago White Sox anyway, 5-3. The victory stretches the Yanks' lead to eight games as the second place Detroit Tigers lost to Philadelphia Athletics, 2-1.

While lost because of four White Sox errors and because the Yanks capitalized on eight bases on balls.

Jesse Flores, early season pitching sensation, won his first game since June 15, in beating Detroit for the A's. Bobby Grayson held the Athletes to five hits but three of them went for extra bases.

Catcher Ray Mueller walloped two homers, good for six runs, as Cincinnati Reds thumped the Phillies 8-3, while New York Giants ended a seven-game losing streak by beating Chicago Cubs, 4-3.

St. Louis Browns snapped their 5-game losing streak by defeating Boston Red Sox 7-1, behind Bob Muncrief's three-hit pitching.

Cleveland started a new winning streak by whipping Washington, 7-2, as Jim Bagby chalked up his 10th win of the campaign.

Callura to Defend Title Against Terranova Aug. 16

(By The Canadian Press)

Declaring that he would "rather fight in New Orleans than in any place in the world," Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., announced yesterday that he would have no ability to offer if he does not defend the world's featherweight title against Phil Terranova of the Bronx in the 10-round go down there Aug. 16.

The reason why the Canadian is very cheerful about New Orleans, where he now is in training, is that he has already supported eight times in the ring there including the bout two years ago when he earned a 10-round draw with Jimmy Perrin, then recognized as the crown-wearer. Callura added that he hadn't fought "a really good fight since I last appeared in New Orleans." All in all, Jackie thinks the chamber-of-commerce touch for the gulf town throughout his contests in the ring overlooked the fact that he had suffered a third-round knockout and the hands of Perrin only last month.

Callura's warm-up for the title tilt, Callura will step into the ring at Mobile, Ala., Friday night with Frankie Green of Cleveland, Ore., for 10 rounds without championship consideration. Ryan is known as a tough customer.

The 18-hole playoff for the $1,000 first prize in the Thos. O'Shanter open yesterday at Chicago resulted in a victory for Craig Wood of Philadelphia by carding a 71 against his fellow-townsman, Jimmy Demaret of Greenwood, Miss., who made it in 72. While each of them had a 36-hole total of 141 for this major-league tourney.

Stewards of the Detroit Fair Grounds race track yesterday issued a 25-day suspension to Johnny Adams, leading American jockey, for running out on his commitment to ride Earl H. Sasseby's favorite If last Saturday. Adams had ridden 129 winners so far this year and he is credited with 246 winning mounts last year.

Promoter Mike Jacobs yesterday announced two major flight matches to be staged at New York Polo Grounds on Aug. 27. Henry Armstrong will trade punches with Cpl. Ray Robinson in a 10-round fling and Billy Conn, light-heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Gus Lesnevich, light-heavyweight champion, in a 15-round bout. Lesnevich holder, at 15 rounds.

Albert (Chalky) Wright, one-time mainstay of the featherweight crown, yesterday enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps service. Before he reports for duty at mid-August, however, he will have one more clothes fling in the ring at Washington, D.C., when he takes on Angel Avilas for a 10-round go.

The Louisiana State Racing Commission reported a total of $10,054,996 was handled for the 74-day regular season at New Orleans Fair Grounds, which was high for the wagering being partly due to the Fair Grounds' tracks in Florida and California last winter.

The 30-day fall meeting at Pimlico, near Baltimore, Md., will be conducted jointly by four clubs, Maryland Jockey Club, Bowie Racing and Gravel Bowie. It was decided yesterday by the Maryland Racing Commission at a previous plan, the jockey club was to run the show and share profits with the three other tracks.

Toronto.—Any time a Horse player's with heart ailments and no money saved up is entitled to the grand and splendid moments when the "photo" sign flashes on the board. Hirsch Cohen, Canadian Press Correspondent, intrigued by this photo finish business, tried a non-betting little approach. He found:—

Forty-two Canadian and United States tracks (thoroughbred, harness and dog-race) used the photo finish at least once this year not an inch of film can be bought in Canada. Only one of the 42 tracks openly comes from the United States, now refused to buy film. Canada tracks use 15 to 4 rolls per day. Dog tracks use the most.

Interesting, the Boston dog-racing establishment refused to pay $150 to $250 daily to rent the Eastman-Sky. Finally, Wonderland offered to pay 1-10th of one per cent of the daily mutuel handle — and snarled around when the "cash" soared unexpectedly to an average $240,000, forcing the less $200 payout the owners set, but never expected to pay.

L.T.S. "FLYERS" BEAT BRISTOLS IN FIRST GAME

Archie Green's Squad Put Game on Ice in Fifth With 11 Runs

SCORE IS 22-7

One big inning that netted them eleven runs was enough to give No. 5 ITS. "Flyers" first blood in the City League Softball finals at the Pair Grounds last night when Archie Green's Airmen rocked through to a 22 to 5 victory over the Bristol "Bombsite Bombers". The second game of a best-in-three series will resume Wednesday evening, the ultimate winner of the series meeting Reliance for the City League honors.

Pov four frames matters were even as Bristol scored one in the third and the Flyers evened matters. Bristol came back with two in the fourth but the Airmen came in three in their half and then batted around in the fifth for the fifth to score eleven runs. Bristol was held scoreless in the last five, and in which Bill Bancroft, on the mound for the Flyers, eased up to allow but four Bristol scoring four. The Flyers scored runs in every inning but the fourth and the ultimate winner of the singles, with two runs batted in and a single to count the majority of the runners, was collected by the Bristols.

The Bombers played loose ball behind Harris, who developed a wild streak in the latter innings, issuing four bases on balls. Bill Bancroft, hurling for the Airmen, was right sure and his effective slow ball was exceptionally good as he passed the Bristols down in order in the fifth. Green's Flyers left 15 stranded on the runners, while the Bristols had eight left behind.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 134

By SAM GORDON
The Ekistner

Many bridge players are unconscious when it comes to the second round of bidding. There is no reason for you to be. Horse Sense rules tell you exactly what to do.

Bids follow the order in T-A-N: takeout, assist, no-trump. A takeout is out to a new suit is forcing for one round. Any other non-jump response does not force you to bid again.

But listen. Just because you are not forced to bid again, does not mean you must pass. Even when you are not forced, you bid again if you have anything new to show.

Let's take the same hand we have been talking about for several days. Here it is:

♠ A Q 6
♥ A Q 8 5
♦ K J 10 4

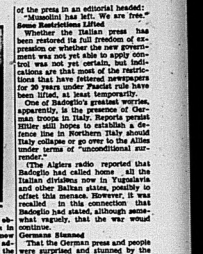
Your opening bid with that hand is one heart. If partner takes out to one spade or two clubs, you are forced to bid again. Your second round bid is a takeout to two diamonds.

Instead of one spade or two clubs, if partner takes out to two diamonds, you are forced to bid again. But you have no takeout now. You assist to three diamonds.

Instead of one spade or two clubs or two diamonds, if partner assists with a bid of two hearts, that is not a takeout. Nor is it a jump. So you are not forced to bid again.

However, following T-A-N, your second round bid is a takeout to three diamonds. If you do not have the diamond takeout, you would have assisted to three hearts.

Instead of any other, suppose partner's response was one no-trump. That is not a takeout to a new suit. So it is not forcing. But you would takeout to two diamonds.



Thus, if you follow T-A-N, you know what to bid on the second round with any hand. Unless you pass. And you do not pass if you have something new to tell your partner.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy who has accepted the "resignation" of Mussolini and his entire cabinet.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio who has been named leader of Italy's new military government. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the country.

"After Midnight With Boston Blackie"

Gunfire lights up a blackout, air raid sirens shriek, bullets scream and Boston Blackie, fiction's slickest rogue, returns to the screen in his newest Columbia adventure film. Opening on Wednesday at the McCarthy Theatre, "After Midnight With Boston Blackie" promises to be the most exciting hit in the lovable scoundrel's entire career as he stalks through the darkness, stealing jewels and kisses.

Chester Morris, slick-haired film favorite, again plays the title role, while George E. Stone once more portrays the Wunt, Blackie's ever-present and never-helpful pal on Friday. Other favorites who are returning for their familiar roles are Richard Lane as Police Inspector Farraday, Walter Sande as Sergeant Matthews and Lloyd Corrigan as Arthur Wanlider, Blackie's wealthy backer.

Person Columbia's by Howard J. Green, the story of "After Midnight With Boston Blackie," is concerned with the murder of an ex-gangster and the mysterious disappearance of his fortune in diamonds. Blackie, a reformed jewel thief, enters the picture when Ann Savage, in the role of the gangster's moll, begs him to help solve the mystery.

Once Blackie gets the case, the police immediately start on his trail. From that moment until the action ends, the manner which takes place in the midst of a blackout, a merry time is had by all. The crooks are after the diamonds, Blackie is after the crooks. And the police are after Blackie. And in the background throughout all this excitement, a big blonde burlesque queen sits in the Bum's rush see that he goes through with their end of the bargain.

According to advance reports, everything gets straightened out to the satisfaction of all concerned, with the exception of the crooks who find themselves behind the bars where they belong.

Besides the players mentioned above, Other members of the cast include veteran actor Pat Kendall, George McKay, Al Hill, Walter Baldwin, Jack Mulhall and Dick Elliott. Sam White produced; while Edward Landers was in charge of direction.

2nd feature attraction presents John Bridges in the human heart story "Road to Happiness" with Mona Barrie, Billy Lee and Roscoe Karns.

AT THE BELLE

"Forever and a Day"

With a distinguished cast that reads like a "Who's Who" of London and Hollywood film colonies, and an engaging story that covers a century and a third of English history, the picture named "Forever and a Day" has finally reached the screen after many weary years of preparation and is now on the Belle Theatre screen.

This notable offering defies many of the accepted laws of filmdom. Its stars and directors donated their usually expensive services so that the profits (all of which go to United Nations war charities) would be as large as possible. Five favorites begged for the chance of playing their parts, all of the most noted directors in the industry took time out from different projects, and arranged their portions of the task and their shooting schedules in perfect harmony.

The result is something unique in screen annals—a truly all-star picture that is as entertaining and as full of colorful incident and dramatic characterizations as it is of brilliant cinematography.

A sturdy old English home, built in the year 1804 by the fiery Admiral Trimble, is the axis about which the story revolves. Here and in scenes like trenches and foxholes and dugouts on the battlefields of two generations of the old Admiral's descendants the story moves as matter for the different episodes that occur from that time on up to the Lastwaffe raids over London in 1940, when a heavy bomb smashes the structure to fragments.

Two of the Admiral's great-great-great-great - grandchildren, an American reporter whose grandfather father still owns the property and an English girl who was born and brought up in the old house and wants to buy it, serve to introduce the plot and carry it over the intervals between the episodes. And it is there that, long after the bombing, decide to rebuild the old home together, and thus help to make a new world where homes and human lives will be safe.

C. Aubrey Smith plays the role of the Admiral, and Ray Milland, Claude Rains, Merle Oberon, Dame Anna Neagle, Jessie Matthews, Ian Hunter, Charles Laughton and Cedric Hardwicke have important roles in the thrilling panorama. Supporting parties as Ida Lupino, Brian Aherne, Charles Coburn, Alexander Knox, Herbert Marshall, Robert Cummings, Elsa Lanchester, Isobel Elsom and Claude Cittip are seen in later episodes, with Kent Smith and Billy Lee featured in the scenes of two descendants in the opening and closing sequences.

An Anglo-American production, distributed through Paramount by Claire Trimmond Goulding. Cedric Hardwicke, Robert Lord, Victor Saville, Robert Stevenson, and Herbert Wilcox directed and produced the various portions of the film, with Lloyd Richards as production co-ordinator. A long list of famous writers, among them C. S. Forrester, Jesse Hilton, Donald Ogden Stewart, Frederick Lonsdale and R. C. Sherriff, contributed the screen play.

The Belle News of the World, and a Walt Disney cartoon in color completes the program. The engagement ends on Wednesday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"They All Kissed the Bride"

Columbia's "They All Kissed the Bride" begins a gay romp at the Capitol Theatre to prove—as though proof were necessary—that Joan Crawford rules pictures' billing as one of Hollywood's better comediennes, that Melvyn Douglas is one of the screen's finest romantic comedy foils, that Alexander Knox is filmdom's foremost director of gay love stories.

"They All Kissed the Bride" is a warmly human romance, gold in terms of dingly delightful comedy. Zestfully directed by Hall, who made such other fine films as "One Thing Called Love" and "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," the film, the ever-thrilling love story, a joyous picture warmed by the touch of "heart," that makes such stories rare and memorable. Brimful of the touches of little things that make love so precious, "They All Kissed the Bride" is the story of a millionaire business woman who was all business, until a persuasive young proved to her she was all woman!

"The Ape Man"

The world's story of a scientist whose secret experiment result in his own transformation to an ape man is the basis of the screen-play for Bela Lugosi's exciting new picture at the Capitol Theatre.

"The Ape Man" as the picture is called, was filmed by Producer in the studio of Monogram Pictures. Hollywood's specialists in production of horror dramas.

The Universal newsreel completes the big double bill.

A British soldier stands before a big painting of the fallen Mussolini and examines confiscated weapons in Fascist headquarters in Sicily, Sicily after that town had been captured.

Baseball Association Decides on Home and Home Series

GENERAL BUSINESS

Hamilton, Ont., July 27—(CP)—The annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association, at a meeting here decided that round-robin playoffs would be eliminated for the duration of the war.

Instead all series will be decided on a home and home basis with the teams tossing for the choice of home games. Deciding game will be played on the field of one of the contesting clubs.

Sub-committee members were given authority to deal with matters in their own territories and report to Secretary W. J. Synder in Hamilton. Matters that take in other territories and general O. B. A. business will be handled in the usual way.

A vote of thanks was tendered it H. Bersch of Hamilton and Ralph Hall of Port Colborne, both subcommittee members, for their efforts to organize baseball clubs in their respective territories.

Two players were granted reinstatement from professional ranks.

They included Jack Davis of Buffalo, former Pony League player who has whatever clubs are leading the two respective major leagues on the week-end following Independence Day (July 4th) will eventually win their respective leagues and meet in the world series. This legend doesn't always run true to form, despite the fact the New York Yankees have proven it in the American League seven times in the past ten years.

However, figures in the National League dispel the theory somewhat. Here it is exactly the reverse. Figures in the senior circuit go to show that only three clubs to lead the league on July 4th went on to play in the world series that particular season.

Figures for the past ten years follow:

Softball Situation

Except for the fifth inning when the No. 3 I.T.S. "Flyers" scored seven runs, the Trenton softball semi-final between the Airmen and Bristol was a pitchers' battle until despite the large score of 22 to 6. Wright, Bristol hurler, was walking the Flyers the passed an even dozen it seems) the Airmen were unable to get their bats on the blows, as Muldoon, McKay, and Gilgnac hit consistently and a new-comer named Damels count. of three consecutive triples made those extra base hits just meant the difference between victory and defeat. In the meantime the Flyers were giving Flanker Sgt. Bancroft, former Winnipeg hurler, some tidy support all of which helped the Trenton nine to the blood in the series. Naturally the Flyers have the big edge in a best-in-three series, that continues Wednesday.

Down at the Armouries Harold Kurtz's Reliance team is rallied strong in the last two frames and of Essen.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Wasted Effort.

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a browbeating barrister of a man he was cross-examining.

"Yes", replied the witness.

"What did he say?"

Counsel for the other side objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the Court retired to consider the point, announcing some time later that they deemed the question a proper one.

"Well, what did the plaintiff say?" repeated the cross-examining barrister.

"He wasn't at home, sir!" was the answer.

Not Always Winners

There's a baseball legend that many of the figure fisherts ever by regarding the winning of the major baseball leagues. Forty years ago the pennant winners in both leagues were the same. Then the Chicago Cubs won it in the American League seven times in the past ten years.

However, figures in the National League dispel the theory somewhat. Here it is exactly the reverse. Figures in the senior circuit go to show that only three clubs to lead the league on July 4th went on to play in the world series that particular season.

Figures for the past ten years follow:

Softball Situation

Except for the fifth inning when the No. 3 I.T.S. "Flyers" scored seven runs, the Trenton softball semi-final between the Airmen and Bristol was a pitchers' battle until despite the large score of 22 to 6. Wright, Bristol hurler, was walking the Flyers the passed an even dozen it seems) the Airmen were unable to get their bats on the blows, as Muldoon, McKay, and Gilgnac hit consistently and a new-comer named Damels count. of three consecutive triples made those extra base hits just meant the difference between victory and defeat. In the meantime the Flyers were giving Flanker Sgt. Bancroft, former Winnipeg hurler, some tidy support all of which helped the Trenton nine to the blood in the series. Naturally the Flyers have the big edge in a best-in-three series, that continues Wednesday.

Down at the Armouries Harold Kurtz's Reliance team is rallied strong in the last two frames and of Essen.

won with a Merrivell finish, scoring six runs in the seventh to beat 9-6 14 to 10. The win assured the Reliance of a play-off spot.

This and that.

Uncle Mike Jacobs has two big outdoor fight cards coming up. On Aug. 27th he'll send Ray Robinson in against the former triple-cream champion, Henry Armstrong ....Then on Sept. 14th he'll give Beau Jack a chance to regain his lost lightweight crown in a bout with Bob Montgomery ....Speaking of ring activities there's nothing wrong with Wednesday night's opening bout at the Hume arena when "Texas Dick" Bishop meets Joe Bilgic. There's a lot more about the Trenton "Flyers" playing baseball soon.....As a matter of fact, FO. Horton's Airmen will carry the Central Ontario banner into the O.B.A. playdowns this year.

In the first third of the season Joe Gordon of the Yanks fanned 31 times. He hit into six double plays.

Johnny Podgajny and Rip Sewell of the Pirates in a little more than two seasons whipped the Cubs 23 times.

Since late in August, 1941, the Hudson Club has had 16 games, without a break, in Albany.

Cornell, Duke and Georgia Tech are booked to play at the Polo Grounds in the Manhattan Stadium this fall.

British Syrian Army Ready For Heavy Blow

London, July 27 (CP)—The giant commander of Britain's 9th Army, Lt. Gen. W. G. Holmes, was quoted as telling newsmen in an interview at his Middle East headquarters that his "very large forces" are ready to strike.

Telling of the secrecy surrounding the "ghost army" which faces Southeast Europe, Charley Foley, in a London Daily Express article, said senior commanders are cloaked in secrecy, along with weapons, methods and dispositions. He described Holmes as a six-foot figure "nobody really knows."

"I cannot say anything that may tend to suggest when we may start or where we may go," Foley quoted the General. "But we've waited a long time for the chance, and I believe that up to the moment we've kept the enemy pretty well fooled about our plans.

"The 9th Army has been quiet during the last 12 months but not quiescent. We've been through a big training plan, and we've been about twice as good as they were a year ago."

Describing a trip around the coastline, Foley said a Commando officer told him the coast, with its rocky inlets and sandy bays, "was made to order for our amphibious exercise."

"The security set-up on the frontier to stop news filtering to Germany through Turkey would make a wonderful story if it could be told," the correspondent added.

NEW GOVERNMENT

Disorders have been surprisingly few, according to these sources. Badoglio moved swiftly to avoid bloodshed and so far but one serious outbreak has been reported — a riot in Milan Sunday night, that resulted in the death of three Fascist party members.

Spontaneous Demonstrations

Belief Badoglio and the cabinet would seek some method of approaching the Allies for armistice terms was strengthened by mounting reports of spontaneous peace demonstrations which have broken out in Italy's biggest cities. They began Sunday night, soon after Radio Victor Emmanuel had announced the resignation of Mussolini.

Men, women and children poured into the streets of Rome, Naples, Milan, Turin, Genoa and other cities with cries for peace and shouts of "Up over Mussolini's downfall. Direct news dispatches from Italy have been halted, but Italian newspapers reaching Switzerland disclosed the scope of the demonstrations, which apparently were country-wide.

The Corriere Della Sera of Milan reflected the opinion of the majority of the press in an editorial headed: "Mussolini has left. We are free."

Some Restrictions Lifted

Whether the Italian press has been restored to full freedom of expression or whether the new government was not yet able to apply control was not yet certain, but indications are that most of the restrictions that have been in force now for 20 years under Fascist rule have been lifted, at least temporarily.

One of Badoglio's greatest worries, apparently, is the presence of German troops in Italy. Reports persist Hitler still hopes to establish a defense line in Northern Italy should Italy collapse or go over to the Allies under terms of "unconditional surrender."

The Algiers radio reported that Badoglio had called home all the Italian divisions now in Yugoslavia and other Balkan states, possibly to offset this menace. However, it was pointed out in this connection that Badoglio had stated, although somewhat vaguely, that the war would continue.

Germans Stunned

That the German press and people were surprised and stunned by the swiftness of the fall of Fascism was confirmed today by a dispatch from the Berlin correspondent of the Tribune De Geneve which said that the people of the capital were "shocked." It was difficult for them to comprehend the possible consequences one chapter dispatches said, and until the news was announced by the official German news agency, newspapermen, diplomats and the public believed themselves victims of the "black radio."

CHAPTER 30

Adela Reports Meet's Gossip

Meegan went to the club house one evening in August to have dinner with Adela. They had arranged to have an early dinner since Meegan was driving to town with Erica. The night cool now, Elinor McCrae had complained that she needed a warmer coat and when Meegan, meeting Erica briefly that day had said that she must go to town, Erica had offered to take her.

The sun was still high over the bay and the tall boats and the people on the beach when Meegan joined Adela on the veranda. And as always on Saturday the club house was the centre of much activity and conversation. Men gathered in knots to talk over their golf scores and pig-tailed, sunburned little girls in pinafores and close-cropped, sunburned little boys in shorts, the night approaching too soon for them, chased each other around the verandah, their small, happy voices loudly punctuating the low murmurs of older elders. It was a scene typical of leisure and good living except for the radio pouring forth the somber news of the war, a voice like an evil omen that would go soon and claim the attention of all, even that of the romping children and of him who had said that she must go to town, Erica had offered to take her.

The sun was still high over the bay and the tall boats and the people on the beach when Meegan joined Adela on the veranda. And as always on Saturday the club house was the centre of much activity and conversation. Men gathered in knots to talk over their golf scores and pig-tailed, sunburned little girls in pinafores and close-cropped, sunburned little boys in shorts, the night approaching too soon for them, chased each other around the verandah, their small, happy voices loudly punctuating the low murmurs of older elders. It was a scene typical of leisure and good living except for the radio pouring forth the somber news of the war, a voice like an evil omen that would go soon and claim the attention of all, even that of the romping children and of him who had said that she must go to town, Erica had offered to take her.

"This table is all right, isn't it?" Adela asked. They had walked away from the entrance where many people had gathered to a secluded table at the end of the verandah. "Here's the menu. It's so early we shouldn't have to wait. But I'm long. I'm really quite hungry. I'm starving. I played twenty-seven holes this afternoon and if you don't think that gives you an appetite . . . I didn't have time to dress". She wore a green and white sailor sports dress. Her brown bony face looked as it it had recently had the careless and hasty washing. "I didn't intend to play the last nine but Bill and I were even on the eighteenth. I was one up on the twenty-seventh". She lighted a cigarette. "I'll never get me a man. I never let 'em win. What's on your mind? How come Erica is driving you to town tonight?"

"Toby has the car and we need a few things from the apartment". "Erica's a good kid." When the waiter came, Adela said: "Hello, Charlie. We'll have two mint cocktails and order our dinner later". When he left she folded her tan brown hands on the edge of the table and looked at Meegan with an amused frown. "I've been running into her some. She reminds me of a kitten I used to have. He was scared silly when I first got him. Always running under the tables and sofa to avoid me. But he got over that and he was the most affectionate and intelligent pet I ever had. Erica is like him. Scared and proud."

"And affectionate and intelligent", Meegan said.

"Instead of asking her to have dinner with us tonight but it's been a long time since you and I got together. One of the things I like about her is that she's never pretended to be other than what she is. She might have thrown a lot of parties and passed out a lot of food and drink and had a gang in all the time. That's one way to crash. You have to give her credit for having more dignity than that. She's probably kept her sister-in-law from making a fool of herself. Of all that god-awful get-ups that woman has them! We think we're the salt of the earth but it's the gals like Erica who can type with all their fingers and who know the debit from the credit side of a ledger and who will go to work with their lunches under their arms who will help to win this war. One of these days she'll look back and think what a fool she was to waste this summer and for carrying whether we like her or not. She'll have more to look back on than beating a man one up on the twenty-seventh hole". When the waiter came and placed their cocktails before them and went away again, Adele said, "Toby still sees her once in a while. What's the score on that or don't you know?" Meegan picked up the fragile glass. "I don't know. Truly I don't. He never tells me anything".

"Erica has been doing that ever happened to Toby, but nothing will come of it as long as Clare is around. That's the score! You don't have to be a genius at that. I'm sure that one out". Her small dark eyes brightened as she lifted the glass to her mouth. "You would think I'd keep anything from your old pal. would you? You look . . . well, sort of shot about something".

Meegan smiled. "I'm tired, Adele. That's all".

"...on't try to kid me. Your game has been off since that day you went to Washington to see Peter. I like him but even an old maid like me wouldn't marry him. He's even going to have trouble getting a girl to marry him or his money". She looked straight at Meegan. "It wouldn't be Payne Christopher, would it, baby? The island has ears and eyes on all sides. A couple of rocking chair brigade got you with him. You don't have to tell me anything and you know it. We took the first person who said anything nasty about you. That's not the point. The point is that Clare is in your way . . . for the first time".

"You're having hallucinations, darling".

"Am I? A matchmaker old maid, huh? Okay, as you won't talk . . ."

"We ran into each other quite by accident in the station and he offered to drive me down. We were warm and tired and we went in for a quick swim. You can't make anything out of that. No one can. No one would have said or thought anything if Van, for instance, had brought me home".

"I can make something out of it. Two and two make four and you and Payne make the sparks fly upward. Now Clare is in your way. See how you like that. I don't make cracks about marriages, as a rule, I don't what's happening to Sue and Van's marriage, with Van drinking more and more. But I'll make all the cracks I please about Clare's marriage because it isn't one. She uses her wedding ring as a drill to hide her foul tricks. Good if she could be rubbed out as you eradicate a wrong word, think of all the people who'd be straightened out. Now you . . . ." She pulled up her head and narrowed her eyes and grinned. "I guess I've been reading too many murder mysteries to pass nights away from home. In them before the murder is committed, you look for the guy who is making all the unhappiness to the other characters. That's the person who will be rubbed out before long. Gruesome, what?"

Meegan shook her head. "Very. I should think you could find healthier entertainment in the evening, Adele".

"I hate evenings. Nothing to do. So I read and wonder if I could write a better story. The perfect crime. That's what I want to write".

"I'd rather hear about your golf game".

"Okay!"

Meegan nodded and smiled but her heart, heavy only a moment ago, felt as it plummeted by some sudden magnetism. Her imagination again, she thought, or was it true that she had a query look as if she, too, had been penetrated by some unpleasant, sinister?

The lights on the verandah were turned on, making the shadows disappear and changing the atmosphere of the club house from a place of sports and chasing children to one where soon there would be music and dancing and the rustle of soft gowns.

Adela took another cigarette and struck a match, but holding the lighted match in mid-air she said low, "Don't look now but here comes Van in his cups . . . and I mean in his cups. The way he looks he's been spending the whole afternoon down in the bar".

With her back to the entrance Meegan could not see him and had no wish to.

She said, "I'm supposed to be at Dick's at ten. She and Van are coming to the dance tonight".

"I'll be there tonight. Somebody ought to tell him that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. He's all over the place. If we were sitting closer to the door, he'd be in our laps. Too late . . . Getting up, she moved quietly to the wall lamp and turned it out and then came and quietly back at the table. "I don't want him to see us. He'd never go. We'd never get rid of him". Jerking up her head, she said, "Quiet . . . There's someone coming up the steps. . . . Sue. She has him by the arm . . . She's leading him down the steps. There he's out of sight now . . .

When the sound of the motor died away, Adele got up and turned on the lamp again.

FOOD RIOTING REPORT ON PALERMO STREETS

Palermo, Sicily, July 23. (Delayed.)—(AP)—Food rioting broke out on Palermo streets today, but American troops brought it under control by distributing captured German military stores.

Thumb and Two Fingers Blown Off by Dynamite

While playing with dynamite he found in an abandoned shack near his home, 14-year-old Alex Ferguson of Milltown, lost a thumb and two fingers from his right hand, when the dynamite exploded Monday afternoon. The lad was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. A. E. Miles was in attendance and later had to amputate the thumb and two adjoining fingers as the digits were badly mutilated. He also sustained heavy facial lacerations as the result of the explosion.

Young Ferguson found some dynamite in an old shack situated on the Milltown quarry premises. The lad built a fire and held one of the sticks of explosive over the flames until it exploded with full force in his hand. The force of the concussion hurled the lad over backwards, a distance of 15 feet where he fell into the nearby waters of the explosion, hearing the explosion, hastened to his rescue and after binding the severely injured hand drove the injured boy to hospital.

Cpl. Wm. Beatty of the R. C. M. P. and Constable Arthur Kellar of the Provincial Police investigated the accident and learned that dynamite had been stored in the quarry toolhouse at Milltown and considerable time has been having been used to blast stone for the building of the new highway construction work. The explosive was quite dry and when it came in proximity to the fire naturally it exploded as the lad held it in his hand. It is miraculous, that the explosion did not prove fatal, stated police authorities as they continued their investigations further into the planing of the dynamite in such a dangerous place.

British Brides Of Canadians Study Cookery

London, July 27 — (CP Cable) — A bevy of British brides returned to school today but not to learn such fine things as Latin. Two score of the estimated 10,000 wives of Canadian servicemen overseas started a four-day course relating to live in the Dominion entitled "How to Make a Canadian Husband Happy."

The plan is sponsored by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire with Lady Tweedsmuir as the chief lecturer. If the course is a success, others will be organized so that hundreds of wives of Canadian soldiers will learn the ways of life, manners and the country that will be their home after the war.

A practical demonstration of Canadian cooking will be one of the features as well as films dealing with the country. Discussions will follow each lesson.

Young Dancing Teacher Gets Unexpected Picture From Hollywood Star

The proof that advertising does pay and sometimes produces unusual results is illustrated by the fact that a few weeks ago 16-year-old Madeline Wales, 329 Foster Avenue, announced in the Ontario Intelligencer that she was opening a dancing school and was prepared to instruct Belleville children in the various intricate acts of this social requisite for popularity. Judging by the number of pupils taken advantage of these classes a host known to Hollywood, young Miss Walden received a large autographed photograph of the world famous dancer Eleanor Powell of Hollywood, which she will place with the good luck in the world. The photograph now occupies a conspicuous position on the wall of Miss Walden's dancing school.

DELEGATION TO MEET FUEL CONTROLLER

Following recommendation at the special meeting of city council last Thursday evening that representation be made to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to have the basic price of cord wood raised in the Belleville area a special delegation of Mayor Harry Mullins and Aldermen Chamberlain and Pulford are in Ottawa today to interview the fuel controller.

The committee appointed by council several weeks ago to look into the matter of purchasing cord wood to help relieve what is expected to be a dreading fuel situation this winter, announced last week that sufficient spread between purchase price of cord wood and the ultimate selling price to consumers was not being granted dealers by reason of the present price ceiling. Council recommended that representation be made to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board so the consumer raised enabling the dealer to handle the wood without loss.

R.D. Arnott Defines Drew Program At Meeting in Marmora Village

Marmora, July 27—In support of the candidature of Richard Arnott, member of the last legislature a Conservative rally was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening with a fair attendance.

George A. Reid Speaks

The chair was taken by Reeve W. R. Linn, and George A. Reid ex-mayor of Belleville was the opening speaker, who discussed the question of Hydro. He referred to the criticism of the late Hon. J. S. Cooke at the last nomination meeting attended by the former Cabinet man of Hydro and said that the Liberals are doing today what he denounced Mr. Cooke for doing. They condemned the Mackenzie deal and now uphold it. Mr. Reid said it was the policy of the Conservative party if elected to power to cut off service charges. He showed the difference there was in horse power charges in the various villages of Hastings county and to his mind was unfair. The market should be brought to the door of the people of Hastings County. The cost of power is holding back the development of local projects, he said. More manufacturing should be taking place in the county instead of raw materials being sent elsewhere for manufacturing. The Ontario government headed by Mr. Hepburn is selling Hydro in different places at different prices a condition which should not be. Hydro should be in every home, every mill and every mine.

The boys fighting our battles should count home to a better Ontario. He felt it was the most sacred time he was ever called upon to vote.

W. E. Tummon Ex-M.P.

W. E. Tummon Ex-M.P. and now an agriculturist, next speaker, was glad to be present to say a good word for Dick Arnott because "he stands foursquare with Premier Drew and his 23-point program." He declared there were hundreds and thousands not present at political meetings because they are working flat down to dark on their farms.

Not once before in the history of Ontario has an election been called in harvest time. With the increased production asked for, the farmer is doing a pretty good job under difficult conditions. But there will be casualties on the food front the same as on the other front. A Prime Minister, when they say is a farmer or brings an election on in the middle of harvest which was never done before even in peace time. This meant the drawing from the food front of thousands of campaigners who should be on food production. He felt that if an election had to be held this year, it might have better taken place in October or later when crops were taken in. The man who brings on this election is a farmer. Can you measure his interest in the farm by that?

The election is on. We must meet the challenge. We have no other alternative. See that all get on and cast their vote and show the man who interferes with the agricultural campaign at this time that he is a no more fit or proper person to be at the helm than a general who would withdraw his troops in the midst of a battle," said Mr. Tummon.

Candidate R. D. Arnott.

Richard Arnott, the candidate next addressed the gathering. He prefaced his remarks with a tribute to the late Hon. Wm. Hanna as he presented East Hastings. He said that in 1937 the Conservative party was accused of having no platform and was making no definite promises. The criticism received in this election was that they had a platform. The program had been in preparation for the past four years.

Touching upon the 23-point policy of Colonel Drew, he confined his remarks chiefly to an elaboration of the point upon agriculture. He referred to the slogan, "Keep Him at the Wheel" and added, "Keep him there at the wheel of that tractor, and not at the wheel of the Province of Ontario."

Having touched upon the shifting of leadership from Mitchell Hepburn to Gordon Conant and thence to Harry Nixon, he launched an attack upon the proxy vote.

He said that originally the proxy vote was granted to Active Service Regiment and the Argyll Light Infantry which went to camp on Sunday would not have a vote in which to vote. Soldiers will believe until he had personally checked up with Major Alex Jarvis. However, after considerable pressure had been brought to bear it had been arranged that the soldiers would be permitted to cast their vote at the coming election so that they might vote.

He also said that the forthcoming election was a lead-up to the next Federal election and one had to decide whether James Clark, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature can publicly advocate political union of Canada with the United States of America.

Remaining features of his speech were the assurance that George Drew was a lieutenant of Sir Winston Churchill and that the C.C.F. program and the stream-lining of Hydro with one speech George Drew's policy was the present Government's election and education costs.

In a lengthy speech interspersed with humor, F. G. Gardiner, K.C., of Forest Hill, said he never saw an election like this, so he is disenfranchising it. He predicted that there would be few proxy votes and proxy votes cast. The soldiers, too, should have been given the right to put on their proxy vote the name of the party they wished to vote for. If the difficulties there have been in the enumeration are indicative of the ability of Harry Nixon to run party politics, then it is time for poor policy to support him.

The great issues of the election in his mind should be to win the war with least sacrifice of life and to give leadership to the rehabilitation of the soldiers returning and to which would be more fair than that following the last war as well as to rightly absorb the million industrial workers into other employments when the need for their present work ceases.

Mr. Gee, S. White M.P.

Mr. George S. White M.P. Hastings-Peterborough, in a short speech touched upon the proxy vote and the charges of Hon. Louis St. Laurent concerning Lt.-Col. George Drew and the former's recent utterances about the Union Jack and National Anthem. He also referred to the fact that fifty-two men from the riding went to Hong Kong. "Some day" he said the censored Drew letter will be published. "It is to the great credit of George Drew that he had the courage to make the allegations concerning Hong Kong."

In conclusion he wondered how people could explain how the boys in Sicily could have got their tanks and guns but no bombers. "If they are not entitled to vote we are not entitled to vote." He urged support of the candidature of Richard Arnott as a supporter of George Drew. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Drew Would Call Leading Farmers Into Conference

North Bay, July 27 (CP)—Lt.-Col. George A. Drew Ontario Progressive Conservative leader, in an election speech here last night said that if he were called on to form a government after the provincial election, he would call a conference of the leading farmers of the province regardless of political affiliation to produce the most effective plans for production, price stabilization, marketing, processing and distribution of agricultural products.

Fall of Mussolini Changes Whole Military Perspective

By E. E. DANIEL

London, July 27 —(AP)— Allied military and propaganda forces battering at Italian morale have found in the last month bigger stakes than the mere collapse of Italy.

They intend to knock the main prop from under Germany's military, economic and military structure—a shaky edifice erected on fear, jealousy and power politics.

Capitulation of Italy might at once strike without a fourth, or more of all Axis divisions which are holding this Jerry-built organization together and set up a 400-mile strategic air base within easy range of every Nazi satellite capital in the Balkans.

The effect of eliminating Italy's estimated 37 Balkan divisions—a drop of these since the conquering of Tunisia—might be compared in its strategic effect to the opening of the breach in the Allied front which in a single hurry Napoleon ordered the Belgian Army to cease firing.

If the capitulation of Italy caused a crack-up throughout the Balkans, Hungary might find the flank and rear of its eastern front exposed to Allied attack.

Withdrawal might be Hitler's last chance to save the economic riches of the Rumanian oil fields, which it is estimated here represent one-quarter of Germany's total oil resources.

These are at best long-range possibilities, and not immediate prospects. But they would be fully in accord with indicated Allied strategy, and with the known facts of uneasiness in the Balkans.

Forces Estimated.

The latest London estimates of Axis armed forces in the Balkans are 27 Italian divisions, 20 Bulgarian, 13 German (an increase of nearly 100 per cent in the last three months), 12 Rumanian and about 300,000 Hungarians.

Except for the Germans, the quality and morale of Axis forces in the Balkans is demonstrably poor. Despatches from Sicily have told repeatedly of the deplorable quality of the Italian divisions and there is no reason whatever to think that the Bulgarians, Hungarians and Rumanians are better fighters.

Scantiness of German reserves at the time of the first two-front attack of the war has been suggested by Cairo reports that the Italians, even in Crete, prize German outpost, outnumber the Germans there in two, and that Marshal Yugoslavia will become a full-fledged fighting front, co-ordinated completely with United Nations efforts elsewhere. Allied air bases only 120 miles across the Adriatic from the Yugoslavia coast might soon bring overpowering Allied air fleets to aid the guerilla fighters.

An assault on the Balkans from the Middle East and continued pressure of the Russians on the German forces from the northeast might quickly put the uneasy Balkans under a three-sided threat.

Until Italy became a satellite of Germany these two were rivals in the Balkans, not partners, and Hungary especially vacillated between the two. As recently as April, Nicholas Kallay, Hungarian Foreign Minister, was in Rome expressing foreign policy. Italy's example certainly would not be ignored in the Balkans.

NO 'HOUSING' SHORTAGE

Owen Sound, July 2. (CP)— There's no "housing" shortage at the Grey County jail. For the first time since 1929, the jail has no inmates at all. The last was released last week.

Galt Flier, Husband of Campbellford Girl, Awarded D.F.M. Posthumously

Cameron McKenzie Goody of Galt, Ont., who fell fatal wounds from his crewmates until after the aircraft was out of the danger zone.

Goody, 26, was wounded over Cologne early in July and died a few days later. His wife is a daughter of C.P.O. Constable Hayes, Campbellford, and lives at Campbellford, Ont., and his father, Richard G. Goody, at 1137 Grand Ave., S.) Galt.

Goody's R.A.F. pilot, P.O. J. Hall, is not a Canadian but he trained in Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross for his role in the same raid.

The other awards:

Bar to D.F.C. — Flt.-Lt. J. A. Spence whose wife lives at (95 Gordon St.) Guelph, Ont.

D.F.C. (posthumous) — P.O. J. D. M. Dale whose father, J. P. Dale, lives in Toronto; and P.O. S. S. Martin whose mother, Mrs. W. G. B. Martin, lives in Calgary.

D.F.M. — Sgt. J. Chepil, mother, Mrs. T. Chepil, Winnipeg; and Sgt. D. M. Smith, mother, Mrs. I. D. Smith, St. James, Man.

Goody's Citation

Following are the citations for Goody and Spence:

Sgt. Goody — "One night in August, P.O. Hall and Sgt. Goody were captain and rear gunner respectively of an aircraft detailed to attack Cologne. When nearing the target area, the rear gunner was interrupted by an enemy fighter but P.O. Hall evaded it. A few minutes later the aircraft was illuminated in a cone of searchlights and hit by anti-aircraft fire but P.O. Hall held to his course and pressed home his attack.

"Almost immediately the bomber was hit by rudire from an enemy fighter and sustained severe damage. Skilful evading action enabled P.O. Hall to fly clear of the defences and course was set for base.

"At the beginning of the action, Sgt. Goody was seriously wounded in the thighs, a fracture of the hip bone and pelvis, splinters of which pierced organs in the abdomen. In spite of this, Sgt. Goody refrained from informing his Captain of his injuries until another wounded comrade had received attention.

"During the return flight he remained fully conscious to the possibility of enemy interference and gave reassuring replies to his Captain's repeated inquiries as to his welfare. On reaching the English coast, morphia had to be administered to him, as the pains from his injuries were severe.

"P.O. Hall succeeded in reaching an airfield, where he received prompt the assistance of flaps. In the face of a trying ordeal he displayed outstanding coolness and skill. On termination, while Sgt. Goody's fortitude was amazing. Verdun indicated that not for many years had the summer sun reached along the highway and pickers on the rocks been so numerous.

Taxiied Across Channel

Flt.-Lt. Spence — "In June, 1943, this officer undertook a flight to search for a pilot who was adrift in his dinghy in the English Channel. He succeeded in locating the dinghy some 3 1-2 miles from the French coast. The sea was exceedingly rough but he brought his aircraft down safely on to the water, then taxied to the airman who, after a strenuous effort, was hauled aboard.

"Owing to the heavy seas it was not possible for the aircraft to take off again so, disregarding enemy activity in the vicinity and the possibility of attack from the air, Flt.-Lt. Spence resourcefully taxied his aircraft across the Channel to a home base. His gallant achievement fore 35 cents the pack.

Roosevelt to Give Address Wednesday Of 'Major Importance'

Washington, July 27 —(AP)— President Roosevelt will go on the air Wednesday night in a fireside chat—a radio address which the White House described as of "major importance."

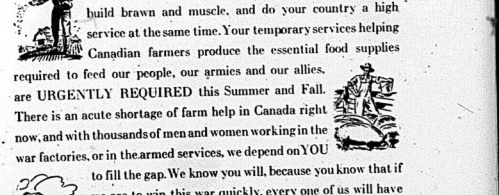
The address will begin at 9:30 p.m. E. W. T.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early gave no hint what the primary subject matter.

Asked whether Mr. Roosevelt's first talk to the American people since the downfall of Mussolini in Italy would deal chiefly with the home front, war front or a combination of the two, Early said "the speech will explain itself."

Huckleberries Still Scarce On Local Market

Huckleberries may be comparatively scarce on the Belleville market, but despite gasoline rationing there is no scarcity of pickers on the rocks bordering No. 7 highway, according to vendors proffering the fruit on the market Tuesday morning. Vendors indicated that not for many years had the number of cars parked along the highway and pickers on the rocks been so numerous.



The berries for the most part are not being picked commercially but district residents, aware of the good crop of berries and apparently unwilling to pay the 40 cents asked on the market, are using precious gasoline coupons to drive the fifty or sixty miles to the rocks in an efforts to get a few pails of berries.

Vendors still asked straight 40 cents per quart for huckleberries on the market this morning, while red raspberries were quoted at the usual 35 cents and the blue variety at 30 cents a quart.

Green corn held at 50 cents the dozen ears, while tomatoes dropped to 25 cents the berry box. Peas were 30 cents the quart and potatoes 35 cents the peck.

MOBS IN MILAN SHOUT "WE WANT PEACE" GERMAN FORCES FACE ENCIRCLEMENT AT OREL

State of Rebellion Reported In Milan Where Situation Is Described As Grave

All Workers Said To Have Left Jobs

Fascist Party Dissolved

New York, July 28 —(AP)— The Rome radio announced today that "complete dissolution of the National Fascist Party" had been ordered at the first meeting of the new Italian cabinet held yesterday under the presidency of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new premier.

(BY FRANK BRUTTO, ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER)

Berne, Switzerland, July 28 —(AP)— Unconfirmed reports received at the Italian frontier today said an insurrection among the people, verging on revolution, had broken out at Milan.

Mobs swept through the streets, despite a state of siege proclaimed by the military authorities, shouting "Liberty," and "We want peace," the reports said.

Shots were fired.

The situation was described as extremely grave.

All workers were reported to have left their jobs.

People Restless

Earlier the Corriere Della Sera of Milan had reported Islands of Fascist resistance were handing out against Italian troops at Milan and indicated that uncertainty over the new government's course between peace and war were producing restlessness among the people.

The Rome radio, in frequent interruptions of musical programs, warning the people against "agglutinators" were circulated by irresponsible persons.

Tullio Giordana, new director of the Gazzetta Del Popolo at Turin, was quoted in dispatches as urging patience upon the people advising them it was not possible to make peace in two days.

Most of the trouble was centered at Milan, the birthplace of Italian Fascism but also the strongest centre of Socialist, Communist and other political movements.

(Corriere Della Sera reported that in Morgagni Street, Milan Fascists battled three hours during the night from the windows and roof of a building. The structure was said now to be encircled by troops but all the Fascists had not yet been captured.

Centre of Resistance

Other small centres of resistance in various parts of the city by "elements refusing to openly join the new order" were reported by the Italian paper.

Commenting upon an "effervescent atmosphere" the paper added that following the demonstrations of National enthusiasm at the fall of Fascism there was another uneasiness among the people."

Swiss telegraph agency reports from the Italian frontier insisted the new Italian regime was "distrusting conditions of an armistice" with Allied representatives and Italy can City but they were without confirmation.

(The Milan correspondent in Berne, in a broadcast, said the Rome radio had declared reports of Italian peace overtures were "unfounded," and had denied that British and American representatives in Vatican City had been instrumental in bringing about a contact for peace negotiations.

("So far official Rome has stood pat on the principle that fighting continues," said the NBC broadcast.)

Report of Events

The newspaper Il Corriere Della Sera presented this account of happenings:

Outbreaks in the centre of Milan were limited and the gravest resistance occurred in the suburbs where the Fascists barricaded themselves in buildings and fought on civilians as well as soldiers. The fight to restore liberty was "long, difficult and bloody".

Workers generally responded to the request of the military commander of Milan, Gen. Casale, to return to their jobs, but in some quarters there was "hesitation and resistance". Troops had to intervene at certain quarters to prevent gatherings and demonstrations which resulted.

Another outbreak occurred in the Milan prison of Celluare where one prisoner was killed and many were wounded in an attempted prison break. The prisoners burned part of the prison.

Naples was the scene of fights in which several were killed and wounded as the people celebrated the fall of Fascism.

There were demonstrations also at Bari, Taranto and other southern cities, and at Trieste and Venice in the north, and Turin was the scene of continuous demonstrations.

The Italian radio this morning ended its program by warning the people against rumors of events "of an exceptional nature which at this moment are being circulated by an irresponsible effort to affect public order".

Sporadic, but nonetheless serious clashes between pro-Fascist Militia and regular army troops, chiefly in Milan, were reported by travelers reaching the Swiss border from Italy.

Birthplace of Fascism

Milan, birthplace of Fascism, was under strict military guard today following outbreaks which continued throughout yesterday and last night.

Police were forced to intervene and break up an attempted jail delivery in Milan in which one person was killed and several wounded, reuters' Rome staff said. Up today 74 political prisoners were said to have been released in Milan.

In other outbreaks Monday nine Fascisti were reported shot or stabbed to death, while scores were imprisoned by the Royal Carabinieri under arrest, travelers said. Turin, Bologna, Genoa and other cities in northern Italy reported disorders.

German garrison troops in Milan, who had been quarted in civil barracks by Italian soldiers since the announcement of Mussolini's downfall several night, can no longer be seen in the city, according to the Swiss telegraph agency.

(A Rome radio broadcast, recorded in London, said the King Victor Emmanuel had accepted the resignation of the Fascist President of the Italian Senate, Count Giacoma Suardo, and had appointed in his place Paolo De Velle in his place. The King also met with the new Italian Premier and conference yesterday, the Rome radio said.)

THREE-CORNERED CONTESTS IN BOTH HASTINGS RIDINGS

Official Nominations Are Held at Madoc and Stirling

MEETINGS QUIET

Staff Reporters

Official nominations for the forthcoming Ontario Provincial elections for the constituencies of East and West Hastings were held in Madoc and Stirling respectively this (Wednesday) afternoon. Bright summer skies welcomed the delegates at both nomination meetings, but owing to the demand of attention to crops and farming necessities the public attendance was somewhat below that usually at official nomination meetings. Also lacking was the spirited interest and public enthusiasm usually made nomination meetings in years past gatherings of intense interest from far and wide. War conditions and the fact that the province is in the midst of the season's heaviest farming period kept attendance and interest at a low level.

There were no changes in the party nominations in the East Hastings riding. Edward Brown, retired farmer of Madoc was nominated by the Liberal standard-bearer.

John A. McAninch, Belleville railway employee, accepted the C. C. F. nomination. He made a three-party political fight with Roscoe Robson, Thurlow Township farmer, carrying the Conservative standard, a banner into the election next Wednesday. From the platform this late Dr. Harold Welsh was elected on the Conservative ticket. East Hastings official nominations were held at Madoc.

At Stirling the West Hastings nomination meeting was even more quieter when the sitting member at the time of dissolution, R. D. Ault, Stirling, was renominated as the Progressive Conservative candidate. Thomas Bevis, Belleville public school teacher, was named as C. C. F. standard-bearer. Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, Sidney Township farmer, the bearer of the Liberal standard. Mr. Arnott, a Belleville lawyer, has been the sitting member ever since the last provincial election in 1937.

GERMANS MASSING TROOPS

Istanbul, Turkey —(AP)—German troops are massing at several points along the Bulgarian frontier, according to reports reaching Istanbul today from Sofia. The Germans are known to have been expecting considerable trouble upon Hungary in an attempt to severe the government from its apparent friendliness to the Allies and from active participation in the war.

Farmer Arrested on Murder Charge 27 Years After Slaying Took Place

Montreal, July 28.—(CP)—Luigi Stabile, 60-year-old farmer, was arrested to appear for preliminary hearing Aug. 10 when arraigned today on a charge of murder arising out of the death of his brother-in-law, Carmino Festa, 27 years ago.

Stabile, father of 12 children, was held responsible for Carmino Festa's death at an inquest yesterday resulting from discovery of the skeleton of the victim of a farm-house in nearby St. Hubert Village.

For a week police had investigated the finding of the skeleton.

At the inquest medico-legal expert, Dr. Paul Benoit, testified he filed the skeleton was that of a person who had met a violent death. He said it was evident from a deep laceration in the skull the man had died violently and added the death blow probably was dealt by an axe.

Then Mrs. Raphael Costello, daughter of Festa, identified the skeleton as that of her father, who disappeared from home on Dec. 27, 1916. Identification was made by jotted digging in the cellar, boots and bits of clothing and by a fracture scar on the skull that corresponded with a fracture Festa had suffered before he left his home finally to come to Canada.

Police were already holding Stabile, but he was not called to the stand at the inquest as a witness, Constable Lucien Lamoureux said.

Mrs. Costello, and a nephew, Joseph Festa, testified that Mr. Festa and they had seen their father enter the farm-house with their uncle, 27 years before and that their father had failed to come out again.

Evidence at the inquest was that Stabile had leased the farm from which the skeleton was found, and that Festa was working as his farm hand when the disappearance from Italy. When Festa disappeared after Stabile had sent him away Mrs. Stabile in what he considered an intimate position, the Festa family after the report of the disappearance to police because they "were not on the best of terms."

Some time later both families left the farm, and another family took it over. A farm-hand found the skeleton but were while digging in the cellar.

AS ALLIES NEAR SICILIAN "LAST DEFENCE" LINE

The Allied advance in Sicily is pictured by the white section in the Central Press Canadian map ABOVE. American troops have captured Palermo and territory farther east on the north coast. The British Eighth Army, including Canadians, is battling on the walls of Catania on the east coast, while Canadians and Americans are pushing up from the captured Gela. All are moving north and eastward to the defence line where the German forces are expected to make a final stand.

ITALIANS SILENT ON REQUESTS FOR CAPITULATION

Churchill Replying To Question in House Of Commons Says No Answer Made

JUSTIFY ROME RAID

London, July 28 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill answered with a short "no" today when asked in the House of Commons whether any reply had been received to repeated requests for Italian capitulation.

"No official reply has been received to the message from President Roosevelt and myself," he said, "unless the disappearance of Mussolini is to be considered a reply to it."

His reference to Mussolini brought a burst of laughter from the members.

Asked if he felt that an apology for bombing Rome would serve any useful purpose, the Prime Minister replied:

"His Majesty's Government have not made any apology for bombing the marshalling yards near Rome. On the contrary, if they are requested, and military operations is resumed, they will no doubt have to be bombed again."

Mr. Churchill said that all his information concerning the political, military and economic consequences of the Rome raid were "highly encouraging."

Mussolini Not In Eire

The House enjoyed another laugh when Oliver Locker-Lampson asked whether Mussolini was in Eire (Ireland). There was no reply.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, assured the House that "any motive to exact an eye for an eye or a tooth for a tooth is entirely foreign to our thought."

Invasion Barge Laden With Planes Found Without Crew

London, July 28—(CP)— An invasion barge loaded with Lockheed Interceptor planes found bombing around without a crew in mid-Atlantic provided the Royal Navy with a mystery today.

The barge was superficially damaged on the nose and had apparently been struck by flying debris, but it was still seaworthy enough to be towed to the British Isles. Several enemy lifeboats were found near the barge.

Won't Return All N.A. Possessions To Italy, Says Eden

London, July 28. (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden made it clear today the Allies would not return to Italy all her North African possessins in event of her "honorable capitulation."

The Foreign Secretary answering "No Sir," when asked in the House of Commons by Thomas Magnay, Liberal, concerning this possibility.

The question was not raised whether Italy might expect to get back some of her former holdings

Cefalu Falls To Americans; Canadians Gain

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Associated Press War Correspondent

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 28 (AP)—Canadian troops have driven forward against stiff resistance in Sicily and the Americans have captured Cefalu, 30 miles west of Messina Strait, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The Canadian 1st Division, led by Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont., has smashed forward after heavy fighting in the central Sicilian sector, communique announced.

The American 7th Army of Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, sweeping eastward toward the tip of Sicily, following their capture of Cefalu are advancing against strengthened German defences at San Stefano.

British Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army still faced the strong German defences at Catania in the eastern sector, and was making little headway, the communique said.

8th Army Quiet

The 8th Army had made no important gain for 13 days—longer than it was when it fought El Alamein in Egypt when it took up its powerful positions at the Mareth line in Tunisia.

Announcement of the fall of Cefalu came at least 36 hours late, and while there were no more official reports on progress, it was plain the heaviest American fighting were being done on the all-out blow along the north coast.

The Canadians still were getting in reinforcements, ad nil was disclosed "the bulk of two Italian field divisions" has escaped into u t bridgehead from the west. They were said to trim down previous official estimates that 17,000 Axis troops were in the trapped zone since the start of the campaign. "Over 70,000" was the last official count of prisoners.

Only Germans on Etna Line

Front line branches and the Germans were completely in charge of the strong Etna line running from San Stefano to Nicosia, Agira, Catenanuova and Leonforte.

HEAPING GREAT DESTRUCTION ON PORT OF HAMBURG

Fourth Successive Night Assault Is Carried Out in 'Great Strength'

18 PLANES LOST

London, July 28—(CP)—Hamburg, great North German port, has been hit by about 5,000 tons of bombs since Saturday night, it was announced today—within a few hundred tons of the total Germany dropped on all Britain in the fall of 1940 during the worst days of the battle of Britain.

This announcement was made soon after Great Force of R. A. F. Bomber Command returned early today from heaping further destruction on the German port, which has been the object of continuing round-the-clock attacks since Saturday.

It was the R. A. F.'s fourth successive night assault upon the battered city, which in normal times has a population of more than 1,000,000. Sandwiched in between these night raids were two smaller daylight attacks by American bombers on Sunday and Monday.

These was no let-up in the Allied attack as strong formations of fighters and bombers continued the assault in daylight today. Lifting forth and back across the Sunny channel to the low countries. The attacks continued past midday.

Soviets Pressing In on Three Sides Of Big Nazi Base

Retreating Germans Burning Villages in Last Desperate Defence of Orel

SAVAGE BATTLES

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, July 28—(AP)—Retreating Germans are burning villages, impressing the inhabitants into labor gangs and forcing them to dig trenches and dugouts for the last desperate defense of Orel on the Central Russian front, Red army dispatches declared today.

A Russian communique also reported Field Marshal Guenther Von Kluge's army was continuing its fall back as the Soviets pressed in on three sides of the Nazi base.

Savage battles were being fought on the sector northwest of Orel.

The exact loyalty was not identified but it was believed to be in the vicinity of the Orel-Bryansk railway which the Russians have had under artillery fire since the capture of Studenkovo. The town is five miles from the railway, only avenue of escape for German forces facing encirclement in Orel.

It was believed the Red army artillery barrage has seriously hampered, if not halted traffic on the railway but there is no indication how the Germans on the line has yet been cut.

Resistance Stubborn

Resistance was stubborn, the dispatches said, declaring they had switched to flank attacks and encirclement moves when unable to penetrate German defences in frontal assault.

The midnight communique reported the capture of 30 more villages as the Soviets drove forward from two-to four miles closer to the encirclement and capture of Orel.

The outflanking tactics were working well, the Russians said. One encircling railroad station has reported seized by encirclement when terrific resistance halted the Russian frontal attack. The Russians made a frontal attack and seen the main forces around the flanks and to the rear. The trapped Germans retired to escape capture, the Russians said.

Capture Important Hill

The Red army war machine captured an important hill and several villages on the drive northeast of Orel on the Orel-Bryansk railway, the communique said, killing about 600 Germans and capturing 12 tanks and four armored cars.

East of Orel the Germans launched several counter-attacks which the Russians said were beaten and the main forces around the flanks and to the rear. The trapped Germans retired to escape capture, the Russians said.

The War Bulletin said Germans had counter-attacked in force in the Orel area southwest of Vorokhlovgrad but that all were repelled with heavy losses.

TURKEY MAY ACT AS MEDIATOR IN ANY PEACE TALKS

Hasty and Mysterious Conference Between Turkey and Italy Held

INTEREST AROUSED

By FRANK J. O'BRIEN

(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Istanbul, July 28 (AP)—Turkey was projected dramatically into the role of a possible mediator between the United Nations and Italy today by a hasty and mysterious conference between the new Italian foreign minister, Raffaele Guariglia, and Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu.

The meeting was held amid every indication of secrecy and urgency aboard the Italian embassy launch in the Sea of Marmora yesterday. Immediately after the conference Menemencioglu left hurriedly for the capital at Ankara and it was disclosed that Guariglia—who has been in Turkey as Ambassador under the Fascist regime of Benito Mussolini—would leave by plane today for Rome.

The circumstances under which the meeting was held were in themselves sufficient to arouse intense interest. Beside the crew there was only one other person—a mysterious and unidentified—seen to board the launch.

A Neutral Power

The fact that Turkish Minister agreed to see Guariglia at Istanbul instead of the Foreign Office in Ankara indicated the importance of the conference. Turkey, as a neutral power maintaining close diplomatic relations with both Soviet Russia and the United States is a logical choice as the mediator for possible peace overtures.

Menemencioglu returned to Istanbul after the conference and then proceeded on to Ankara.

Guariglia was appointed to the Turkish post three months ago and after that it was announced he was not the Italians first choice for the job. Count Dino Grandicono, wanted to appoint an Ambassador of the Fascist leaders, but the suggestion apparently was vetoed by Berlin, Italy's Axis partner. Guariglia was also known to have exhibited any particular Allied sympathies, in fact to have been only lukewarm toward the Fascist regime.

Meanwhile, the Turkish press received favorably the news of the collapse of the Mussolini regime in Italy, most observers expecting that Italy would soon be out of the war.

FORGOT MIKE WAS ON

Minot, N.D., July 28.—(AP)—Rep. R. A. Green forgot during an address that a microphone was in the broadcast. Twice he made assertions that he would have liked his visible audience were "off the record". Sicilian Italians Cheered the News Of Mussolini's Downfall Says Munro

By ROSS MUNRO—

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in Sicily, July 28 — (Delayed) — (CP) Cable — Sicilian Italians who cheered the news of Mussolini's downfall today expressed belief that Marshal Badoglio will bring peace to Italy.

In two towns I visited after learning of the Duce's resignation, Italian civilians said that Badoglio is not a Fascist and that he did not favor Italy's entry into the war.

They believed he will eventually work with King Victor Emmanuel and the Vatican to obtain a peace settlement.

Peace is what these people want. Their army has the same desire, but it has not fought with any degree of stubbornness.

On the other side of the fence, there are Fascists in Sicilian towns — now powerless — who say the latest news from Rome came as a terrible blow. Too, it is a hard blow to landowners who have reduced the people to serfdom.

Fascists say it have been checking the reaction. At headquarters, Mussolini made my daily call, four Italian army deserters were brought in. Their eyes sparkled when they were told the Rome news.

"Mussolini will be back sooner or later," said a big soldier from Palermo.

Again and again they told us the Fascists had milked Sicily and forced Sicilians to fight the Allies against their will. They were strong in belief the people of Italy would accept an Allied offer of honorable capitulation.

The parties were unable to reach any amicable settlement, Mr. Little added as he reported the matter to police. Damage totalled at $15.00 remitted to the rear of Mr. Adamson's car.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Italy's dismal predicament and its far-reaching moral effect are likely to make the way of transgressor Hitler exceedingly hard in the not distant future.

The way things are developing it wouldn't be surprising to see the Nazi chief attempt the major operation of making a sweeping withdrawal on all fronts to restricted boundaries which he would try to defend against the Allies—come one, come all. Strengthened by this consolidation he would battle for a stalemate, hoping not only to save the Reich but salvage some of his ill-got gains.

The length of time which must elapse before the all highest undertakes a last-stand move obviously depends on how hard the Allies are able to push him. That in turn hinges on the speed with which the Anglo-American brotherhood in arms is to open the Italian situation and strike elsewhere.

Yesterday's record I published cut out the great threat which would be created to the present German battle-line in Russia if the western Allies should follow the Italian collapse with an invasion of the Balkans. A successful drive up the Balkan Peninsula would force the Nazis to undertake the dangerous feat of pulling back their entire front, assuming that Soviet pressure was maintained.

It's most unlikely that this could be achieved without corresponding withdrawals in Western Europe. Hitler's position would be so precarious on the eastern front during his retreat that he wouldn't leave his forces scattered throughout the occupied areas of the west. Moreover, we are reminded of another circumstance by Prime Minister Churchill who yesterday told a cheering House of Commons:

"The spirit of revolt rises higher in all subjugated lands. German rule is maintained from the North Cape to Greece, from Finland to Crete only by hideous and ruthless cruelty, reprisals and massacre."

The Greeks, the Yugoslavs, the Czechoslovaks, the Poles, the French, the Belgians, the Hollanders, the Norwegians—all these tortured folk are merely waiting for the signal to throw themselves on their oppressors. Indeed, Yugoslav Guerilla forces never have ceased to wage bitter war on the invaders, and the ferocity of these attacks has increased with the weakening of Italy.

Mr. Sprague was accompanied by Mr. Hird, Mr. Smith and Fred Phillips of Toronto.

Flt.-Lt. Tett Gives Address on 'Bombing From England' to Rotary

Trenton (Special)—The regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club was held at the Gilbert Hotel on Monday evening with President George Cobley in the chair. Guest speaker for the evening was Flt. Lt. J. Tett, D.G.C. of the R.C.A.F. who gave a most interesting and enlightening address on "Bombing from England" Flt.-Lt. Tett spent many months in operational duties and was forced down in the North Sea following one of his bombing raids. With other members of the crew he spent several hours in their rubber dinghy paddling about and hoping for sight of a rescue ship. Finally they saw the tail of a plane protruding from the sea and drew nearer only to find it to be their own abandoned aircraft. They attempted to crawl into it to obtain any ration of coffee or other supplies needed but unfortunately the craft sank before they were successful. Flt. Lt. Tett will be remembered to many as the professional swimmer who thrilled spectators during the recent sports exhibition at the Trenton Air station.

Representing the Trenton Lions Club, Mr. S. O. Graham, spoke to Rotarians on the possibility of a hospital for Trenton. He asked the co-operation of the Rotary Club so that there might be a joint sponsorship set up between Lions and Rotary in this new venture. A committee of Rotarians N. J. McNair, J. J. MacNab and E. A. Simmons was appointed to look into the matter with members of the local Lions Club. It is understood the most desirable of the different sites mentioned was property near the Trenton Golf Club.

Each branch is given an immediate quota for these articles and much assistance is required from the women in order that these may be imported as a very early date.

Mrs. Redick also read a most interesting account of the many thousands of articles which have reached Russia through Red Cross, many of which had gone forth from our own local branch.

KISKA AND WAKE ISLANDS BOMBED

Nine of Thirty Interceptor Jap Fighters Are Shot Down

Washington, July 27—(AP)—U.S. army fighter-bombers, pounding Kiska Island with pre-dawn to thoroughness, made 10 more raids on Japanese installations, the Navy Department reported today, and this series of attacks was followed Sunday night by an unusual single plane assault.

At the same time Navy Secretary Frank Knox reported a flight of heavy bombers raided Wake Island, and pounded that Japanese base "promiscuously and generally."

The lone night bomber which raided Kiska was a Navy patrol craft, which made probably the first night assault ever delivered against the North Pacific outpost. Bombs dropped on Gertrude Cove and the Main Camp section. Fires were started at Gertrude Cove.

The 19 raids Sunday and the one shortly after midnight raised to 41 the total of air attacks on Kiska so far this month. Saturday also had been a 10-raid day.

The bomber flight was intercepted by a group of 30 zero fighters. Of those nine were shot down, four more probably shot down and five were damaged, Knox told his Press Conference.

One American plane is listed as missing.

The Pacific Island had been raided six times before.

A Navy Communique reported on the Wake Island raid. Damage to the Japanese-held island in the Central Pacific was considerable. The raid destroyed nine fighters of 30 which attempted to intercept. Four other zeros were listed as probably destroyed, five other were damaged.

Once again, motorists cast a "landslide" vote in favour of GOODYEAR TIRES

Nation-wide, independent poll shows preference for Goodyear tires greater than that of all other makes combined.*

Hundreds of motorists, in every province of Canada were asked this question: "If you had a tire permit, what tire would you buy today"? By a huge majority Goodyear was again elected Canada's first choice tire!

This simply proves that motorists, forced to keep their old tires running, have learned that Goodyear's "extra mileage" is not merely a claim or a catch-phrase, but a definite reality.

Never before, since motoring began, have tires come through such a testing-time as during the past eighteen months. Never before have motorists been compelled to extract the very last mile from tires. Therefore when Canada's first choice tire, Goodyear, comes through that period and remains, by all odds, the first choice tire, there is abundant proof that motorists have found by practical experience, that Goodyears do give a "bonus in miles and service".

When peace time comes—"Go Goodyear" —and get EXTRA MILES

A Momentous Utterance

In one of the great speeches of his career Prime Minister Churchill on Tuesday demonstrated his knowledge of peoples and of race psychology and his high sense of statesmanship when he lost no time in warning Italy that "she will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other" unless her government withdrew Italians from the United Nations. Italy has to exercise the will power to get herself away from the fatal circle of Hitler. Hence the orders have been given to exert the utmost rigors of war against Italy. Italy has made no overture towards peace and the only decisions to be "made by the Allies are to bring the maximum war punch of sea and steel upon all targets of military significance throughout the length and breadth of Italy."

The language which the Prime Minister used was typical of that great range of expression he possesses and his words exactly suited the present momentous time in the history of the war. The Allies' purpose is to let the Italians "stew in their own juice for a bit" and to hot up the fire to the utmost to obtain from the Italians full facilities for carrying on the war against Germany. Yet he advised that the unconditional surrender of Italy should not be piecemeal but should be wholesale and hence Italy should not be thrown like a sop to leave it without a government to deal with.

It was one of the moments in his career which Mr. Churchill as the Allied people has long looked forward to when the dictators against whom he has striven, should fall. Mussolini is the first to go and Hitler's fall is to come. However his references to Mussolini's fall showed no gloating.

He painted a picture for Italy if she chose to abandon the Axis of what the advancing Allied forces would be like and "if the Italian people so decide, relief from war, freedom from servitude and after an interval a respectable place in a new and reunited Europe."

Prime Minister Churchill was very definite in his utterances on the final victory over the enemy, for he said that a decision of Italy to continue with the German yoke would not seriously affect the course of the war and still less would it alter its ultimate results. The only consequence would be that Italy would be seared and scalded and blackened from end to end in the course of the next few months.

Shrewdly he pointed out to the Italians that the "Germans would naturally wish to make Italy the preliminary battleground that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war be kept as far away and as long as possible from the German Fatherland."

He made it clear that Britain and the Allies did not intend to reduce Italy to a state of chaos and anarchy.

Nor did he minimize the power of Germany whose armies "are still intact and quite unbroken" and he said Hitler has under his orders over 300 German divisions excluding satellites.

In this great speech the Prime Minister showed how the dictator beguiles himself as Mussolini did. "It looked so safe and easy in May, 1940, to stab falling France in the back and advance to appropriate the Mediterranean interests and possessions of what Mussolini no doubt sincerely believed was a decadent and ruined Britain.

It looked safe and easy to fall upon the much smaller state of Greece. But however there have been undeceptions. Events have taken a different course."

That is the tragic conclusion every dictator of history has come to realize when it was too late.

The speech was a broad utterance, full of the wisdom and philosophy of history. It was a warning of future victories and world-stirring events. It was the profound utterance of a man, whose every action and word have been the expression of freedom and of the larger things of life. It was the voice of a great practical statesman who, fighting for right and rallying the forces of civilization against the dark tyranny of the aggressors, sees the triumph approach for which he and the world of free men have struggled.

For months the world wondered where Hitler was. Then it heard he was in North Italy the other day, talking with Mussolini. Now the world is wondering where Mussolini is.

It is "Alaska Highway"

The first thought was the best when it came to speaking of the highway to Alaska as "The Alaska Highway." Canadian and American governments have now decided to restore this name in place of the "Alcan Highway," which aroused a flood of opposition by what is called its slimy sound and its too mechanical makeup of the names of Alaska and Canada.

The people of the entire North American Continent will rather have the road to Alaska named after Alaska, the terminus of the highway and as far as inclusion of the name of Canada in connection with the road, Canadians do not feel it is necessary. As the Montreal Herald says, the road is in Canada and the people will be pleased with the natural name "Alaska Highway."

King's Pilot Hero

When King George glanced at a list of seven names sent him by the Air Ministry he was pleasantly surprised to find that one of the flyers recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross was his own pilot, Q. Br. Fielden, known familiarly as "Mouse." As Captain of the King's Flight, he has flown the King, the Duke of Windsor and other Royalties hundreds of thousands of miles. Since the beginning of the war "Mouse" applied to resume operational duties, but was told to stick to his job. Eventually he put his case personally to the King, who arranged for an important station in the Bomber Command. Even that did not satisfy "Mouse," because most of his work was office routine. He wanted to be where the enemy territory, and won the Flying Cross. Recently the King invited him to Buckingham Palace in London to tell of his exploits.

County Fairs in Wartime

(Detroit Free Press)

The county fairs of Michigan are in for a prosperous year. With lengthy travel restricted the big fairs which drew crowds from great distances will be curbed, but every farmer can get to his country fair. And thousands of them, predicts A. C. Carton, secretary of the State of Fair Managers, will be there. The attendance will intensify local interest and stimulate neighborliness and friendliness. County fairs grew up in answer to a natural human desire to get together and compare notes at the close of a growing season, and such events have long occupied a big place in the social calendar of rural Michigan. They maintain ambition and furnish a well-earned harvest holiday. Long may they prosper.

Nazi Gem Loot Trailed

Trailing Nazi plunder in the form of stolen jewels as result in one of the world's greatest treasure hunts when the war ends, it is revealed in London. Among the looted art treasures, publicly and privately owned, are historic jewels whose value can hardly be reckoned in terms of money. Although some of the crown regalias of Europe were put beyond the grasp of the Nazis early in the war, many priceless historic relics will not be located without diligent search. Meantime the United Nations are making a list of stolen art treasures. Most difficult to uncover will be the gems stolen from Europe's royal palaces and homes of leading families. Some of the jewels have been replaced by fakes or specimens, making the hunt still more difficult.

SUMMER STORM

When the old earth seems tired and worn
And half afraid to greet the morn,
Lest dawn shall see the sun return
To sear and parch and scorch and burn,
Then plant and vine and humans proud
Pray heart-sent discovering a cloud.

Far off within the western sky
A thunderhead is stirring high.
A great expanse of fluffy white,
The promise of a storm at night,
Which may a benediction bring
To every growing, thirsting thing.

"A storm is coming!" is the cry
Of every grateful passerby.
The weary, dusty earth again
Takes heart with the approaching rain.
The cattle seem to watch the skies
With grateful and approving eyes.

The farmer, hurrying through the gate,
Calls to his wife with heart elate:
"All's saved, and all our fears have gone!
A storm is surely drawing on!
We have not sowed in the fields in vain,
The Lord is sending us the rain!"

Departures from town for the summer resorts are now in order. Wellington, in Prince Edward County, is fast taking rank as one of the most fashionable Canadian watering places. Several gentlemen of the town have moved their establishments thither for the heated term, and others have arranged for board for a few weeks at the same place. Several families will also go out on every Saturday, which will, when the contemplated improvements are carried out, as they likely to be next summer, become the fashionable resort par excellence, of the district, as no place surpasses the point in beauty and salubrious surroundings.

Mr. Watkins shipped two thousand boxes of cheese from her locality to the English market. The cheese industry in this county is growing rapidly.

London Letter

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 28. (CP)—The British people are anything but excitable, except people telling them how they can take it.

Most men and women in high places who visit this country feel bound to lapse lyrical at least once in every speech, and tell how the people how grand they were to stand up under the blitzes of 1940 and 1941. They talk about Londoners' reaction to those blitzes as the "rebirth of the British race", the "lighting of a torch by which all mankind may guide itself", and —this is the most common line—of how the magnificent way they conducted yourselves roused the admiration of all the free people of the world".

Those are fine words, but the British people don't seem to handle them. While they went through the fire of the blitz, realization of people tell me; I wasn't here, and I'm not going to join the ranks of judges from afar), losing their homes, fighting fires by night and working by day, suffering injury and personal loss, watching friends and relatives die without losing heart, they cringe every time a speaker gets that look in his eye and starts to tell them how they acted in the blitz.

"We know how we bloody well acted", a minor official told me after one of these "London can take it" speeches. "We don't talk about it and we don't like others to talk about it. We are just trying to hurt anybody's feelings, but it bores us bloody rigid to have anybody come from three or four or eight thousand miles away and tell us how tough it was in the blitz and how well we took it."

Cockneys know, although they wouldn't put it this way, people who are scared but stick it out are brave, and those who aren't scared in the first place are fools. They prefer just to say that they were scared, and let it go at that. As to bravery, cowardice or foolishness about it.

I won't mention the names of the week in London and the tributes it renders among visiting Canadians, because all those people have an saving grace—sincerity. They have a felt admiration here which is not to be found when one came to Britain and got their big chance.

Behind here on short visits, they couldn't really find out how the British civilian has won our praise. But they are on the record —Canadian Cabinet Ministers first, followed by all the host of highplaced men who have come here on visits this country for various reasons in the last two years.

People live here, get their talk about the blitz any more although they may recall it by casual allusion with some particular incident.

But they don't talk about losing their homes, "or brothers or sisters, but it's a common explanation that once there was another member of the family, but, "he was killed in the blitz".

Certainly they don't recall it as a Leroic time. It was a filthy, homeless, destruction-filled, abnormal period of their lives. But they have to remember, and pray never come again. They honor the men and women who fought and died in it, but they honor them by thinking of them, not talking.

Water at Roughest In Sicily Landings Declares Seaman

Yet Every Allied Boat Landed Smack on the Dock

By SYDNEY GRUDON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 28. (Cable)—Two young Canadian seamen just returned from the Sicilian landings said today the landing of troops and supplies on the beaches was as tough as last autumn's landings on North Africa.

Bronhold by four months duty in the Mediterranean area, Leading Seaman Ernest Hall of Vancouver, and James McFarland of Vancouver, gave this picture of how Canadians got to return to Britain from Sicily. They came home on the Belgian Queen, Belgian prisoners.

Macnab and McFarland took part in the North African and Sicilian landing operations as members of combined operations staff.

"Despite the lack of heavy opposition, the Sicilian landings were as tough as North Africa," said Macnab. "The sea was the roughest I've ever been on and this time we knew we were going to face the enemy.

"Yet every boat arrived smack on the mark and landed on the dock was than in North Africa at times it was impossible to distinguish for which we had been prepared."

Their assault craft made eight trips between ship and shore, troop transports, skirting minefields and occasionally under fire, and machine-gun fire from the shore, to land regular troops of a famed British regiment.

McFarland said these troops "had their section of the beach under control in a matter of a few minutes."

Macnab and McFarland were with the British troops who landed on the right of the Canadian troops on the Pachina Peninsula July 10.

NAZIS FURNISH LONGER CHAINS

London, July 28. (CP)—An 18-year-old Canadian, home after two years in German captivity, said he had seen prisoners from Dieppe in a camp near Bremen and that they remained locked in irons as he was there. The one respite granted, he said, was lengthening of the chains between the handcuffs. He described the daily ration of food as a loaf of bread for seven people, a spoonful of sugar, a spoonful of jam and a bowl of turnip soup or sauerkraut.

Is Plowing a Mistake?

(Peterborough Examiner)

An experimental farmer named Edward R. Faulkner, who lives in Ohio, believes that plowing is not only a waste of time but an enemy of good crops. Soil erosion and most of the other ills of the earth, such a crop blights and the like, are encouraged by plowing according to the methods used in the past. He has proved it to his own satisfaction and that of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Faulkner does not plow his fields; he disc-harrows them, and plants his crops in the resulting mulch of weeds, stubble, weeds and odds and ends of herbage. The capitalarity of the closely-packed soil beneath his surface, says Faulkner, is much greater than that of plowed soil, and thus the crops are assured of a better supply of water than they are on deeply plowed land. The mulch does away with the need for fertilizer and insecticides; the bugs, it appears, prefer the mulch to the crops. His method, he says, reduces the growth of weeds, as most seeds are not planted deep in the land and stored for future growth. The men in which he plants his crops he calls "seared soil".

Faulkner's crops are reported to be amazing, and his fields, though dirty in appearance, have unbroken soil. He predicts that the moldboard plow will soon be abandoned, that the system of shallow cultivation adopted by progressive farmers in the western world. He makes the claim that his idea is an original one, and points out that in Russia, South America and other reputedly "backward" communities the system, if since the beginning of time, and they get richer crops than the American farmer with his highly efficient plow. Manufacturers of farm machinery, he says, will soon begin making implements which will be suitable for his basic cultivation, cutting weeds and grass below the surface, and leaving the soil with the rich mulch which draws moisture from above and below, like a blotter.

What farmers as a whole will say to this idea we do not know. We mention it as a revolutionary notion which one hears of but puts into satisfactory action.

ICE CREAM

When was ice cream first made?

Ice cream as it is known today was not the product of a single discovery or invention, and therefore it is impossible to assign a definite date to its origin.

There is reason for supposing that ice cream originated in Italy, perhaps before the discovery of America. A variety of frozen compound was a comparatively common beverage during the 16th century, and when Catherine de Medici became queen of France in 1533 she took her outfit for making ice cream with her. Her own private confectionery or Florin's Cafe in Naples was the chief rival before the Allies started to bomb their city, that ice cream was manufactured and sold there by a man named Florin about two centuries ago.

The exact method of determining what the nature of this early ice cream was, however, is not known. It is probable that "iced cream," or "ice cream," is the correct name of the product.

Italy certainly attended a dinner given by President and Mrs. George Washington on January 9, 1790, and reported in his diary that the dessert "was first apple pies, then pudding, &c.; then iced creams, Jellies, &c.; then water-melons, canada-melons, apples, peaches, nuts."

In 1802 Samuel Mitchell, a New York Congressman, wrote to his wife and daughter from Washington in which he mentioned having dined with President Jefferson. The meal was a "feast of reason and flow of soul" and he also took her outfit for making ice cream with her. Her own private confectionery or Florin's Cafe in Naples was the chief rival before the Allies started to bomb their city, that ice cream was manufactured and sold there by a man named Florin about two centuries ago.

We have no record of determining what the nature of this early ice cream was. However, there is record that a Mrs. Johnson served ice cream at a ball given in New York December 12, 1790.

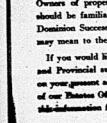
Achievement Reports Given To Kiwanis Club

It has never been disclosed at the meetings of the Kiwanis Club whether the club is instrumental in bringing about these regular Tuesday noon-time providential rainfalls which occur in conjunction with the regular luncheon meetings, but the district farmers should voice their thanks to the Kiwanians for this unintentional benevolence.

In the absence of President Bruce Lattimer the chair was occupied by Eddie Logan, who offered for consideration, that there might be some truth to the rumor that the attendance at military camp of a number of Kiwanians might be the cause of Mussolini resigning; the group is doughty, no doubt, but not formidable, and the stay-at-homers give little credence to the rumor.

Art Wesley was first to be called upon to give his report on the achievements by the committee for Boys' and Girls' Work. He reported that the Six Cadets who had recently returned from two weeks' at the Naval Training Base, Kingston, had enjoyed their training and experience. "The Cadets were under the control of the Navy all through their stay and were subject to the same discipline as regular naval ratings and were fed full naval rations and one third extra," Art Wesley said. "The boys came home looking and feeling much better for their experience and looking forward to their next summer camp."

Report on Attendance



Jim Barclay reported on the attendance at the Summer Maritime Council meeting held at the Palmer House, Chicago, on June 22. He said that the purpose of the meeting was to have a summary of the activities of the club. The theme of the Council was "Maintaining the Attack" or "Keep on Keeping on." The method of selecting candidates for office in the Kiwanis International was brought up for discussion and it was the unanimous decision to approve whatever action was taken by the Board in this regard, and to accept the Board's invitation for each Governor to preside at a special session of the Board, the qualifications of any candidate his district wished to endorse for such vacancies as might be created.

After carefully considering information regarding each candidate the resulting action named Donald R. Rice, Oakland, Calif., President, Philip R. Auer, Galion, Ohio, Vice President for the United States; Paul B. Bracken, Calgary, Alta., Vice President for Canada; Ben Lindsay, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer. President Don Rice first became a member of the Kiwanis at Oakland in 1920 serving as president in 1926. He was Governor of the District Governor in 1931. The district first-vice committee claimed his services from 1932 to 1941. Two of the five years, he served as a member of the Board of Trustees he was International Treasurer. President Rice is business manager for the Oakland Board of Education; Past Commander Past No. 5, American Legion; a director of Oakland Salvation Army and the Red Cross; Chairman of Tourist and Convention Committee, Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

18 New Clubs Formed

At the present time there are 117,612 members of the Kiwanis International; the previous peak was reached in 1941. Eighteen new clubs have been formed during the past year, two of them in Canada at Sudbury and York, Ont. Sudbury reported a surplus of $32,510 in the finances of Kiwanis International and it was suggested, that an application for a reduction of dues be made at a later meeting for brought up at a later meeting for consideration. A total of $53,571 has been spent by Kiwanis clubs throughout the year.

Reports on achievement were rendered by committees for Underprivileged Child and Welfare, Kiwanis Education, Classification and Membership and Publicity by their chairmen or proxies. Bill Hopson reported on Publicity that a meeting would be held in the near futuring to decide on publicity for the Kiwanis District Festival; Jack McIntosh said, that 46 new members had been brought into the club in three years and that a drive to bring in from 10 to 15 more this fall. Exceptional results are hoped for this year's Carnival and many new and entertaining games are being devised and brought out to make the show a big success.

Rev. and Mrs. Donald MacInnes and their son, Donald Lloyd MacInnes, of Milverton, Ont., are holidaying at their summer cottage at Oak Lake, where they will remain until the middle of August. Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Hornsby and Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Hornsby, and son James, of Madoc, were weekend visitors at the cottage.

The Salvation Army Girl Guides, under the leadership of Mary Townsend and Instructor Isabel Sharpe, have returned from spending a weekend at camp on the Bay Shore, Jean Sharpe accompanied the girls for First Aid and Leola Burkholder, as swimming teacher. The girls heartily enjoyed their weekend, and wish to thank those who used their cars to take them to and from camp; also the people on the Trent Rd. who took the Guides to church in cars, and each and everyone who helped make the holiday a success.

Another evening of merriment was spent at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Tuesday night, when the girls of the Belleville Hospitality Club entertained the Air Force personnel from the district stationed at the weekly dance. In charge of the function was Mrs. W. J. Doyle, assisted by Mrs. Frank Deacon and Mrs. Lester Shiels. Winners of the spot dances were Miss Teresa Brunelle, from Quebec City, and Pte. Sgt. R. E. Cook of Toronto; Section Officer Pat Saunders, Sudbury, and Sgt. Pilot Dennis Penn of Sussex, England. The "Merrymakers" from Trenton Airport, as usual, delighted the dancers with their "swing and sway melodies." A buffet supper afterwards afforded much merriment, and proved a highlighting feature of the evening.

Mrs. M. Denison, 39 Bridge St., W., entertained at a charming birthday party on July 23rd in honor of Mr. Denison's aunt, Mrs. J. Issard. The tea table was beautifully arranged for the occasion with white lace cloths centred with a lovely birthday cake decorated with pink and white candles. During the course of the supper, all joined in the "Happy Birthday to You". A social time was enjoyed by each and everyone of the guests, and a very jolly evening was concluded with a hearty round of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Dr. and Mrs. Wilson H. Lloyd and son, Colonel John Lloyd of Chesterville, motored to Oak Lake, where they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Lloyd and Rev. and Mrs. Donald MacInnes. They were joined yesterday by their son, Dr. Hubert Lloyd of the staff of the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lake Bernard, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., and Miss Burna Sheridan, also of Ottawa.

Mrs. Sam Lloyd of Belleville, joined in making the occasion a reunion on Monday afternoon.

DOUBT ITALIANS' INTENTIONS

London, July 28 — (CP) — The Algiers radio reported today that considerable numbers of German troops were moving northward through Italy and suggested Nazi leaders might be doubtful of the new Italian government's intentions.

Swiss dispatches published last night in London newspapers said the Germans appeared to be preparing a strong defence line along the Po River in Northern Italy.

Taking Care of Your Nails

Hollace Shaw, radio songst ress, has well shaped nails.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Today's professional woman has to do with fingernails. They're getting a great deal these gardening days. Let's find out more about them; maybe then we will give them better attention.

The physiological function of the nails is to protect the tips of the fingers against pressure and to give them firmness. They also increase the delicacy of the tactile sensations.

The nails should be slightly curved from side to side, of a light rose color, and have a high lustre. The half moooner should be plainly visible at the base. Many of the pretty ones cover the lunula with polish, others prefer not to, just as some cover the small eave and others do not.

Correcting Brittle Nails

Brittleness of the nails is a defect and causes them to break and tear easily; it is generally due to the condition of the health, certain things lacking in the diet that the nails need for their well being. Emaciation is best corrected by free and frequent applications of hot mineral oil or cuticle cream.

Even with frequent hand washing the eaves will pick up a certain amount of dirt, and that is why the orange wood stick must be used often. Children must be taught to use their nails for cleaning soiled ones are a source of infection.

Use of Cream

It is bad practice to use a metal instrument for cleaning the nails. Little grooves are made in the delicate nail bed, causing dust to cling.

The nail rim of epidermis that laps over the nail must be kept free, else long nails will form. The use of cream at night, and a thorough manicure with the orange wood stick after washing the hands when the flesh is moist and pliable, will keep it in form. When a hang nail is present, detach it from the nail only with pointed scissors, holding the ends toward the finger tip.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Circumstances Dictate Changes in Otherwise Rigid Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that under normal circumstances it is definitely not correct for the bridegroom's family to give the wedding reception, or even to suggest that they would like to give it. But our son is in the married next month, and I would wish prayer by Mrs. Clarence Hall. Hubbard and I thought might be permissible under the unusual circumstances of his wedding.

It so happens that our son is stationed near our home, and since his fiancee lives in a distant state, they have decided, because of distance, expense and lack of time for his travelling, to be married here. Only her mother and father and her sister, who will be her attendant, will come to the wedding. Would it, Mrs. Beeckman, be proper for me to write to her mother and ask for her permission to have the wedding reception in our home?

T. S.

Yes, under the circumstances, this would be the proper and gracious thing for you to do. I am sure the mother of your son's prospective bride will be deeply grateful for your generous hospitality, and for your sensible point of view.

What To Wear at 5 p.m.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—I am to be married in September at five o'clock in the afternoon. I have been told that at this hour a tuxedo is not correct attire for the groom, but what do ushers and my father, and that, since I am wearing a formal bridal dress and veil, the correct attire for the men in the wedding party is cutaway coats, and striped trousers. Is this information I have been given correct?

2.—My soloist is a friend of the family. Is it necessary to give her a gift, a well as paying her for her services?

F. T.

1.—Yes, this information you have been given is exactly correct. It is definitely not correct for men to wear tuxedoes before six o'clock in the afternoon, or at any rate. A five o'clock wedding is a daytime wedding, therefore daytime attire should be worn. But ushers are supposed to abide by strict formality in the men's attire, you might have them wear, instead of the cutaway coats, short oxford grey coats.

2.—Since you are paying this friend her professional fee for her services, it is not necessary to give her a gift also.

Bridegroom Buys the Bouquet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is marrying a soldier this month. He is from Ireland. Will you please answer two questions that are puzzling us?

1.—Does the best man or the bridegroom buy the bouquet for the bride and the maid of honour? 2.—Is the bridegroom or the bride's mother buy the bride's dress? I have been told that my daughter must her dress, but the bridegroom's family told me they should buy it.

M. S.

1.—The best man has no responsibility about flowers for the bride or her attendants. Usually the bridegroom buys his bride her bouquet or corsage and usually the bride's family pays for the flowers for the bridal attendants.

2.—It is the right of the bride's family, or the bride herself, buys the wedding dress.

Wedding and Leaves

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle an argument a group of us girls had last evening? Is there any difference between the words "furlough" and "leave"?

Wanda

Yes. With officers, a day or days away from routine work are usually called "leaves". With enlisted men they are "furloughs".

Fainting Attack in Blood Donors.

Blood donors have the great misfortune of occasionally losing their blood is saving lives on the battle front. It is surprising how little reaction this gift of blood makes on the donor. In a few hours he is as fit as he was before the blood was given.

Occasionally a blood donor faints after he gives his blood. When a donor faints after having blood withdrawn, it is usually of no serious consequence. However, the accident may waste time or those engaged in collecting the blood, and also may exert an influence in keeping some persons from offering their blood.

Doctors Faith C. Poles and Muriel Boycott of London have made a study to find out just what particular types of persons are likely to faint and just why they do so. They found that the combination of the nervous system had a lot to do with the fainting attacks.

The first signs that fainting may occur are pallor and sweating. The blood pressure becomes lowered, the pulse is slow, and breathing also becomes shallow. Then loss of consciousness may occur in about one out of every four of the persons with these symptoms.

The fainting attack may last only a few seconds, or may be more prolonged. Before the fainting occurs, the patient may complain of a feeling of heat, sickness to the stomach, or pain in the abdomen. One of the important things in predicting the fainting is fatigue, or overtiredness. It is also more likely to occur if the blood is drawn more than four and one-half hours after the last meal has been eaten.

Doctors Poles and Boycott decided that the fainting process proceeds to prevent fainting when blood is withdraw. Those persons who were overtired, and those who had not eaten for four hours, were given tea and rolls both before and after the withdrawal of blood. In these cases, the blood was underweight, a lesser amount of blood was taken away from those whose weight was normal. If the blood pressure dropped as a result of the bleeding, and remained low after the blood donor was up and about, the donor was allowed to rest until the blood pressure returned to normal.

Studies of a number of persons showed wide anemia, or lessening of the coloring in the blood, and overweight had nothing to do with the fainting attacks. The fainting occurred much more often in persons giving the blood for the first time than in those who had had blood withdrawn on previous occasions. Care in good order to see that all instruments out of sight when the blood is drawn, and to have the donor lie down at once when the blood is taken.

It would appear that the state of the nervous system has a great deal to do with the fainting attacks. People who are apprehensive about the process are the ones we would probably be more likely to faint than those who have had such anxieties. Bear in mind that the fainting attack is in no way serious or harmful, and that such attacks can be completely prevented. Their occurrence is also no reason for keeping anyone from giving blood for the making of plasma when it is so sorely needed.

NEW ALLIANCES between fabrics and wool-knits appear in the Parisian collections. A charming afternoon frock has a sweater top bodice of red wool knit in a novelty stitch. The skirt is of black woollen to match the sequined collar, ball buttons and sequined flowers on each hip pocket.

Looking ahead to winter, shops are ordering plenty of cosy 'home wear. Slim slacks of quilted black crepe topped with a long tunic coat in shocking pink quilted velvet with gilt bid buttons and belt is both comfortable and pretty.

Feathers fly onth new autumn hats. The calot felt enlivened with big cog sweeps in shocking pink, royal blue, jade green are cited for early Autumn wear.

Say Duce Bowed To Hitler Defence Plan in N. Italy

Travellers Declare That Fascist Grand Council Votes Mussolini Down

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Madrid, July 28. (AP)—Travellers arriving by plane from Rome Tuesday declared that Benito Mussolini fell because he supported a German plan to abandon central and southern Italy for a strong defence line in the north, and that he now is at a villa between Rome and Ostia.

The new government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio insists that all of Italy must be defended if Italy is to remain in the war, and the Germans have been forced to agree, they declared.

Hitler had first proposed a strong stand behind the Po Valley, and Mussolini, seeking to do his bidding, was overruled by the Fascist Grand Council by a vote of 19 to 6, it was said.

Carlo Corsa, Fascist party secretary, was reported under preventive arrest, with others of Il Duce's collaborators confined to their homes.

On the issue of defence of all Italy, Badoglio for the moment at least has the support of the army and the crown, both of which enjoy tremendous popular prestige as successors to Mussolini. This last-hour account of the crisis in Rome said.

Nazi Insignia Removed

The first clear report of what happened after Mussolini resigned came with the first Alo Litoria plane to leave Rome since the event. It is significant of the swift changes that the plane arrived stripped of all Fascist insignia, marked only by the Italian national colors, and that an hour after its arrival the Fascist name Alo Litoria had changed to Ala Roma in the Line's offices.

Before the public announcement of Mussolini's resignation the party took steps designed in part to protect the leaders and in particular to hold those considered responsible for the state of the country's affairs.

Then the announcement was made Sunday night that Badoglio had advised the Germans of his decision that "all Italy must be defended or Italy must leave the war", and the Germans agreed, faced with that alternative, to help in defence of the whole peninsula.

The enthusiasm which greeted announcement of Mussolini's resignation and Badoglio's appointment was tremendous throughout Italy.

Nazi Duce and Fascism

Demonstrations formed in every major Italian city, where marchers of all classes massed in the public squares and cheered Badoglio and hooted Il Duce and Fascism.

Fascist uniforms vanished from the streets of Northern Italy and Fascist emblems were ripped off monuments and public buildings or were covered with the Italian colors.

There may have been some doubt abroad as to whether Mussolini's resignation meant the end of Fascism, but there was no doubt in the minds of the Italians.

Throughout Italy, the joy of the crowds was greater than their anger, and there were few deaths.

In Rome, Fascist militia garrisons made preparations to yield, but grumbled swiftly when Badoglio sent regular army units to defend their surrender, with notes advising them they were units now incorporated into the army and subjected to army discipline.

Royal Family Honored

Everywhere in Rome crowds marched in the streets cheering the Royal Family and Badoglio and thousands marched on the Vatican gates to cheer the Pope.

By noon Monday, police authorities and permanent employees of the Foreign Office were besieged with requests from German and Japanese residents in Rome for passports and authorizations to leave Italy.

Nixon Promises "Floor" Prices For Farm Products

Cornwall, July 28—(CP)—Premier Nixon of Ontario Tuesday promised "floor" or minimum prices for farm products in the postwar period, declaring that "as long as I am in public office" prices would not be allowed to fall to depression levels.

"If it is necessary to wartime to set ceilings," he told a liberal rally in Glengarry riding, "therefore it is high necessary in the times after the war to establish floor prices to protect farmers from falling down to . . . Devastatingly low levels.

"Never again should small exportable surpluses be permitted to drive prices down."

Mr. Nixon, who spoke earlier at nearby Alexandria, described the Progressive Conservative platform—"reinterpretation" and said there would be doubts if Ontario wanted to be regimented as he said farmers were in Britain. He said the farm policy outlined by Lt. Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative Leader, was "poles apart" from Britain's system.

The Premier quoted Lord Beaverbrook, former British Minister of Aircraft Production, as condemning the British system on the ground that "farmers had to spend half their time filling out forms instead of farming."

"So I am not alarmed of the suggestions from Mr. Drew," said Mr. Nixon.

At Alexandria, Mr. Nixon said the Ontario General Election had been called so his government could keep faith with the electors, its mandate having expired.

He declared that at the end of the war he would seek the return to the provinces of all the taxing powers transferred by them to the Dominion government as a war measure.

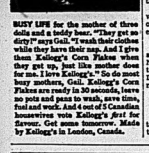
Freezing Order Proof of Shortage Declares Drew

Toronto, July 28 — (CP) — Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative Leader, said last night the Federal government's order freezing sale of canned fruit and vegetables in Canada provides "startling proof" of what he said was the provincial government's failure to maintain food production on Ontario farms.

Col. Drew, candidate in Toronto High Park for the Aug. 4 provincial election, told a public meeting in that riding the freezing order, announced Monday, is the result of "utter lack of planning" by Provincial Premier Nixon and Federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Col. Drew said when Mr. Nixon opened his election campaign in London June 28, the main speaker was Mr. Gardiner.

"Mr. Gardiner ridiculed my statement that there was real danger of a food shortage in Canada . . ." said Col. Drew, adding that the Progressive Conservative party demanded "last February that the government take steps to assure manpower, machinery and stable prices."



The resolution had been rejected. "We were told that there was adequate manpower and that nothing needed to be done either in regard to machinery or prices," said Col. Drew.

"Now we know there is a critical shortage of food. That is due to the utter breakdown of our selective service system and the absence of any attempt of any kind by the Ontario government to deal effectively with the manpower situation on the farms."

Col. Drew said Premier Nixon "has not raised a hand at any time to meet the crisis which was clearly approaching."

One of the main points of the Progressive Conservative's platform was that leading farmers from every county in the province would be summoned for conferences immediately after the Aug. 4 election "to plan for the food production of 1944 and to lay the foundation for long-term agricultural policies in this province."

HEAPING GREAT

The heavy attack on Hamburg was acknowledged in a DNB news agency broadcast recorded by The Associated Press. The "heavy terror attack," the broadcast said, ravaged "extensive fires in several areas of the town and high casualties among the civilian population." The Germans asserted 27 bombers were destroyed.

As on the previous smashing attacks, R.C.A.F. bomber squadrons roared over the targets with the R.A.F. formations, and last night they were reported flying the now familiar route to Hamburg "in very great strength."

Two Canadian Squadrons

At least two squadrons of the Canadian bomber group — the Lion and Goose — were along, and as the R.C.A.F. crews clambered from their huge, ungainly craft early today they were emphatic that Hamburg was blazing even more furiously than after the Saturday hammering.

Targets in the Ruhr valley, site of many important German war industries, also were bombed during the night, said an air ministry communique, which acknowledged the loss of 18 bombers. Canadian losses were not given.

Mosquitoes of the Fighter Command at the same time carried out intruder operations over Germany, Holland and France, attacking airfields and railway communications, the bulletin said.

The attack on Hamburg was described by the air ministry as "concentrated and effective."

Bracketed With Bremen

Hamburg now bracketed with Bremen in second place on the list of the world's most often bombed targets. Bremen has been struck 104 times, while Cologne—at the top of the list—has been bombed 130 times.

A total of 2,300 long tons of explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped on Hamburg Monday night alone. Speedy Mosquito bombers carried out the attack Sunday and Monday nights.

In addition to the heavy assault on Hamburg, medium bombers swept across the channel last evening to attack the airfield at Schipol in Holland. Four enemy fighters were destroyed in combat but no Allied aircraft were lost, the Air Ministry said.

R. C. A. F. spitfires flew with the bombers as escort, an R. C. A. F. communique said today, and destroyed two enemy fighters. All Canadian planes returned safely.

Voting Proxies Well Distributed Says Col. Campbell

Cornwall July 28 — (CP) — Premier Nixon of Ontario said here last night in an election address that he had received a cable from Col. Colin Campbell, former Ontario Public Works Minister, saying that individual Ontario soldiers overseas show "little interest" in the forthcoming Ontario General elections because their thoughts "are centred on other problems."

Col. Campbell is overseas with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

His cable said the distribution of voting proxies to Ontario soldiers overseas was "well done," and added:—

"Individuals have little interest in doing their part as their thoughts are centred on other problems. Nothing but compulsion can change this and this is not recommended. Looks at present like a very small number of signed proxies."

ITALIANS SILENT

Asked if he would agree that it would be impossible to avoid damage to ancient monuments when bombs were dropped from a height of 20,000 feet, Sir Archibald said, "We are only concerned with the bombing of important military targets."

"We cannot be prevented from bombing important military targets because, unfortunately, they happen to be close to beautiful monuments," he added.

Sir Archibald said he had been made clear to the people of Germany, Italy and of all occupied territories that "the Allied Nations intend to attack from the air all targets working for the Axis war machine," and that civilians remain in such centres at their own risk.

Asked what conditions would have to be fulfilled before Rome would be considered an open city, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden replied:

"If the Italian government approaches us in the matter we would consider the matter in the light of the circumstances then existing."

DON'T BE FOOLED BY C.C.F.

IT CANNOT HELP CANADIAN WORKERS

Contrary to the unthinking opinion expressed, if not actually believed in, by some workers, a C.C.F. government would be a retrograde step and against the best interests of all Canadian workers. Surely, good sound Canadians who have the welfare of Canada at heart, will profit by the lessons of the past and not be hoodwinked into supporting a party like the C.C.F. that has nothing to offer us except conflict and disruption.

We are speaking plainly and will admit that there are certain foreign elements within our midst that are using the C.C.F. for all it is worth to try to gain domination over our Canada. The bait being used, and it stinks because it is so rotten, is "something for nothing" and with this old, worn out, putrid temptation, they hope to ensnare enough good Canadians to vote for the C.C.F. to put the deal over.

Wherever they can get publicity, either free or paid for, the whole programme put forward is cheap, nonsensical and reeks of opportunist leadership. Promoters and satellites of the C.C.F. condemn the two old time political parties if they do and condema them if they don't. All the social legislation on our statute books is no good, according to the C.C.F. despite the fact that Canada is one of the most socialistic countries in the world. C.C.F.'rs conveniently forget the marvellous progress this country has made since Confederation under the leadership of Conservatives and Liberals and ignore the fact that it is still the best country in the world in which to live. A C.C.F. dupe, writing a letter to the editor of a paper, blithely disparages the constructive policy of the Progressive Conservatives, while admitting it could not be duplicated by the C.C.F. and throws brickbats at the Liberals because they admit their limitations. The letter then continues to say that of course they will vote for the C.C.F. but advances no reason for so doing. Does not this typical case reflect the careless mental attitude of those who think they want a change no matter how bad that change may be and also bear out what we have maintained all along—that when people say they want the C.C.F., they really haven't thought about the subject at all, but have been led astray and hypnotized by the fantastic unrealities dangled in front of their eyes by C.C.F. barkers?

The truth is that the Progressive Conservatives do not make any promises that are not in the best interests of Canadians as a whole and that cannot be carried out, and the same applies to the Liberals. Promises made by either of these Parties have successfully brought Canada to its present triumphal pinnacle, and are promises based on Canada's ability to carry on. Promises made by C.C.F. opportunists are based on mirages, fantasies, fairyland stuff and what they think the people like to hear.

The sugar-coated hodge podge of drivel handed out by the C.C.F. is hard to stomach in these critical war days. To make sure that Canada does not land in a morass of dictatorship, confusion and poverty, Ontario will show the way on voting day, August 4th, by shunning like the plague, the candidate who has C.C.F. after his name.

Clubhouse Friction Reported Cause of Bucky Harris Losing Managership of the Phillies

Freddy Fitzsimmons Named as Manager After Team Drops Double-header

PIRATES ON WAY

By TED MEIER

Clubhouse friction was reliably reported today to be the main reason why Bucky Harris was dismissed last night as manager of the National League Phillies in a move that astonished the baseball world.

Coming on the heels of the Phils' double defeat at the hands of the first place St. Louis Cardinals, who shrivelled their winning streak to 11 in a row, the news of Harris' ousting and the announcement of Freddy Fitzsimmons, Brooklyn pitcher-coach, as his successor, surprised most diamond followers.

Speeds Explanation

Harris said at St. Louis "Apparently Mr. Cox (William D. Cox), new owner of the Phils insists on all the sometime and tell me of the change. At that time I expect to get the explanation I feel is in order."

Everything was lovely last February when Cox signed the former "boy wonder" as manager. Since the start of the season, however, Cox has frequently visited the players in the clubhouse after the game.

This was perfectly all right and ill, the grapevine report, Cox, among other things, decided he couldn't understand why the club wasn't fighting for the lead. Harris is reported to have suggested diplomatically it would be better if Cox, as president of the club, sent for the players he wished to talk to instead of seeing them in the clubhouse.

This apparently didn't set well with Cox.

This latest twist to a "what's-gonna-happen-next" season overshadowed the Reds' winning streak, longest of the season, and virtually shoved out of sight the fact that today is the second war relief day of the season for the major leagues.

Back on June 30, a total of 16,378 fans paid $147,291 into the treasury of National War Relief, Inc. The clubs hope today's program, highlighted by Babe Ruth's return to the Yankee Stadium as a one-day manager, will exceed both marks.

The pitching of Murry Dickson and Howie Krist brought the Cardinals victories by 8-2 and 5-3 to boost their lead over the 4th Dodgers to 9½ games.

Exciting Game in N. Y.

The most exciting game was in New York where the Yankees and Cleveland Indians battled 13 innings before a single by pinch hitter Jim Bloodworth scored Ken Keltner from second base for a 4-3 Yankee victory.

Pittsburgh, kept out of second place on Monday when Brooklyn's Arky Vaughan socked a grand slam homer, started a new drive for the runnerup spot by beating New York Giants, 6-3. Three home runs by Maurice Van Robays, Vic Sorrell-Briten and Bob Elliott accounted for all of the Pirate runs.

Boston Braves moved over the Phillies into sixth place by defeating Cincinnati, 6-2, as Jim Tobin checked seven hits in gaining his 7th win of the season.

Trailing by three runs going into the eighth, St. Louis Browns tied the score, then bunched four hits for four runs in the ninth to beat Philadelphia Athletics, 8-4. Chicago White Sox, helped by Gordon Mallatherper's relief pitching, defeated Washington, 6-5 in a night game.

Gene Corbett's fifth homer of the season were the big factors in Newark's first victory. The second game, a duel between Joe Page and Mike Roscoe, was decided by Newark's two runs in the seventh and last inning. Joe Dwyer's pinch double was the big blow.

Baltimore took the first game despite Pete Appleton's 9-hit job. Moose'n DePorge and home runs by Don Castro and Gibby Brack. The second, 11th inning, 5-4 victory for Fresco Thompson of Montreal and Tommy Thomas of Baltimore, outdueled by pitching with the umpires. Bill Crosley got the decision this time, but Ed Klieman, who gave way was effective as he won his 18th game of the season.

WINGS IMPROVE POSITION WITH A DOUBLE WIN

Rochester May Yet Reach Playoff Berth Now Being Tied for Fourth

TORONTO BEATEN

By The Associated Press

If the aging arms of Eddie Connelly and Ira Hutchinson hold out, Pepper Martin's Rochester Red Wings may yet give the International League leaders an argument.

That probably won't come until the play-offs, for Rochester hasn't been up to the .500 mark all season while Toronto's leading Maple Leafs are coasting along with a .612 average. But by taking a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs yesterday, 7-3 and 6-2, Rochester moved into a tie with Syracuse for fourth place — a lot higher than the Wings have been most of the season.

Donnelly, who pitched Sunday's second game back with only one day's rest to start last night's first game, let Chief five innings before Frank Schmidt relieved him and, although touched for 10 hits, had only one bad inning. Hutchinson hung up his 11th victory of the season in the second contest, scattering a dozen hits while the Red Wings collected five runs in the first inning.

Bears Improve Position

Newark's second-place Bears improved their position even more than Rochester by taking a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons, 4-2 and 4-3. For Toronto last a single set decision to Jersey City as Tommy Fine's place Montreal took a double drubbing from Baltimore Orioles, 3-2 and 4-1.

Jersey City, breaking a four-game losing streak, pounded Luke Hamlin for six hits and all four runs in the first innings then coasted home on the effective flinging of Bobby Logan.

MONAHAN READY TO MEET MORGAN

Matchmaker Tunney Will be on Hand to Watch Proceedings

Making matters as troublesome as possible for Wilbur "Pat" Morgan, Matchmaker Frank Tunney will personally be at the Hunt Arena tonight when the popular Tennessee Marine meets "Irish Jerry" Monahan in what appears to be a grudge fight. Morgan has beaten all opposition loaned his way and has wrestled his way into the hearts of Belleville grunt and groan-fans until it is practically worth an opponent's life or limb to rough the popular Morgan. Al Dooling tried it and was unsuccessfully attacked by irritated fans.

"I'm not afraid of the fans and I'll tear this toy soldier apart until he wishes he is back fighting Japs along Guadalcanal," threatened Monahan as he came to Belleville and later took up training quarters at Conacon Lake early Tuesday morning.

Supporting this grudge fight will be Tommy Nunn meeting George Tofalos, the "Little Golden Greek" and a preliminary bringing together Frank Dick Bishop and Doc Felice.

Lawn Bowling

COMMENT.

(By CLIFF ABGUE)

The big day is at hand.

That is the day, (Civic Holiday) when the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will hold the Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament for men's rinks.

This tournament, in which we hope to have a large number taking part, will be about the biggest sporting event ever staged in Belleville. It has early been equalled in the point of numbers in but very few instances is it surpassed.

We do concede that a few tournaments in other centres have had the same number of bowlers participating, but we do not admit that there have been prizes of greater value awaiting winning by successful rinks.

They are the tops, as far as I am aware, of any tournament ever held, and are of a total value of $164.

I am not going to endeavour to describe them, that is now on exhibit in the spacious window of the Belleville Utilities Commission showroom at 277 Front Street where you will be able to inspect them and share in our pride.

Sincere thanks is hereby conveyed to Mr. H. C. Hepburn, manager, who has graciously permitted the making of this display possible.

We also wish to extend thanks to Mr. Everett Smith, whose well known window dressing abilities can be seen in the exhibit so attractive.

Belleville, you should be proud of this tournament, and particularly this journal of sports, that are being provided for the fortunate winners under the auspices of Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

Programs have been prepared, and have been distributed throughout all Ontario, and Quebec, being mailed not only to all bowling clubs but to hundreds of individuals.

Belleville is thus not only establishing the name of all Canada as a most alive bowling centre, but as a highly publicized club as much so for its offer tournie or commercial sense.

Hats should be doffed by all of Belleville, those who have made this magnificent prize donations and to Sadie this great outstanding tournament possible.

I am not going to enumerate such a list here, as a great deal of advertisement his been made in the program but I would like to add that the Corbin Gold Trophy, and the silver Rigg's Trophy and Richelieu Trophy, with attendant grand prizes, are such that any rink of bowlers will experience a handsome windfall.

Donations by your Belleville City Council and business firms of Belleville also made this program possible as well as providing for advance publicity.

All citizens are invited to visit our greens during the all day games, where in addition to witnessing the skilfully played games they can enjoy the musical entertainment provided by the Belleville Municipal Band.

Entries are pouring in and it is expected that the limit of 64 rinks will have been reached when the last day for accepting entries has been reached, namely 28th. July. We have given rink entered from Belleville.

We regretfully wish to state that the name of the Quinney Tire and Battery Service was inadvertently left from the Corbin Gold Cup program list and it is most unfortunate. Then in our display in the Public Utilities window four valuable prizes are not seen. They were donated by the Quinney Tire and Nicholson, Chicago 14.

Veteran Pitcher Will Need Plenty of Stuff to Help Phillies

By The Canadian Press

Fay Freddy Fitzsimmons of the Brooklyn Dodgers takes over today as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, and the veteran pitcher will need plenty of stuff if he's going to put the Baker Bowlers out of the spot they've landed in. They had a doubleheader in the Cards yesterday, and now are in seventh place.

Considerable mystery surrounds the position of Bucky Harris, who is being replaced as Phillies manager. A statement on behalf of the Phillis directors last night said merely Fitzsimmons has been engaged as manager and will assume his duties before tonight's game at St. Louis. The statement didn't mention Harris — himself a member of the board — and officials who released the statement declined to amplify.

Harris was with the team in St. Louis when the announcement came from Philadelphia and Brooklyn last night. He said he was "shocked," and was returning to Philadelphia immediately. He said he had no word that he was to be relieved.

Fitzsimmons said in Brooklyn he accepted it as a great honor to become a major league manager and he hopes to be able to help some pitching this year. He's had 17 years of pitching with the Giants and Brooklyn and although this season he was listed as a player-coach he got into only one game, the Brooks, winning three and losing two.

Catcher Hal Wagner of the Philadelphia Athletics has improved his hitting since the All-Star game, no small improvement, and yesterday he gave credit to coach Lena Blackburne. Wagner explained that Blackburne is a former Toronto Leafs' pilot, had changed his batting style.

The Grand American Trapshoot at Vandalia, Ohio, opens on Aug. 26 and runs for only three days this year, instead of eight as formerly. Entry entrant list is down 2,000 from former years; now they'll have only 500. And each shooter must use the 2.20 load.

The trial is continuing at Detroit of Jimmy Orlando, Detroit Red Wings hockey star charged with violating the U. S. Selective Service Act. Orlando's attorney, David Ferguson, told a Federal judge yesterday that Orlando was transferred from an essential war job to the draft last November and his draft board was not notified.

Rumors that Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League would join the N.H.L. next season were quashed last night when general manager Eddie Shore of the Buffalo club said the Bisons will continue in the A.H.L. next season.

Shore said Detroit would also stay in the minor hockey loop, and added that six of last year's club would definitely play.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, July 28 — (CP) — Dick (Port Arthur Sky) Chemeko of Elliott is the latest disciple of Canada's growing cult of sports in Canada, prompted perhaps by the "sport is dead" crack in this column a few days ago. Smoothscope in hand, Dick decides the latest in sport is "shamateur" sport." But Dick goes deeper than that. In his best-learned manner he declares peace may bring a new concept of sport as a vehicle for mass participation rather than for mass spectacle and brilliance of performance. Such a contention he believes, would "restore initiative to the masses, make for healthier, more self-sufficient and less dependent on others for their athletic recreation. For a time at least the postwar days may delete the word 'shamateur' from sports lexicon.

Then Dick grows a little glum—

"Once the world is fully recognized ... The almighty dollar no doubt will creep back to its former high place."

Incidentally:

Are your parties dull? Invite Mr. Gilbert Heron of No. 3 Canadian Armored Corps Training Regiment, Camp Borden, Ont. Native of Kingston, Jamaica, 21-year-old Gilbert was welterweight golden gloves champion of the State of Michigan in 1940, is credited with near-record time in broad jumping, highjumping and for the 100-yard dash, became a semi-professional football player one year after learning the game. Stars at softball, hardball, basketball and table tennis. Dick (Montreal Gazette) Carroll explains why racegoers must tolerate protracted post parties. The practice dates to an early 1800s when a placing judge at an English track blundered. The Jockey Club investigated, found the faux pas inadvertent and ruled that in future all horses in a race must parade before the judge's stand en route to the post, ensuring that judges become acquainted with the colors.

Equine Echoes:

A Winnipeg undertaker engaged a rider named Dye to ride the fifty horses. And when Dye in full stanol returned as apprentice bid race mutuel at Fort Erie, the undertaker and Mail wondered: "can you tie that, . ?" Then there's the one about the horse player who asked specifically for one (rap) alive oil horse meat. The waiter served two (caps) slices. "It's an entry," he told the offended patron.

LESSON NO. 135

By SAM GORDON
The Editor

I always feel like climbing out on limb with Shinn, after he's bid his cards except with all the tea in China. What she needs is a lesson in second round bidding.

You have this hand:

♠ A Q 9 5
♥ A Q 9 5
♦ K 10 6
♣ 9 5

It is like the hand we have been using for nearly a week. Only the suit of diamonds has been left out and the six of diamonds has taken its place. Thus, the diamond suit is well saddable.

Your opening bid with this hand is one heart. You have all you need for such an opening. In fact, you have one high card more than we promise. Also one trick more than you promise.

If partner takes you out to a new suit, that is forcing-for-one signal. It requires you to bid once more. And bids follow the order in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trumps.

If partner responds with one spade to two diamonds, you must bid again. But you have no more takeouts. So you assist the suit your partner has bid.

Instead of one spade or two diamonds, suppose partner responds with a takeout to two clubs. That also forces you to bid again. With no takeout or assist, your second round bid is two no-trumps.

Instead of one spade or two diamonds or two clubs, a response of two hearts, by partner would not be a takeout to a new suit. So it is not forcing. It is a non-jump assist. Which does not force.

However, even if not forced to bid, you should bid if you have anything new to show. You have no takeout. So you look for an assist. With your extra trick, you assist to three hearts.

Instead of any other, suppose partners response is one no-trump. That is not a new suit. It does not force. With no takeout or suit assist, your bid is two no-trump with your extra high card.

Again and again follow T-A-N.

CHAPTER 21

When Girls Get Together.

"What's the matter with the guy? As if I don't know," said Adele, "Clare. . . It's always Clare with him.

His's never got over her, he wouldn't be the first man to leave a good wife for a bad woman. Out of the barnesa problem. Clare called her to come and get him. And Sue will put him to bed and tell the children that Daddy is ill and no one will ever hear a peep out of her about it. Luckily it's early. Else everybody would have seen him".

Meegan said, "I'll have to stop here. I'm not supposed to have seen him".

"And Sue will have a headache or Van will be very tired or the children won't be up to par and she and Van have decided not to go out tonight. The house and Sue will be perfect and she'll even ask you in to have a drink and she'll talk about everything under the sun except what Van is doing to her. . . . tearing her insides out. She's in love with him. That's not all. She's still excited about him and she's never been sure of him because of Clare. Everything she's done to make life smooth doesn't mean a thing. A man can admire you a whale of a lot and still not be in love with you or want you".

Meegan closed her eyes briefly. "I'll be glad when this summer is over, Ade2. It's been . . . abnormal".

Adele grinned. "Obnoxious is a better word. Here comes Charlie with our dinner, . "

"I hate to run off as soon as I've eaten. But I don't know when I'll get to town again".

"Think nothing of it. I have a new book upstairs. Oh Saturday nights I stuff my ears so I won't hear all the noise down here and then wallow in gore".

The music had begun and the dining room was filling when Meegan left their coffee.

Meegan said, "Mother is coming later with the Andersons".

"And Toby?"

"I haven't seen him all day. I wish he'd bring a girl tonight. Mother so loves to sit on the side-lines and watch him". She put her napkin on the table, "I really must go, Adele. I told Erica eight o'clock and it's after that. Why not drive up with me? There's plenty room". It disturbed her to think of Adele shunted in a gruesome story.

"Can't. Not tonight, thanks. I want to get at that book".

"It's been fun and the dinner was splendid.

"You're welcome .But run along and call me when you have time. I'm going to have more hot coffee. . . "

Meegan left her and walked quickly to the steps, meeting Clare and Payne and several shadowy unfamiliar figures with them. She stepped back, herself a shadowy figure, because they were coming up the steps. Clare leading. Clare wearing some sort of shimmering dress beneath a long white jacket. Clare heedless of anyone who might want to pass her.

Meegan heard her say, "I suggested that we dine at home! because the food isn't exceptional at the club".

A woman's voice answered .'I'm so glad we did darling. I know it was ever so much better".

"The election promises of the Conservatives and the Socialists have so much in common that Messrs. Drew and Jolliffe are squabbling over the ownership of the 'Socialism' boat".

—HON. H. C. NIXON

KEEP THE LIGHT OF DEMOCRACY BURNING

IF the C.C.F. wins on August 4th, the light of Democracy goes out in Ontario.

THE C.C.F. proposes to take over: "The social ownership of all resources and the machinery of wealth production to the end that we may establish a Co-operative Commonwealth" (C.C.F. Regina platform).

BY an "X" on your ballot for a C.C.F. candidate, you give up the title to your farm, your business, your insurance and you vote away your freedom for regimentation of your life and that of your children.

THE C.C.F. leader in Ontario does not reveal the full Socialist aims of the fanatical group for which he is "fronting". If he did, few would accept the C.C.F. program.

OUR men and women are fighting overseas for Democracy; shall we in their absence, vote Democracy down in Ontario? Surely the least we can do is to preserve Democracy at home.

READ the names of the candidates of the C.C.F. Have any of them given proof of their ability to administer a one hundred million dollar government budget . . . not to mention the executive management of all Ontario's great enterprises, including the farms, mines, forests and factories?

ONTARIO ELECTOR—Think before you mark your ballot. When you vote next Wednesday, are you going to give the title to your farm, or the management of your insurance company, the enterprise in which you hold a share or the business where you work, to the untried men and women of the C.C.F.?

THIS is no time to venture upon dangerous experiments in government. Hold fast to Democracy—the Canadian way of life . . . Mark your ballot for the Nixon candidate.

UNREST BRINGS ITALY TO VERGE OF CIVIL WAR CANADIANS CAPTURE AGIRA AND LEONFORTE

Croats, Slovenes Seek Separation Istrian Peninsula

Italian and German Troops Rushed to Fiume and Trieste To Quell Uprisings

SITUATION TENSE

Berne, July 29 — (AP) — Italian and German troops were reported rushed today to Fiume and Trieste, where Croats and Slovenes were demonstrating for separation of the Istrian Peninsula from Italy, and the situation in other sections of the Kingdom was described as tense.

Swiss newspaper dispatches told of the crisis in Istria, soil which Italy annexed from Austria-Hungary after the last war. It juts into the Adriatic Sea between Italy and the Croatian coast.

The Berner Tagwacht said Croats and Slovenes, who number 600,000 on the peninsula, were demanding the inclusion of Istria in a south Slav state.

Additional clashes between Fascists and anti-Fascists were reported as Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio struggled to maintain order and save the country from chaos.

News of an insurrection in Milan largely blacked out today by Premier Badoglio's military censorship, however, a dispatch from Chiasso, Switzerland, said strikes in the Milan industrial region had assumed important proportions, with Communists attacking the monarchy.

Walls in Northern Italy—despite Badoglio's restriction of placarding and slogan-carrying reported plastered with inscriptions bearing the words: "Mussolini is liquidated—now the war must be liquidated. Long live the Social Republic!"

(A BBC broadcast recorded by CBS said today the families of numerous Fascist officials were reported to have arrived by plane in Berlin.)

(The role of Italian military forces in North Italy was a subject of conflicting reports, some indicating they were endeavoring sanply to restore order and co-operate with German expeditionary divisions and others that they were disarming the newly shipped from France and Germany.

(A Madrid dispatch last night said Italians in the Spanish capital reported regulars and civilians were fighting the Germans in Northern Italy after Hitler had dispatched 7½ of his divisions there from France, leaving the three sources of German strength in Italy ranged from 200,000 to 300,000 men.

(Italian army patrols ignored Allied radio broadcasts blaring out to sidewalk groups or stopped to listen themselves, it was reported at Madrid. Their main job was to explode bombs at newsstands and clear highways for troops movements.)

The Geneva Newspaper La Suisse said prisons in the Domodossola region were being emptied quickly, numerous have been the new arrests. A Berne dispatch said more than 4,000 political prisoners had been released, and that those detailed under the Fascist regime were expected to reach Italy.

Border controls were reported tightened. A correspondent of La Suisse said that Italians had adopted a rather high Italian diplomat who was seeking to join his son in Switzerland.

A roundabout report published by Libera Stampa of Lugano said some Italian troops had been killed at Turin.

A new proclamation by five anti-Fascist parties demanding that; Badoglio end the war was published in Turin today.

It told the people that clarification of government's policy is awaited and asked reassurance that the government would "indicate the road to social and political reconstruction".

The five parties said the difficulties confronting Badoglio's ministry were recognized, but that the parties were aware of the Italians' feelings and aspirations. The most urgent of which is the immediate liberation of political victims".

Reports reaching the Swiss border said hundreds of persons had been killed in widespread riots and that tension was growing hourly.

The anti-Fascist outbreaks, paralleled by massed peace demonstrations, occurred in widely separated cities.

BULGARIA SHOWS SIGNS OF MAKING BREAK WITH AXIS

Overthrow of Fascism Has Been Great Shock to the People.

UPRISING PREDICTED

By FRANK J. O'BRIEN
Associated Press War Writer

Istanbul, July 29 — (AP) — A serious Bulgarian crisis appeared to be developing as a result of Mussolini's downfall and there are indications Bulgaria may be the first Balkan satellite to break away from the Axis if Italy surrenders.

Bulgaria's position, and that of the other Balkan powers in a lesser extent, is reported to have changed rapidly since the Italian upheaval.

What direct news from the Balkans is available indicates clearly the people there believe Italy is finished.

Bulgaria, one of Germany's most favored Nazi Allies, now holds all of Yugoslav Macedonia and part of Grecian Macedonia, and an Italian collapse would affect her quicker and more directly, than any other Balkan land.

The Bulgarians have always regarded Italy as their main barrier against invasion.

Official Bulgarian propaganda has repeatedly assured the people that Italy was capable of resisting any invasion aimed at her mainland, and Allied successes in Sicily, together with the overthrow of the Fascist regime, are viewed here as a great shock to Bulgarian morale.

Gen'l. In Diffidelty.

Military units of Bulgarian diffculties have been dropped by offices here on government business They are said to have indicated that the Bulgarian government is in "serious trouble."

Another recent traveler predicted that the ground would be plowed for a low an Italian collapse.

The Bulgarian Army, in subsequent developments, considerable significance here, has been given the extraordinary session of the Bulgarian Parliament which on July 20, the first ever called in July.

In a speech quoted by the Sofia radio, the premier declared he called the passage of appropriation bills the ground is needed more funds to combat "external forces."

It seemed possible parliament was summoned during the session of the Italian crisis and that most of the work was devoted to preparations for the defense measures against the German alliance.

Trenton Squadron Leader Hits Jackpot In First Sortie With New Fighter

Ottawa, July 29. (CP) — The R.C.A.F., announcing officially that one of its squadrons overseas has been equipped with Spitfire IX's, quite fighter-bombers, told today in press release of the achievement given by some of the squadron's pilots of two months ago, the damaging of three others and the probable destruction of another.

The Mosquito unit, only recently equipped with these high-speed aircraft, has been operating on fighter operations, under command of Wing Comdr. Harry V. Dowson, D.F.C., Kingston, Ont.

Dowson, who commanded a Canadian night-fighter unit from September, 1941, until early last winter when he went off operations for six months' rest, is a Flight Commanders; Sqdn. Ldr. Charles O. Morris of Trenton, Ont., and Sqdn. Ldr. Donald R. Kemp.

Hit The Jackpot

Morris hit the jackpot recently on an intruder sortie over France.

"South of Paris I could see three aircraft with their navigation lights on, apparently preparing to land," Moran said in today's press release. "I attacked the one on the left first time.

"I swung into their circuit, and their number had been increased to five. I came in too fast on the first one I attacked, a Heinkel III and overshot my target, so wheeled around and came in a second time. I gave him a burst with his starboard engine, and he crashed in flames.

"A few seconds later I was on the tail of a Junkers 88. . . I flew so close in order to get machine-gun his aircraft He blew up in mid-air.

A few nights later Bonnell got the range of a Hun over enemy territory, and "had had him in his sights a kill", said the air force.

Graduate at R.M.C

Wing Cmdr. Dawood graduated Royal Military College at Kingston in 1931 and then attended Queen's University, playing on football teams.

In addition with the R.C.A.F. dates back to college days when he enrolled for a provisional pilot officer's course during the summer months at Camp Borden, Ont, from 1932 to 1933 was a Flying Officer No. 17 Squadron, and subsequently joined Canadian Airways, flying to all parts of Northern Canada.

From July, 1938, until June, 1940, Dawood was supervisor of Transport Command, R.C.A.F., and later organized its air transport division for the Eastern Air Command of the R.C.A.F. in June, 1940, and flew a bomber overseas in May, 1941.

The transport left Louisville, Ky., for Nashville, Tenn., at 10.50 p.m. (EDT) piloted by Capt. Harry A. Stiller of Cleveland, Ohio, according to American Airlines, The plane was last heard from at 11.30 p.m. (EDT) over Bowling Green Ky.

Trammel is about 20 miles from Bowling Green, near the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

Unfavorable Weather

First word of the crash came when First Lieut. Glenn W. Pelham, attached to Love Field, Texas, who was a passenger on the plane, knocked on the door of a farm house three-quarters of a mile from the scene and notified government officials in the neighborhood took Pelicey, and another passenger to E. Hoffman, R.F.D. 1, Guthrie-port, Pa., to a Bowling Green hospital.

Allen County Sheriff L. A. Williams said the plane hit in a field and ploughed along on the ground for a distance of a mile. A sheriff said 10 bodies were visible in the wreckage, but a firm clear of the plane and apparently were the only survivors.

Eisenhower Tells People Only Obstacle to Peace Is Nazi Troops in Italy

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 29 — (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the Italian people in a broadcast message today that the presence of German troops in Italy is the only obstacle to an honorable peace.

The Commander of Allied Forces promised that the hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners held by the Allies would be returned to their homes provided all Allied prisoners now in Italian hands were restored safely and not taken away into Germany.

He said the Italians would have immediate proof whether the honorable conditions which our governments have already offered you and pledged the occupation would be "mild and beneficient as in Sicily.

"Your fate will return to their normal life, productive avocations" he said. "The ancient liberties and traditions of your country will be restored."

Gen. Eisenhower brought out these five points:

1. Only the Germans in Italy are blocking peace.

2. Cessation of hostilities is possible immediately if the German army withdraws.

3. Discontinuance of assistance by the Italians to German armed forces is unreservedly demanded.

4. A pledge that Italian war prisoners will be returned if Allied prisoners in Italian hands are not returned.

5. If hostilities cease, the liberties and traditions of Italy will be restored.

Commended Populace

"We commend the Italian people and the House of Savoy for ridding themselves of Mussolini, the man who involved them in the war as a tool of Hitler and brought them to disaster," the "coming, directly with a mighty roar," and ran out of his house in time to see the ground.

Advances Made up to Four Miles South of Orel

2,500 GERMANS KILLED

(By WILLIAM McGAFFIN)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, July 29 (AP)—The Russian offensive, which launched from the south drove over the bodies of 2,500 Germans yesterday to within four miles of the great rail junction that is the vital city and keep pace with the northern and eastern onslaughts, the Russians said today.

From line dispatches indicated the Germans are losing men and tanks, in general advances of from 2½ to 4 miles, now had battered down the German's outer hedgehog defence systems and were storming the enemy's inner defences.

Stanovoy Kolodeti, railway station 11 miles southeast of Oryl, fell to the Russians yesterday, a communique said.

Russian advices said the column advancing on Orel from the north was fighting its way through German defences at Kromy and was held to flood stage by recent rains.

U.S. PLANES RAID OSCHERSLEBEN IN CENTRAL GERMANY

Deep Penetration in Daylight of Enemy Territory

KASSEL ALSO HIT

London, July 29 —(CP)— Boldly defying Hitler's fading air strength, swarms of American heavy bombers flew unescorted and in daylight deep into the heart of Germany to within 80 miles of Berlin to smash the Nazi aircraft plant at Oschersleben. R.A.F., R. C. A. F., and other Allied planes provided fighter protection on the last lap of the return trip.

The Oschersleben raid was the deepest daylight thrust of the war into Germany.

Indications that the round-the-clock bombings had extended into the night, the British radio reported early today that the R. A. F. planes had made scattered "nuisance raids" on Northwestern Germany during the night. There was no confirmation.

Kassel, site of a big Focke-Wulf assembly plant about 200 miles southwest of Berlin, also was battered by the big bombers, which

FIRST CRACK IN AXIS HAS COME SAYS ROOSEVELT

Allies Will Not Be Satisfied With Less Than Total Victory President Declares

JUSTICE PROMISED

Washington, July 29 — (AP) — President Roosevelt declared tonight that "the first crack in the Axis has come," and added that the United Nations will not settle the conflict for "less than total victory." The President, in an address of the war, broadcast to the American people, prdicted that Mussolini and "his Fascist gang" would be brought to justice and punished for their crimes against humanity." He said "no criminal will be allowed to escape by the expedient of "resignation."

He recalled a prophecy he made to Congress more than a year and one-half ago, that "the militarists in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo started this war, but the mass, angered forces of common humanity will finish it."

That prophecy, he said, is in the process of being fulfilled. He added:

"The mass, angered forces of common humanity are on the march. They are going forward on the Russian front, in the vast Pacific area and into Europe, converging upon their ultimate objectives in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

It was a rosy-hued picture of the war as Mr. Roosevelt painted it, depicting the "criminal, corrupt Fascist regime in Italy" as "going to pieces," and he gave a new assurance that the terms of the Allies, 10 Italy, as to Germany and Japan, still are "unconditional surrender."

Japs Are Told Japan Must Concentrate Upon Shipbuilding

New York, July 29. (AP)—The Japs were told by Japanese-born people today it was "absolutely essential" that Japan concentrate on shipbuilding if she hoped to capitalize on the rich resources of conquered areas, the United States office for war information reported today. "Lack of shipping threatens the fate of Germany in the First World War", the broadcast warned, pointing out that the Allied combined facilities prevent the shipping of products from Asia to Europe, Australia and other occupied areas to Japan.

Axis Prisoners Seemed Jolly Lot

An East Coast Canadian Port, July 29. (CP)—Whether the Allied prisoners were pleased to be out of it is not known, but it was a jovial lot of German and Italian prisoners who passed through here recently on the way to an internment camp Somewhere in Canada.

Many of the 200 were youths who were captured behind the lines between Sicily and Messina with the blood and grime of battlefields. They didn't seem to mind captivity, and gave Churchill's New Order history sign and upped their thumbs in the familiar Canadian "V" for victory salute.

When their train stopped at a nearby railway junction, the prisoners burst into song and kept it up long enough to draw a small audience.

Cut North-South Highway in Drive Toward Etna Line

American Troops Capture Nicosia One Of Key Points in Central Sicily

75,000 PRISONERS

Washington, July 29 —(CP)— Canadian troops in Sicily have taken Agira, key communications Acting United States War Secretary, announced today. Agira is about 12 miles east of Leonforte, capture of which by the Canadian 1st Division was announced today by Allied Headquarters in North Africa.

Patterson said also that the American, operating to the north of the Canadians, in their joint drive northeastwards toward the German Mount Etna line, have taken Nicosia.

(A German propaganda agency report, heard in London, said that the Germans had withdrawn from Nicosia.)

Nicosia and San Stefano, to the north, had stood as the next key points along the line of the advance of American and Canadian forces northwest of Catania and a capture from Allied Headquarters emphasized their importance today in the following words:

Clear Northern Area

"Their capture will clear virtually the entire central and northern area of Sicily south and inland of what is expected to be a critical stage of the campaign fought in complex foothills and mountains."

Canadian columns smashed their way into Leonforte, eight miles northeast of Enna, in fierce fighting while the American 7th Army pounding eastward down the coast from Palermo, captured the town of Pollina, Castelbuono and Gangi.

With the occupation of Agira, representing a one-day advance of about eight miles from the port of Cefalu, which was taken the previous day, the American armored spearhead had reached a point 73 miles from Messina, jumping-off point for the Allied forces defending the island.

Allied forces in Sicily now have taken 75,000 prisoners, approximately three-fourths of them captured by the Americans in their sweep over western Sicily.

66-Mile Front

The right wing of the American onrush over a 66-mile front was reported by Associated Press correspondent Frank Tenney Johnson, from which the Canadians were driving forward.

Beating back elite regiments of the German 15th Armored division, the Canadians found Nazi troops piled in heaps on the outskirts of one unnamed city, it was reported last night.

Capture of Leonforte cut the important north-south highway which lies behind Axis lines to the east, to north coast and has been a major artery for supplies moving to and between the enemy centre and left wing.

A German prisoner was officially reported to have said that the Nazis were killing their Italian allies whenever the latter attempted to surrender.

San Stefano, northern anchor of the Axis defence line in ten miles east of the American forward sector, is a resort town on the coast, seven miles east of Leonforte, are the next key points along the American and Canadian drive. Capture of these two would just about clear the entire central and northern areas of the Enna line and initiate the final critical stage of the campaign in the complex foothills and mount-ins near Messina.

Chamber of Fasci and Corporations Dissolved by Badoglio Government

London, July 29, (CP)—Italy's Chamber of Fasci and Corporations has been dissolved by order of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Rome radio announced today.

The Chamber of Fasci and Corporations (Camera dei Fascie e Delle Corporazioni) took the place of the Italian Chamber of Deputies after that 90-year old legislative agency was dissolved Dec. 14, 1938.

It was made up of the 150 members of the National Fascist Council, headed by Benito Mussolini as chief of the government, and 500 members of the National Council of corporations

One of the cheques reported cashed was for $30, while the second was for $23.75. The victimized merchants gave police a fairly good description of the cheque artist.

On Saturday afternoon, Mr. Steve Flintoft and Ray Lockyer were trolling in Macoote Bay when they hooked a 26-pound 'lunge. The finny beauty measured fully 4o inches long, when taken from the water. Highlights of Politics of Political Parties Heard at Madoc Nomination

Programs, platforms and policies of the three political parties seeking election to Queen's Park on the 22nd inst., were outlined and elaborated before the electors of East Hastings on Wednesday afternoon as political nominations for the above riding were held in Madoc Arena.

Candidates for three parties were nominated assuring a threecornered fight in the forthcoming election, two of the candidates being nominated as the Liberal standard-bearer, while Mr. Bowerman was named the Progressive Conservative candidate and J. A. McAninch for the C.C.F.

Geo. West Chairman

All three candidates spoke to the rather thinly attended nomination meeting, their special speakers being heard for the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives, Messrs. George West of Madoc acted as chairman, the proceedings commencing the closing of nominations by the Returning Officer.

Speaking for Mr. Brown, W. Geo. Allen of Madoc, Liberal organizer, defended the holding of an election in wartime, stating that it was the democratic right of the people to choose whom they wish to represent them at Queen's Park. Other Allied nations had held wartime elections and the fact that the last session of the Legislature had granted a one-year extension of the term of the Liberal Government.

"Apparently Col. Drew has no real reason for his present opposition to the election other than he does not now personally approve," he stated.

The speaker held farmers had never seen more prosperous times than under the Hepburn regime, pointing to the world depression ever to hit this country as occurred during the R. B. Bennett years of Conservatism. The Liberal Government was termed "sane and safe administration."

Says Free Enterprise Endangered

Speaking for the C.C.F. platform Mr. Atkins declared the leader had no use for democracy, lampooning other countries. Their socialistic policy of complete government operation of present free enterprise.

The C.C.F. program of Col. Drew was attacked, it being charged that the party's four candidates were not consulted prior to its announcement. Governmental operations of the stockyards was the only thing promised by the program while "it constitutes the C.C.F. or even the former Bennett administration."

The cost of putting the program into operation appeared necessitate vastly increased provincial revenue which could only come from the pockets of the laboring man and the farmer through higher provincial income taxes or through instituted taxes, he claimed.

J. McAninch, C.C.F.

J. A. McAninch declared that under the present system of government Canadians were governed by democracy only at election time. At other times government was dictatorial in leadership. He referred to the ousting of party leaders by the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives and to the letting out of civil servants by the Hepburn administration.

"The electors of Ontario should get behind the C.C.F. and do something about this state of affairs," he stated. "The C.C.F. offers hospitals instead of sanitariums and with institute a much-needed program of state medicine."

The Liberal administration was attacked by the speaker for their treatment of farm labor to leave the farms, either to industry or by reason of having been called into the services. At the same time they were calling for greater agricultural production. Still they had not made it easier for farmers to get additional labor saving machinery.

Defends Socialized Enterprises

The speaker upheld socialism stating that socialized Hydro as it is in Ontario had proven an outstanding success, while nationalized banks in New Zealand had also proved successful. "The C.C.F." he declared, "is out to destroy free enterprise, but to destroy opportunity for a few to exploit the many."

The resources of the province should be utilized to provide revenue for educational purposes; Reference was made to the mining industry of Northern Ontario which was claimed to belong to the people of the province and not to a few monopolistic enterprises.

"Past of Unfulfilled Promises"

Col. Drew was accused by the speaker of copying 15 points of his 21-point program from the C.C.F. platform, while in answer to the previous speaker, who claimed past promises were recognized in the choosing of a new government, asserted the two old parties are being judged on their past—a past replete with unfulfilled promises.

In closing Mr. McAninch reiterated his party's assertion that the people would not be regimented by the C.C.F. policy and urged the electors to vote, not for candidate, but for the policy which would rid them of the combines and monopolies.

Roscoe Robson

Progressive Conservative candidate Roscoe Robson accused the Liberal government of making a direct charge of $180,000 as Hastings share of the cost of No. 7 highway. The motor vehicle licence fee had been reduced out the province got the revenue back through increased gasoline taxes.

Mr. Robson pointed to his municipal record and referred to the municipal and county school tax which he claimed was the biggest item on the ratepayers' tax bill. Col. Drew's program would reduce the school tax.

The speaker deplored the "vicious party patronage system of the Liberal government" claiming that in times of depression the opposition party had been discriminated against when seeking "pick and shovel" jobs. "The qualification for a laboring job should be the need of a job without reference to party politics," he asserted.

Mr. Bowerman

F. Ed. Brown, Liberal candidate stated he was glad to be a candidate following Premier Hepburn's life promised, if elected to help retain the privileges of the Liberal administration. The small attendance at the nomination meeting was an indication that electors were satisfied with the present government, while the opposition had merely promises to offer—"and election promises, it is admitted by the opposition are not much good."

Thomas Bowerman, Conservative Hastings county farmers had received $41,486 in farm loans alone during the past two years while they had also benefited in the extent of $51,500 through the bacon hog bonus, he claimed. In addition the county had been relieved of the full cost of hospitalization for tuberculous patients and had received increased municipal road grants.

The speaker was confident the next government would be one in control in power and indicated that a Liberal government under Premier Hastings would thus be able to better look after the electors' interests.

Romain K. Ross, St. Catharines, speaking in the absence of Premier Robson, accused the C.C.F. party of criticizing the two old parties and indirectly the Dominion of Canada, it had been these two old parties, he said, that had given successful government in Canada since Federation.

Says C.C.F. Seeking Office on Purely Class Appeal

"The C.C.F." he said, "is merely another political party seeking to go into office on a 100 per cent. socialistic program—and socialism in the meantime has not proven to be a success. In order to change the program in Canada, we do not have to change the system."

The most significant feeling the future provincial government would be the readjustment between the various taxing governmental agreements, according to the speaker, Greater co-operation must be shown if there was to be better legislation, Col. Drew was claimed to be the most outstanding man for this better legislation.

The Liberal government was accused of being content in resting on its past record, showing little policy for the future. Any government willing to stand on it's past record will not command the vote of the electors in this advanced age.

It was claimed that Col. Drew's 22-point program had the most to offer the people of the province. "The program does something for everybody," he said. "At least that is a step in the right direction."

Favors School Trustee System

Granted the opportunity of speaking to former speakers, Mr. Akins indicated that if the Liberal government were to pay 50 percent of the cost of education, the province would have something to say in the matter. Catholic "When the costs are shared you have a partner," he said, "and when you have a partner, he will have something to say. Personally I am still in favor of the school trustee system."

Reference was made to Premier Harry Hepburn's 20-year record in the provincial legislature. Premier Nixon has the confidence of his own riding, stated the speaker, he has never been defeated, unlike Col. Drew who always came unsatisfied in a Conservative stronghold.

Liberals are in power in the Federal House and in all the provinces, concluded Mr. Akins. There co-operation between the Federal and Provincial governments was indicated by the furtherance of post-war planning. Already a program is being set up calling for extended highways, and new municipal construction, he said.

Expensive Tackle Not Necessary To Catch Fish

The fact that one does not need to drive several hundred miles to some northern lake to enjoy a holiday fishing, at least if you are under the age of twelve, was well proved yesterday morning by a group of youngsters who were having a wonderful time fishing in the Moira River from the footbridge. Their fishing tackle may not have been of the most up-to-date variety, consisting of long bamboo poles with string attached, but it proved adequate. The small boys were equipped with only a piece of string, with a very small piece of cotton affix attached to hang onto.

Worms are just as good bait as anything else, these boys would say, who had an adequate supply of them, secured in an old earthen mass. There were of course plenty of bystanders to give the youngsters the "don't ain't gettin' any bites, Joe, You haven't even got a worm on your hook."

There was dissension among the youthful fishermen themselves. Two lines going down side by side can cause trouble, but the lads were wise enough to untangle them.

Two girls were also fishing, and there seemed to be considerable competition. As one of the boys hauled in a fat shining fish which had been efficient in swallowing one of the girls obviously jealous, he taunted, "That's nothing—I got fish."

This fish brought the boy's total to eight so far, but they were not yet satisfied. for the lines were again lowered and the watch began anew. Oh to be young again!

BULGARIA SHOWS

Stirred by Italian Crisis

Always a leader in box, even in peacetime, Bulgaria's Balkans have been stirred by the Italian crisis.

From Bulgaria came reports that leaflets were distributed Monday in Bulgarian demanding immediate peace for Rumania and ending:

"Down with Hitler—down with (Premier) Antonescu."

An Albanian report said Albanian Prime Minister Ernver Libohova had left Albania and Vice-Premier Ilyas Agushi had delivered a proclamation urging the people to maintain discipline. The Italian General representing the King of Italy also was said to have left the country.

From Greece came reports of increased guerrilla activities on the heels of Mussolini's downfall along with indications some of the Quisling partisans were moving north toward Albania.

Christopher De Kalby, son of the Hungarian Prime Minister, arrived in Turkey on a special diplomatic mission. He is believed carrying urgent messages from his father to the Turkish government.

BOY BICYCLIST'S NARROW ESCAPE

Sustains Lacerations and Bruises When He Runs in Front of Truck

Said to have ridden his bicycle across Bleecker Ave. directly in front of a truck, 12-year-old Gordon Scott of Queen St., escaped serious injury on Wednesday. The youthful bicyclist did sustain two head lacerations and bruises when carried some distance by the force of the impact and rolled into the boulevard. Dr. F. R. Ross was in attendance.

D. F. Gunsolus, 1071½ Station St., was proceeding northerly on Bleecker Ave. when young Cuthin turned out of Queen St., entering directly and directly into the path of the truck. "I did everything possible to avoid striking the boy but he rode right in front of my truck," Mr. Gunsolus told police, who later attached no blame on the trucker. The bicycle rider allegedly did not observe the stop street sign while proceeding across Bleecker Ave on Queen St., it was stated.

"This accident could have been a lot worse, as it was only good luck that the boy escaped more serious injury to the boy. Repeated complaints have been received of children riding bicycles and failing to stop at designated stop streets. Then there' is another practice of riding two on a bike which is s'y dangerous and if responsible parents do not caution their children regarding the observance of traffic laws and see that they observe them then the only alternative will be to charge each and every person riding bicycles, when they are observed in violation of the laws," stated Deputy Chief Harman while reviewing the situation today.

"Of course with hundreds of bicycles being ridden on city streets today police cannot hope to cover the entire city simultaneously, but we do ask parents to caution their children in this respect before some more serious accident occurs," added Chief Probert.

REDS PENETRATE

Heavy Going

The going was said to be heavy and the Russians acknowledged the offensive in this area had inevitably been slowed down but declared that even so the advance was continuing.

The Russian half-circle thrown about the bitterly resisting German army last was reported nearest the city on the north, where it encompassed Dyatkovo, the column attacking frontally from the east had overrun Zolatarevo at last reports, 13 miles away.

Altogether, the Russians said they overran 30 occupied places, left more than 2,500 dead upon the field, and knocked out 29 German tanks yesterday in the Orel sector alone.

"The Berlin radio yesterday acknowledged the German withdrawal from Bulkhov, 31 miles above Orel, which the Russians announced last week they had captured. It was evening, the broadcast said, as a part of their "elastically conducted defence fighting."

(Another German broadcast attributed the Russian successes to "greatly superior" forces but said the Red army had been unable to pierce German positions either at Orel or east of Leningrad. It also said the Germans had been launched out in Tuesday's fighting.)

FIRST CRACK IN

He spoke of the manner in which Russia had turned a new German offensive into a counter-offensive and of the manner in which the Japanese were being pressed in the Pacific.

Yet he warned that it would not be an easy matter "to finish off our Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang" even though plans for eliminating Mussolini and his gang had largely succeeded. The length of the war, he said, will depend upon an unhesitating continuance on an "all-out effort on the fighting fronts and here at home."

Looking ahead toward the post-war world, the President said the United Nations are substantially agreed on general objectives but also are agreed that the time has not arrived for an international discussion of all the terms of peace and all the details of the future.

"We must not relax our pressure on the enemy," he said, "by taking time out to define every boundary and settle every political controversy in every part of the world. The all-important thing now is to get on the war and to win it."

Outlines 6-Point Plan

Yet he did outline a specific six-point plan for taking care of members of the armed forces of the United States after their fighting is done and the country can begin conversion to a peacetime basis. The President said the least to which these fighting men are entitled is:

1.—Mustering-out pay large enough to take care of the time between discharge and the finding of a job.

2.—Unemployment insurance in case no job is found after diligent search.

3.—An opportunity for further education or trade training financed by the Government.

4.—Credit allowance under employment compensation and service-men's old-age insurance for the period of service, just as it were had been continuous employment in private industry.

5.—Broader provisions for hospital care, rehabilitation and medical care of the disabled.

6.—Sufficient pensions for disabled members of the armed forces.

Disclosing that he plans a new radio address to the country within a few weeks, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Your Government is up other serious, constructive plans for ... and yard moves. They concern food, manpower, and other domestic problems, but they lie in with our armed forces.

"Within a few weeks I shall speak to you again in regard to definite actions to be taken by the executive branch of the Government and specific recommendations for new legislation by the Congress."

Of the war in Sicily and Italy, Mr. Roosevelt said it would go on "until the Italian people realize the futility of continuing to fight in a last campaign, and to which the people of Italy never gave their whole-hearted approval and support."

Analyzing the crack-up in Italy, Mr. Roosevelt remarked that the "pirate philosophy" of the Fascists and Nazis cannot stand adversity, and said that the superiority of the United Nations had been applied in the right place and at the right time.

Germans Betrayed Allies

Then, in a way which appeared to be directed as much toward the Italian people as to the Nazis, Mr. Roosevelt said Hitler had refused sufficient help to save Mussolini and the Nazi troops in Sicily even had stolen Italian motor equipment and left Italian soldiers

R.C.M.P. SHIP ST. ROCH HEADS BACK THROUGH NORTHWEST PASSAGE

The crew, master of the St. Roch's crew making the new voyage, who was with her when she came through the Northwest Passage before, is Second Engineer, Constable J. W. Peters, of Winnipeg. stranded and with no choice but surrender.

Germans again", he said, "the Germans betrayed their Italian allies as they had done time and time again on the Russian front and in the long retreat from Egypt through Libya and Tripoli to the final surrender in Tunisia".

Without qualification, the President said, "we will have no truck with fascism in any way, shape or manner," and that "we will permit no vestige of fascism to remain."

To the Italian people, he held out again the prospect that eventually they would be allowed to choose their own Government under democratic principles and promised that the Axis pattern of pillage and starvation for occupied countries would not be followed by the United Nations.

Already, Mr. Roosevelt said, the United Nations have started to make good in their determination to restore conquered peoples to the dignity of human begins, masters of their own fate, entitled to freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom from want and fear.

"I am sorry," Mr. Roosevelt said, "it I step on the toes of those Americans who, playing petty politics at home, caned that kind of foreign policy 'crazy altruism' and 'starry-eyed dreaming.'"

A Word for Home Critics

At another point he struck at what he termed a few Americans whose complacency, inconveniences of life at home, saying they should take lessons from the civilian populations of the Allies of the United States and the enemy - occupied lands.

The President told his fellow countrymen that they heard it said that while the United States is succeeding greatly on the fighting home front. He called this "another home front fable," and said the "sum of those immeasurities — a fair slogan easy to state but serious in the essential facts."

"I think that the personal convenience of the individual of the individual family back home here in the United States," he said, "will be subject to more or less inconvenience than it will be if the initial assault force on Sicily received 100 per cent. of the carried 160,000 men ... together with 14,000 vehicles, 600 tanks and 1,200 guns.

"This force was followed every day and every night by thousands of reinforcements.

Mr. Roosevelt said the Sicilian campaign was planned six months ago, when plans for the planning at the time of his conference at Casablanca with Prime Minister Churchill.

Mr. Roosevelt went into an exceptionally detailed appraisal of war in Russia and the Pacific.

The German and most decisive fighting today is going on in Russia, he said, and he said the war against Britain and the United States continues to weaken as Russia's power striking power.

"The success of the Russian armies has proved," he declared "that it is dangerous to make prophesies about them — a fact forcibly brought home to that mystic master of strategy in Berlin, Herr Hitler."

The German offensive begun this month he characterized as a desperate attempt to bolster German morale, which did not fool the Russians. The latter, he said, went ahead with their own plans for attack, which co-ordinated with the offensive strategy of all the United Nations.

Singing high praises for the Russian people, whom he said he and the President said the United States should be glad always to be a good neighbor and sincere friend in the world of the future to a nation without qualification, were the world from the Nsai menace.

Pacific Fighting Around.

In the Pacific theatre, Mr. Roosevelt said that "we are pushing the Japs around from the Aleutians to New Guinea," where the Allies have taken the initiative and are not going to let go of it.

With the Japanese having lost more planes and ships than they could replace, the President said, the process of attrition was working and was working against them.

Predicting that they would be pushed back from line running from Burma and Siam and the Straits Settlement through the Netherland East Indies to New Guinea and the Solomons, Mr. Roosevelt said there was good reason to believe their shipping and air power could not support such positions.

Apparently in answer to those who have contended that the Japanese are being allowed to consolidate their positions while the United Nations concentrate on the Axis in Europe, Mr. Roosevelt said that the Japs could not "sit down and rest on their conquests."

"Every day and every night the Japanese are being allowed to consolidate their positions while the United Nations concentrate on the Axis in Europe, Mr. Roosevelt said that the Japs could not "sit down and rest on their conquests."

"Every day and every night the Japanese are being pressed in the Solomons, in New Guinea and in the Aleutians," he said, "and every night and every day the United States and the United Nations are building their strength for the next attack."

ALLIED STRATEGY MAY CALL FOR YUGOSLAV DRIVE

Heavy, Increasing Allied air offensives against enemy forces on Crete may be a forerunner of an invasion of the Axis-held island of Greece. Military experts say the island, coupled with the fall of Sicily and air drive across the toe and heel of Italy, would advantageously place United Nations forces in position for a two-pronged drive into Yugoslavia. Hitler greatly fears that then the Balkans would be ripe for fight in the Balkans. "Europe's powder keg." Large scale uprisings against the Nazis would break out, making it hard for them to wage war effectively.

Kindly Return

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of some $42. worth of sheet music from the band room at the Pinnacle Street Collegiate during the Citadel recently. Just when the music was taken from the Wardle Salvation Army Band Instructor was unable to state but when the matter was reported to police. No indications of a break-in were in evidence, but a large leather case containing the music is missing. The goods were taken from the S. A. band room in the basement of the Citadel some time last week. Their disappearance was first discovered prior to Tuesday night's scheduled band practice. The music was stored on the leather case following Sunday's services. Why any person would steal such a large quantity of church sheet music puzzles local Salvation Army and police officials. After all it is the Salvation Army that is suffering and any knowledge of the whereabouts of this music would be appreciated.

THE WAR TODAY

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press War Analyst

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who would much rather confine himself to fighting, is on the political spot again.

Just a few months ago, cautious in the trap of expediency, the General was dealing with the two French Admiral Jean Darlan for the capitulation of North Africa when President Roosevelt announced that, as far as United States action is concerned, the former Vichyite was being used on a strictly temporary basis.

This morning the General broadcast a statement to the Italians that they can have the peace for which they are seeking. Throw the Germans out and we will look after you royally, was the gist of Gen. Eisenhower's message. But even that is not enough. Italians are awakening to find word from President Roosevelt that, once again, the United States considers the authority with whom the General can deal is only temporary.

Will Chose Gov't

Eventually, said the President, the Italian people will reconstitute their country under a government of their own choosing. Meanwhile, Gen. Eisenhower assures, the Allies will deal with anyone who can deliver the country. Not a very hopeful situation from the standpoints of King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio, unless they are confident that, in taking the country out from under the power of Germany, they can generate sufficient goodwill to make them the 'people's choice.

Gen. Eisenhower's reference to the "honorable conditions" for peace "already offered" confirms in no way with the President's reiteration of "unconditional surrender. But the General makes a strong point in referring to Allied policies in Sicily, where unconditional surrender has meant food, and peace — not the dictation — dictates of both Nazism and Fascism.

The double-barreled forensic attack by Mr. Roosevelt and Gen. Eisenhower also contained other statements designed to bring strong effect in a country where revolution is rife and in ferment. If the Allies almost as much as the Germans, who were reported receiving shot and steel, lighted co-operation in their effort to set up a defence line in Northern Italy.

The Italians are a highly civilized and sentimental people. They are sensitive to casualties and the heartaches, even, of their enemy husbands and brothers. Gen. Eisenhower's statement would mean a complete exchange of prisoners must have a profound effect.

Clear Majority Won by Smuts In S.A. Election

Pretoria South Africa, July 30 —(AP)—Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts and his war policies won clear majority in the July 7 General Election, still incomplete returns indicated today.

With 59 seats decided out of the total of 150 in the House of Representatives, the coalition government had won 34 seats, while the various opposition parties which have opposed participation in the war.

Results were delayed for more than three weeks because, first, time was required to gather the soldiers votes from various theatres of opposition, and, secondly, by opposition attempts to have the courts rule many soldier ballots were incorrigible because of alleged irregularities.

Field Marshal Smuts himself was re-elected for Standerton and all members of his cabinet were re-elected.

Youngest General

Canada's commander in the Sicilian campaign, Major-General Guy Simonds of Kingston, is the youngest general that ever led Canadian troops into action.

General Sir Arthur Currie commanding the Canadians at the last of the Great War was 44 years old when he led the First Division into action.

The average age of the five divisional commanders in Canada's young army is 45, comparing with the average of 51 in the last war.

So the First Division in Sicily is fortunate in having as commander one who has shown brilliant aptitude as a young leader.

Modern war is so complex it demands so much of a leader, stamina of course, and the ability of immediate mental reaction to the need.

It is a matter of history that General James Wolfe whose victory at the Plains of Abraham at Quebec decided Canada's future for the British crown was only 32 years old at the time of his death while Montcalm, his opponent, was only 47.

Axis and Defeat

Ancient legends in Italy and Germany point the disasters that face Italy and Germany on the rocks or in the whirlpool of war.

On the Strait of Messina between Italy and Sicily which is in one place only about two miles wide, the ancients believed that two monsters of the sea lived, named Scylla and Charybdis, waiting for prey, the former supposed to live on the rocks of a promontory. She had six heads with twelve feet and the bark of a dog and she snatched sailors from the passing ships in old legends. Under a huge fig-tree on the other side, legend said Charybdis lurked, who three times a day swallowed down and spouted, out the waters of the sea. The two signified the choice of two evils, being snatched from the deck of ships and eaten or being drowned in the whirlpool of Charybdis.

Applied to reference books the prominent jutting into the strait is still dangerous to navigation and must have been extremely so in days of the open vessels of the ancients.

Italy and Mussolini have come to the beginning of their trial for the evil they foisted upon the world. Mussolini has been wrecked in the whirlpool or charybdis of war which he helped to bring upon mankind.

In this war Italy finds herself facing Scylla the rock and Charybdis the whirlpool unless she overthrows Fascism and reneges her alliance with German aggression. She cannot dodge the issue.

How well the ancients read the legend to paint life! And before the world's eyes in the year 1943 mankind has seen the wreckage of a man who thought himself Imperial and great. Revenge has caught up with him.

There is another dictator who is going to ruin, Adolf Hitler. In German legend is a story about the rock Lorelei which rises perpendicularly above the Rhine to a height of 427 feet. Ages ago it was dangerous to boatmen and it had a celebrated echo. A German poet of Jewish race named Heine wrote a song of a siren combing her locks on that rock and singing so ravishingly that boatmen were lured to their doom. If ever a man was lured to doom by listening to the siren voices of conquest, revenge, cruel malice, it is Hitler and on the rocks will crash his mad dreams.

No boatmen lured to doom at Lorelei, according to ancient story, suffered so inexorable and unescapable a fate as Hitler will face for his doom is the moral order of right and justice.

Gayda Gone Too

Once upon a time there was Virginio Gayda who tried to bath in the sun shine of Mussolini by editorial attack on the Allied nations, But Gayda's forecasts inevitably were in error, because he was but a poor mouthpiece of a detestable dictator. Latterly Mussolini and Gayda have not appeared in speeches or writings.

At last something happened. Mussolini is the world knows not where. He is in disgrace, out of office after 21 years of misrule and Gayda, the mouthpiece, has gone too, for Il Giornale d'Italia is taken over according to a Berlin report by the very man, Bergamini, who had lost his post on this newspaper because of his attack on Mussolini. Time has had its revenge quickly for these two enemies of society.

The Chow's the Thing

(From the Chicago Daily News)

We have received from a Des Moines publicity agency an account of the Kitchen of Tomorrow, written for a glass company. The thing is positively thrilling. The kitchen of the future will make the parlor of the past look like a rummage room, according to this prospectus. Everything will be crystal, ball-bearing and practically automatic. When the cooking is complete, the "wall between the kitchen and the living room slides back and becomes a pleasant study or child's playroom."

Here's another touch: "In the corner next to the oven is a serving wagon, a portable cupboard with the same six wells and cooking containers in it that are in the range. You cook your foods in the range, lift out your containers, slip them into the serving wagon and roll the food, silver, china and linen into the dining alcove beside the table." And of course the food is kept hot by an electric unit in the serving wagon. Everything is electric, streamlined and continuous.

We knew these engineers would get around to the kitchen eventually and apply the principle of straight-line production to the oldest factory in the world.

But somehow the story seems to have missed a big point, we mean food! It is mentioned only incidentally — one might say slightingly — in the publicity release on the Kitchen of Tomorrow. We trust this is not a portent.

New Style Mail

(Edmonton Journal)

The growing popularity of airgraph letters among the men overseas and their correspondents in Canada may be the prelude to a great peacetime expansion of this form of air mail. The saving in space on aircraft is, of course, a vital consideration in war, but it should also appeal greatly to operators of commercial lines in the years to come.

Soon after the airgraph service was instituted over a year ago about 18,000 messages were handled through the Canadian post office each month. By last February the number had grown to 225,000 and by March it was up another 20,000. A similarly large increase in recent months is reported, although actual figures are not available.

Has Possibilities for Canada

(Windsor Star)

Russia has awarded a prize to a farmer-scientist who, it is said, has developed a type of wheat that will withstand cold and drought of Central Asia. And not only that, but it will produce a second crop from its stalks, without replanting. Something like that will push Canada's frontier back another hundred miles, and at the same time tempt a lot of farmers to pull up stakes and move with it.

A judicious silence is hard to learn but it is one of the great lessons of life.

FINAL SALE

They'd advertised his things for sale and so I went to see
What sort of an experience a sale like that could be.
And there were groups of strangers hold who walked his rooms about
And laughed at trinkets he had loved and couldn't live without.
They offered paltry sums for things he'd cherished down the years,
But that's the way when lonely men have ended their careers.

It was, indeed, a motley throng that swarmed throughout the place,
The rich, the poor, the curious and the shrewdest of the race.
They bickered for the dead man's stuff; his books and pictures fine;
His tapestries and bits of chints, his rugs of rich design.
They sneered about his "dreadful taste;" they jibed at treasures rare,
But that's the way when lonely men leave none behind to care.

They shouted offers back and forth and snatched at this and that.
One bought the bed in which he slept, the chair in which he sat,
They scrambled for his silverware; they tore the place apart;
They gloated as they piled his goods upon an open cart.

Thought I: "A sale like this at last a tragic sadness brings,
But that's the way when lonely men are done with all their things."

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in Britain, July 29 —(CP)— Few awards of the D.F.C. are greeted as warmly as the ribbon presented behind the name of Flt. Lt. Donald Morrison, D.F.M., of Montreal.

Morrison, you see, is a very popular guy. The fact that he is a prisoner of war in Germany, recently reported by Berne and the amputation of a leg, has not dropped his name from the conversation of those who knew him.

They remember him over Dieppe last August, attacking a Focke-Wulf despite his badly damaged aircraft, shooting it down, and then bailing out. He spent the day in a rescue launch and twice jumped overboard to rescue members of the crew of another launch which was sunk by enemy aircraft.

They promoted Morrison from Pilot Officer to Flight Lieutenant then, and he had jumped from a sergeant only a short time before.

He was taken prisoner last fall when he was shot down in a terrific dogfight over France, but only after he had shot down another enemy plane. His record stands at six destroyed and many probables.

They don't go up much faster than Flt. Lt. Charles Brendor (275 Hastings Ave.) Toronto, 21-year-old Canadian Spitfire Squadron early in 1942 as a sergeant and recently became its commanding officer.

He took over when Sqdn. Ldr. B. D. Russel, D.F.C., Montreal, was promoted Wing Cmdr. Sqdn. Ldr. Semple enlisted as an ACT, received a job in the T. Eaton Co. Annex at Toronto.

Wing Cmdr. Russel fought the Battle of Britain with the 1st Canadian Fighter Squadron.

Recently awarded the D.S.O. to add to a D.F.C., was Wing Cmdr. Lane of Victoria, B.C., really known his Europe. He has made 50 operational sweeps, all with a Hurricane bomber squadron, ever practically every target raided in Germany and Italy. He now is instructing future "pathfinders" at a navigational training school. Of his tours, Lane says, "I really enjoy them."

News from the Red Indian Squadron is that PO. Norman Fowlow of Windsor, N.S., 21, has stepped over from the Wolf Squadron to take over command of a flight. The new "Flt. Lt." has three enemy planes to his credit.

Another promotion in the Canadian Fighter Wing is that of PO. Russell Keirby Bragg of Montreal, engineering officer of a Spitfire Squadron, to Flight Lieutenant. A permanent force man, Flt. Lt. Bragg came overseas in 1940 as a corporal.

Attacks on two enemy U-boats during one patrol and a reputation as a "thoroughly reliable captain of aircraft" were cited in the award of the D.F.C. to Flt. Lt. A. Brent Howell, Bolsevain, Man. Damage and casualties were inflicted on the submarines.

Five Persons Rescued From Top Floor Of 5-Storey Building

Toronto, July 29 (CP)—Five persons were rescued Wednesday from the top floor of the downtown fireplace showroom of Chanticleer Limited when snapped up a fire which caused $10,000 damage to the structure and $4,500 damage to contents.

Another fire, believed to have started from a lighted cigarette, at the Frankel Metal Company in East Toronto caused $1,500 damage to the building and $1,000 damage to contents. The company was doing war work and officials said the blaze will cause a setback.

Whitehall Notebook

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, July 29 (CP) — An argument that probably would be repeated similarly in Canada each year should the Defence of Canada Regulations be subject to annual renewal, has ended with extension of the Emergency Powers Act in Britain for another year.

The Emergency Powers Act, similar to the Defence of Canada Regulations in that it provides for detention without trial of persons considered by the government to be taking part in activities prejudicial to the war effort, got its most effective defence from Home Secretary Morrison's statement that there are potential Quislings in Britain who must be suppressed.

"Parliament and the people conferred these powers to prevent our having our throats cut, or being blown up," he said. "I have let some people out from time to time are very doubtful customers, but who I think for mental or other reasons are not likely to be dangerous. But I would like to put my hand on my heart and recommend them for employment."

A forecast that a vast "shared" effort would be asked of Britain will be necessary in the resumption of normal trade after victory has been made by L. S. Amery, the Secretary for India. He said Britain must face the fact that the old staple goods relied on to carry British trade in the past will be manufactured after the war in many other parts of the world, and that Britain must concentrate on newer types of production.

He said India has all the natural resources needed to become an industrial country, however, and that to fulfill a "rich heritage in all patriotic Indians" from agrarian to industrial economy will involve a diversion in the character of India's import trade.

CABAL AND CABINET

Five of the ministers of Charles II—Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, and Lauderdale—are known in English history as the "Cabal" from the accidental coincidence that the initials of their names spell that word when arranged properly.

Many writers assert that this was the origin of "cabal" in the sense of a secret clique of persons engaged in intrigue.

Such is not the case. "Cabal" was in use long before the reign of Charles II and it was first applied in 1671 to five of his ministers merely as a convenience.

As a matter of fact the five men referred to were not the only members of the famous Cabal in the Privy Council of King Charles.

It is probable however, that the popular attribution added to the secret character of the meaning conveyed by the word.

"Cabal" is a Hebrew word form of "Cabala," which is derived from the verb "qubbalah," meaning reception or tradition.

In ancient times it was applied to the oral tradition handed down from Moses to the Jewish rabbis, and later, during the Middle Ages, it was specifically applied to the pretended traditions of the secret interpretation of the Old Testament.

Gradually it acquired the meaning of any secret, mystic or esoteric doctrine, and was finally extended to a group or fraction engaged in intrigue and secret machination.

The Committee for Foreign Affairs in the reign of Charles II was popularly called, first, the Cabals, and later, the Cabinet.

It is the first and balanced Council which was formed after the Restoration, and which historian John Richard Green, "all real power rested with the Cabals of Clarendon, Southampton, Ormond, Monk, and the two Secretaries; and on Clarendon's fall these were succeeded by Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, and Lauderdale." It was by a curious coincidence that the initials of the latter names formed the word Cabal, which has ever since retained the sinister meaning their unpopularity gave to it."

Calling Tune For The Nazis

General Montgomery, Hero of 8th Army, Says "We're Calling the Tune for Nazis Now"—Leads British in Sicily, Warns That Germans Are Still Powerful

John Gunther, world famous war correspondent and radio commentator, interviewed Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of Britain's marshalls 8th Army, before the general embarked for Sicily. In the following report, cabled from the Milwaukee Journal, Gunther talks about himself and his ideas of warfare.

The most colorful and most aggressive general the war has produced on the European side of the ocean has just given me an hour of friendly conversation. Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander-in-chief of the British 8th Army, talked about himself, his ideas on warfare and his leadership of the remarkable army he helped to create and which he commands with such flair and faith.

We talked in the general's temporary headquarters, then had tea. My first thought was that this was the man who chased Marshal Erwin Rommel from El Alamein to the Mareth Line and beyond, has the greatest, most famous, most piercing blue eyes I've ever seen. I came with a letter of introduction from Wendell Willkie, and Gen. Montgomery asked after him cordially.

Germans Now on Defensive

The general had not heard about or seen Willkie's book, "One World," and he was staggered to learn of its prodigious success and that he was the hero of the first chapter, so to speak. Part of the conversation was what you might call literary. Gen. Montgomery has been asked by various publishers to write the full, true account of the African war; he keeps a complete day by day diary.

"It is safe under lock and key, no one knows where," he added.

I asked the general what his feeling about the war was just now and he replied the main thing to say was that the whole tenor of the war had changed because the Germans were now on the defensive.

"We are calling the tune now, not they," he asserted, "they're good fighters when they have the initiative. They are not so good when the initiative is taken away. But do not underestimate the German army. Don't go wrong on that score. Don't go wrong. They are still strong, very strong."

"What lessons learned from the African battle can be applied to future campaigns?" is asked.

Gen. Montgomery replied, "first, concentrate your forces; second, link your ground and air forces together. That's it. Knit ground and air together. Knit them together absolutely."

Then the general gave a brief retrospect of his victories in Africa. His feeling was that the Germans made a great mistake in not quitting Tunisia and cutting their losses immediately after he pierced the Mareth Line.

Gen. Montgomery likes to personally his army with himself and uses phrases such as "when the enemy attacked me," or "General Dinniegration at the end was caused mostly by the breakdown in communications, he thinks. Marshal Rommel, he said, made one bad mistake in mid-January by standing at Beurat when a stand at Tarhuna-Homs would have been much more to Gen. Montgomery's disadvantage.

"How I'd like to talk with Rommel after the war is over," the general exclaimed. "How interesting it would be to trace over the maps and ask Rommel why he had done thus and so, and tell him why I'd done what I did."

Can't Fight if You're Not Fit

When Italian Marshal Messe surrendered, Gen. Montgomery asked Messe if he had expected him to make his big attack in the darkness instead of waiting 14 days for the full moon. Montgomery had never attacked in complete darkness before.

Marshal Messe replied, "General I expected you to wait those 14 days until you did have a full moon." In recollection of this Montgomery grinned.

Gen. Montgomery has the greatest respect for Rommel and thought he might have been ill during the last part of the campaign. "You can't fight if you're not fit," he said.

I asked the general how he himself kept fit. He replied he refused absolutely to do any work after dinner and always went to bed at 9:30, then thought or read in bed. As is well known, the general does not drink or smoke. He explained this was not caused by any moral attitude. He simply doesn't like the taste of alcohol or tobacco. He refuses to let anybody smoke near him, and he seemed considerably astonished when I mentioned this was an attribute he shared with Adolf Hitler.

I asked the general how he had forged the 8th Army into such a wonderful fighting machine.

"An army is a tool, a weapon," he replied, "it must be tempered, sharpened and then welded. The major point is its morale, which is built on confidence. Troops like their commanders when they are winning." He added, with a dry laugh, "So do politicians."

Gen. Montgomery always circulates among his troops, talks to them freely, and tells them the details of the battle to come. They know everything that is humanly possible has been done to insure victory before the fight begins. As a result their attitude toward Gen. Montgomery is little short of idolatrous.

The general told me he had two rules which govern his own behaviour. First, never worry; second, never bother with details. Details should be left to the staff, he said; that is what a staff is for.

Must Refuse to Be Rushed

As to an army his rules number three: First, no failure can be connived or tolerated. Too late that the 8th Army could fail in any operation is simply held out of the question. Since no failure is admissible, the scope of operations must be limited to what is possible and practicable. Second, the general in command must not be pushed into anything too grandiose for the means at his disposal. Third, the general must refuse to be rushed. He must be allowed to pick his own time. No matter what the pressure may be, and sometimes it is considerable, he must set himself against any premature operation.

Gen. Montgomery asked me if I had heard of the American magazine called—he thumbed—Life. I said yes, it was quite well known. He mentioned a recent Life cover and article showing pretty girls wearing berets named for him. He laughed and said that several Americans had asked him to send them his beret as a memento. "But I have only two," he added.

The little man, as some of his officers call him affectionately, is known as a stickler. But when he meets groups of privates in the field they do not salute. They wave and cheer when they see him pass.

WEDDINGS

BRADSHAW—WHITTAKER

St. Michael's Church was the scene of an interesting wedding on Wednesday morning, at eleven o'clock, when Pte. Dorothy Whittaker, C.W.A.C., Kingston, and Sgt. Jack Bradshaw, R.C.A.F., Belleville, were united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. P. Nicholson.

The attendants were Miss Hilda Callaghan, Point Anne, and Mr. John Pindlar, Trenton.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served to the immediate relatives and friends at the Hotel Quinte.

The popular young couple left for a short honeymoon to Beaver Lake.

RAFOE—ROE

Frankford—The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Roe, Frankford, was the scene of a happy occasion on Saturday, July 24, when their daughter, Dorothy Lucile, became the bride of Edwin Charles Robert Dafoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dafoe, Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. H. Lackland in the garden among flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory slipper satin with a fitted length slipper with high Juliet neckline, yoked waist and full skirt. Her long veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower of American Beauty roses and baby's breath. Her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Roe, of the bride's attendant wearing a gown of pale pink taffeta with a fitted waist and bodice. She carried pink carnations and baby's breath. Mr. Kenneth Roe, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, after which the couple left for a honeymoon trip to points west. The bride's travelling costume was of navy blue crepe with white accessories. On their return they will reside in Belleville, where several showers have been given in honor of the bride.

Guests from out of town attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Smith, Miss Shirley Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith of Oshawa.

HICKS—DEFEW

The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Defew, Wellington, was the scene of an interesting wedding on Saturday afternoon, July 17, at 2.30 o'clock, when Gwendolyn Ruth Defew, became the bride of Thomas Edward Hicks, Wellington District High School. Rev. J. A. Wilson, Hamilton, performed the ceremony.

The bride chose a street length dress of white embroidered sheer silk jersey, fashioned on Classic lines, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. She wore a white picture hat. There were no attendants.

Following the ceremony on the lawn, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and other points. They will spend August at the groom's cottage at Port Ryerse and September at the bride's cottage in Caledonia, where both are members of the high school staff.

For travelling the bride donned a pale blue summer suit with navy accessories and a pastel corsage.

Having Tonsils Out Is So Surprising Little Girl Finds

A few years ago a tonsillectomy was a serious operation that sent shivers up and down the spines of hundreds of thousands of boys and girls all over the country. Doctors seemed to take a fiendish glee in the preparations, the laying out of dozens of shining instruments of all size, and shapes, made of cold steel and arranged on a snowy white surface while the patient lay supine upon a hard table, strapped and tied beyond movement awaiting the start of the dreaded operation; medieval torture-chambers had little on these modern chambers of horror in the youthful minds. Today all is changed, gone are the dreadful arrays of instruments, gone are the penitentiaries, the strappings and fastenings of small arms and legs and, glory be, gone are the fears. All these have been replaced by parched oxygen.

To illustrate this case, witness the recent tonsillectomy performed on Georgiana Armstrong, two-and-a-half year-old daughter of Pte.-Sgt. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong, Reside with private room, telephone and all that goes to making a tonsillectomy a veritable holiday, "Miss" Armstrong was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital Tuesday morning for the removal of two pesky tonsils. The telephone caught the eye of the young lady and, conscious of her social obligations, requested her mother, to call her someone on the phone.

"Hello. Is that Theda . . . this is Miss?"

"Where are you?"

"In the hospital."

"What for?"

"My tonsils."

"Is your throat sore?"

"Nope."

"Didn't you have your tonsils out?"

"Nope. It's going to be tonight. Good-bye."

Blissful childish ignorance . . . Nina had lost the plugny things that mortality is heir to knowledge. Will her disappointment be harder to bear than the operation would have been?

New War Styles In Old Britain Make a "Click"

By BARBARA WACE
Associated Press War Writer

London, July 29—(CP)—The war has had one striking effect on women's fashions in Britain. The lower bracket wage groups are becoming more and surely better dressed. Their more prosperous compatriots can no longer look down than they did before rationing started in 1941 are showing signs of wear and tear. And they cannot replace their wardrobes for garment, for they have no more coupons than the poorer sisters, even though they can spend more money on what they can buy.

A two-piece dress and short jacket would take 21 coupons, so to buy it a woman would have to spend all her four-month period's stock. And what would she do for stockings and underwear?

Suits Popular

Suits are becoming more and more popular, for the clever woman realizes that she can make several outfits from one good suit by trying the changes with blouses and sweaters. But a tailored wool suit would take 18 coupons and only leaves only two extra, which will buy neither a pair of full-fashioned silk stockings, which takes three coupons, nor a pair of shoes, which takes five.

But the Board of Trade has done a good job. "Utility" clothes, made from government controlled material are excellent. Sweaters and manufacturers have been designated to make utility wear, being guaranteed regular supplies of materials.

Cheap clothes in North America have always been smart, serviceable and plentiful. Any little government clerk in Ottawa or Washington would turn herself out smartly in inexpensive clothes. They might not look as well as, but they could get by in them at the smartest restaurants for a special date.

Queen's Designer

Before the war, the English girl with a small salary usually had to be content with dull clothes without cut or style. Now, by buying "Utility" clothes she can get smartness; well within the limits of her pocket-book.

Norman Hartnell, who made the clothes worn by the Queen on her visit to Canada and the United States in 1939 is designing for Berkshire. A group of designers, including Molyneux, have undertaken to produce between them a number of models for utility manufacturers. The department stores are selling Molyneux and similar "utility" models for about $10.

SUGAR-STRETCHING RECIPES

Hello Homemakers! You certainly need to keep the lid on sugar these days. With abundance of Ontario fresh fruit ripening, there's the basic consolation of storing fruit for the winter months. You will take any sugar you may have along with the ten pounds allowed for canning. You've any idea of the number of calls we've been getting from mothers with babies at the age when fruit is required three time a day—for cereal, for juice, for fruit.

When fruit is in season, let's serve it often in the fresh state. Here are ways to provide more energy fruit with a bow of fresh berries without using up too much sugar; sweet, slightly blond or bread with Butter Spread; serve sandwiches made with as Berry Shortcakes, Berry Jelly Roll, Fruit Layer Cake, Boston Cream Pie, Graham Gems with Fruit, etc.

Fruits are sweeter served with some of the berries crushed—and their juices are sweeter, too, if ripened about an hour and set to stand an hour or so before serving.

Line loaves, oblong pan with waxed paper, cover with a layer of vanilla wafers. Add 1-3 raspberry mixture. Alternate in this way, finishing with layer of wafers. Toss dough onto lightly floured board and roll to one-eighth inch thick. Cut into rounds with cutter 5 inches in diameter. On half of each round place fresh berries, sprinkled with sugar and flour. Fold pastry over fruit. Pinch to seal seam; moisten edge of dough with milk, and press with fork to cover berries and crimp down edges. Bake on greased baking sheet. Bake on greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350° and continue baking 15 minutes. Yield: 5 turnovers.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. D. asks: Ideas for summer salads?

Answer: Make a lemon syrup: 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup water and 1 lemon rind shavings — 5 minutes. Add juice of 2 lemons. Put into a jar and cover tightly. Store in electric refrigerator. Serve, when ice cold, into a glass, add cracked ice and cold water.

2. You may use this syrup and soda water or left-over fruit juices.

3. Make a chocolate or cocoa syrup: 11 tbsps. cocoa, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1-4 tsp. salt, 1 1-2 cups boiling water. Mix cocoa, sugar and salt together. Add water gradually, stirring constantly. Boil 3 minutes. Cool, pour into jar and store in electric refrigerator. Use 2 or 3 tbsps. to 1 cup cold milk.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Almost All Peptic Ulcer Patients are Now Discharged from the Army

One of the problems facing army medical officers is the recruit who gives a history of indigestion before he enters the army or shortly thereafter.

As in the last war, the largest group entering the army with a history of indigestion are those complaining of indigestion.

In the British Lancet, Dr. William Brockbank reports on a recent study of 831 admissions to a large military hospital in England of which 8% per cent were cases of dyspepsia. Of these, in every 10 were considered to be cases of ulcer of stomach of small intestine (peptic ulcer) as shown by the X-rays and the symptoms of which were typical. Of the latter a great majority of these ulcer patients there was a history of ulcer for many years; in only 2 per cent did the ulcer occur after joining the army.

At the beginning of the war, under the ulcer was causing considerable trouble, the men were returned to duty after hospital treatment. However, this proved to be a mistake as these men were continually returning to hospital for treatment and became a nuisance.

For the duration of the army and for the man himself who could do more good in civilian life in civilian than in military life, these cases were put into three groups. A soldier whose case fails into any one of these groups is recommended for discharge from the army as unfit for military service

1. Chronic cases with a proved history of symptoms showing ulcer, together with symptoms now present such as poor nutrition, thin blood and tenderness of abdomen.

2. Cases showing active ulcer symptoms in stomach and intestine by X-rays with a past history of operation for perforation of an ulcer.

3. Cases with a past history of ulcer symptoms and getting the bird (noun) days. Thousands upon untold thousands of noisy starlings are filling the village's lens-lined streets and surrounding their reluctant audience.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

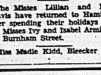
Dos And Don'ts For Summertime Weddings

Dear Mr. Beeckman:

My son, who is an Army officer, is to be married soon. At first the bride planned to have a big formal wedding, but because of the heat at this time of year, and also to maintain the simplicity she wished for her wedding, she has now decided to have the wedding in the home at about five-thirty or six o'clock. Should the men in the attendants will wear their officer uniforms.

Would a sheer garden-party type of frock be correct for me to wear? What length? What type of clothes should my husband wear?

H. R.



For this type of wedding at this time of day in this season, a sheer garden-party type of frock would be perfect. Whether your frock should be long or street-length depends on what the bride's mother is to wear. . . you should consult with her as to her plans. Your husband could appropriately wear a white linen (or flannel or Palm Beach cloth) suit, or the dark blue coat and white or very dark gray flannel trousers. As the day is hot, as six or after, he might wear tuxedo trousers and white dinner jacket.

About Evening Wedding

Rev. Rawson Addresses Prog. Con. Rally In Interests of R.D. Arnott

Trenton — (Special) — A Conservative Rally was held in Governor Simcoe Park on Tuesday night with a large crowd attending. Speaker for the occasion was Rev. Rawson of Hamilton who delivered a most impressive address stressing the point that the Drew platform was definitely best for the country and quite prepared to take care of the boys returning from this conflict as Mr. Drew was himself a soldier and vitally interested in the welfare of the armed forces. He was loudly cheered these and time again as he brought his points home to his listeners, many of whom were returned by the last Great War. These veterans were particularly delighted with the address as the Rev. Rawson was a soldier in the Great War himself. Chairman for the evening was W. E. Hewson, and other speakers included George Stokes, M. P. of Belleville, W. R. Ireland, ex-M.P.P. and the Candidate, Richard Arnott, K. C., who made a stirring address and was well received by the crowd. Given Commissioner.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Galsforth, Spring St., have received word that their son Robert Fred Galsforth, has received his commission to date from Dewsville last.

P.O. Galsforth will be remembered as having been forced down in dense woodland on Vancouver Island last March and wandering alone for several days before being rescued. In the meantime his brother-in-law, the former Miss Gertrude Blaschke had arrived in Vancouver and, along with Mr. Galsforth, Sr., who flew out on hearing of his son's accident, waited anxiously for safe return of her fiance.

At that time P.O. Galsforth was stationed at Boundary Bay, B. C., but has since been transferred to Tofino, a northern port on the Vancouver Island.

Police Court

Trenton — Twenty-nine cases were before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton Police Court Tuesday with S. Gordon Robertson, Assistant Crown Attorney, prosecuting.

Robert Webb was before the court for breech of the Milita Act, failing to attend drill. Robert had a good excuse and he had an infected foot and the charge was dismissed.

Frank A. Aquino, E. Aquino, and L. Gould failing to produce Motorist Registration Certificates paid $6.50 each.

BADOGLIO MAY BE COMPELLED TO SUE FOR PEACE

Destiny of Country May be Wrenched From New Premier

CRITICAL SITUATION

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, July 29—(AP)— Reports of revolts spreading through Italy suggested today the possibility the country's destiny may be wrenched from the hands of Premier Pietro Badoglio and that he may be compelled to sue for an immediate peace.

While Badoglio's position in the continued situation was not entirely clear, there were indications he might be trying to find out if an attempt to get German troops out of Italy, Greece and perhaps Rumania back from the Balkans before appealing to the Allies for an armistice.

There have been repeated reports from Switzerland and Berlin that Italian garrisons have been withdrawn out of the Balkan countries and dispatches from Madrid last week told of an outbreak of fighting in northern Italy between German and Italian troops, who apparently were trying to prevent the Nazis from taking over the Po River valley.

Hitler has been represented as taking the stand that any defence of Italy must be made on the Po River.

Report 36-Nazi Divisions Sent From France.

The Madrid dispatches said the fighting broke out after the Germans were reported to have sent 10 divisions from France in an apparent effort to take over the Po line. Reports at the Swedish capital said that regular troops, aided by civilian and railwaymen turned out to help Italians to lock up many of the Nazi forces north of Milan and Turin.

Italy's new government was said to be in a delicate position, trying to determine actual German intentions — whether the troops actually are to defend Southern Italy or pull a double cross in the north.

Critical Situation

Whatever the significance of these reports there seemed no doubt Badoglio was facing a critical situation, though the Rome radio continued to insist that it had the new government's support to continue the war.

Only a few hours before President Roosevelt delivered the address last night in which he asked the United Nations will be satisfied with nothing less than Italy's unconditional surrender, a Rome radio commentator declared:

"Whatever Roosevelt says will not influence the Italian people in the least."

The London Press, meanwhile, published a report of the formal dissolution of the Fascist Party in Italy and it would not alter Allied attitude.

Cannot Kill System

"Fascism may have been proclaimed dead but the system cannot be killed by the mere pulling down of emblems," said the Daily Mail, and warned there was "danger of a calm and realistic approach to the Italian question being revamped in a wave of sentimentality."

"Those who always try to separate the Italian from the German as if they were distinct races are making the same with the Fascists and Italians," the paper added, "and should keep clearly in our minds that we are still at war with Italy."

The Times emphasized "the people should remember" that Fascism was brought down not by Badoglio but by the overwhelming impact of Allied arms.

The Marry-Go-Round

TURNING THE DIAL

Never judge a man by appearances. She may not be nearly as funny as she looks in one of those high-pitched "baby-doll" falls over the nose.

The honeymoon is over when he grows restless in the middle of the latest heart-throb (like "As Time Goes By") and switches the dial to the football game.

An optimist is a man who trusts a woman with his heart-secrets or his business affairs, then goes off to work and leaves her at home, where there is a telephone within easy reach.

No matter how dead a man's heart may be, it can always be recharged by any personable girl who knows how to turn on the electric current of his vanity.

If your husband gets that restless feeling around this time of year, don't conclude that he is looking for a new heart-interest. What he needs is probably a fishing trip by a good dose of something for his liver, though he himself may think it's "romance."

Some girls go to a man's head like a zombie. Others are more like a mallet mix; they may not be so pretty but they get results.

Men are achieving wonderful things in the World today; but no man has ever accomplished the feat of getting 140 pounds of antediluvian into a misses-size uniform — and then looking perfect at ease.

When a husband starts reading a rest-cure, it gives her quite a bit to discover how much harder it is to neglect a husband with a healthy appetite than it was to neglect an office job.

Recipe for success in love: Never call a man up before marriage — and never call him down after marriage.

Looks for Increase In Tourist Trade

Port Dover, July 29 — (CP) — Attorney General Eric Cross, candidate for Haldimand-Norfolk, declared last night at a mass meeting here that he looked for a considerable increase in tourist business, because of the confidence that highway development and extension of provincial park properties would greatly increase tourist traffic from the U. S. in post-war years. "I look for great development in the Lake Shore districts," he said, "we have some of the greatest tourist assets in Southern Ontario...

FARMER VOTES FOR BEAVER

Dundalk, July 28 — (CP) Which is the busier — the beaver or the bee? It's an epithet applied to both. Joseph Lougheed, through whose property district farm, a tributary of the Mad River runs—and overruns. It would doubtless vote for the beaver. Reason: members of the beaver family have constructed a 90-foot dam, flooding more than 40 acres of land to a depth of two or three feet.

Trapani Ghost Town of Sicily

(By HAROLD V. BOYLE)

(A.P. War Correspondent)

Trapani, Sicily, July 24 (Delayed) (AP)—Bombed Trapani is the ghost town of all Sicily.

Only American soldiers and a few remaining residents more dryly than the all but deserted streets of this fourth largest city on the island. In certain sections the town there is comparatively little damage, but in the port area the docks are being used as a supply centre during its fight for Sicily and Italian campaigns are heavily battered.

Allied air power made a shambles of the piers and warehouses and spars of sunken ships mark another graveyard for the seas lashing Axis merchant marine.

Trapani's airfield, the big fall Pts. Joseph Haymer, of Chicago, said: "The Italians had built no dugout cover or artillery fire. An hour or two of shelling was all it took. The troops just walked on in after that. The only resistance was little machine and artillery fire. . . The Italians came out in droves to give us, and I heard we took 10,000 prisoners in that area."

Inside Trapani the airport adjoining the road to Palermo had been literally pounded apart by Allied raiders who for weeks had made it one of their principal targets.

Canadian Airmen Arrive Home

An East Coast Canadian Port, July 29—(CP)—A large group of Canadian airmen arrived in this port recently from overseas, repatriated for medical reasons, or instructional tasks and for further training. They were accompanied by a small detachment of Canadian soldiers.

The Army men said they missed out on the Sicilian invasion by a matter of hours, some of their own regiments and corps being among those now taking part in the Mediterranean battle.

Also included were R. A. F. personnel, here for training purposes, Australian and New Zealand airmen and about 300 English merchant seamen.

Two ground crew members back to take flying courses were Sgt. Russell Elliott of Peterborough, Ont. and Cpl. Ray Lauzon, Windsor, Ont.

SEARCH FOR ESCAPED CONVICT

Kingston, July 29—(CP)— Police and guards from Kingston penitentiary continued their search today for Henry Jensen, 27, who escaped yesterday while helping to construct a cabin on the farm.

Officials said Jensen, sentenced at Hamilton last April to two years for assault with intent to commit robbery, got away by climbing a 12-foot wire fence which surrounds the farm.

The new fence is being built to permit enlargement of the prison enclosure.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and ma said, Benny, William, I mean really, some women just go through life taking an unfair advantage when every one pressent is not in the best of health.

I don't know what you mean, pop said, and ma said, It's positively laughable the way she's spending all her time and driving back and 4th from the dentist's office.

Do you mean it's too late now to have them straightened at her age? pop said, and ma said, Why no, not at all, the treatment is showing some effect already as a matter of fact. But even supposing she got the teeth absolutely straight at a great expense of time and money, what good will it do her? I mean every body that knows her, just from unconscious force of habit, will still continue to remember her looking just like a rabbit. I assure you, William, if she held a lettuce leaf in her mouth the illusion would be perfect. That's what makes the whole point of the thing even more conspicuously ridiculous.

What point of what thing, for Pete's sake? pop said, and ma said, Dont you understand, she's going through the whole school just as a typical underhand excuse to get a letter from her father to the effect tioning board will give her exter gas tickets.

But yes gods they probably only give her enough exter gas to get to the dentist's and back, pop said, and ma said, I dont care, the principal is the same, she just had to have more gas than the rest of us so she chose one of her roundabout ways to take a sneaking advantage.

It's a womens world, pop said. Saying it from in back of the sporting page.

Who Wrestles Whom? Morgan Wins Again But Not Until Ring Complications Flare

Both Participants in Main Bout Belt Poor Referee at Every Opportunity

GOOD PRELIMS

Now let's see — was it Morgan versus Monahan?

Or was it Monahan versus Maxwell?

It could have been Morgan versus Maxwell just as well.

Just who was wrestling who at the Hume Arena last night isn't quite clear yet, but one thing is certain — "Tear" Morgan, the Tennessee scrapping Marine, beat "Irish Jerry" Monahan in the long run and a frenzied crowd went home happy over that point.

However, what did mystify the patrons was to see the brilliant and unorthodox Monahan offer his hand in sportsmanship to Morgan after the whilest scenes ever witnessed in the local parket of sport.

At times during the main scrap it was difficult to know whether Referee Bert Maxwell was one of the principals or merely a sparring partner while either of the main boasters gained a much-needed breather to retaliate. Finally Maxwell didn't turn completely from his toros leaving the Toronto official naked from the waist up. Seeing himself so frequently both Morgan and Monahan pugnaciously attacked Maxwell at times until it would appear as though Maxwell thought he was in the wrong business, despite his warnings to be good.

Went Everything Went

Most everything went without too much question as all concerned seemed to be disregarded the rules (?) of wrestling from cover to cover. Or maybe the boys just didn't have the rule book in their travelling bags last night. However, after all was said and done, the two principals alike had plenty to exercise their vocal chords about. Morgan, the popular ex-Marine, triumphed over Irish Jerry Monahan and that's what over 1,500 raving fans went to see, so apparently everybody left happy. Even Monahan, who went so far as to congratulate Morgan and it takes a lot for the book — well, it'll do until something better comes along. However, now Promoter Tunney is faced with the problem of getting one of his troupe to beat the popular Marine and that won't be easy.

Monahan Started Early

Realizing the popularity of Morgan, "Irish Jerry" started early and often to attack the Tennessee Marine in every conceivable manner. In the majority of which isn't in the rule book; Monahan even irked the fans and Referee Maxwell by beating a tattoo on both their noggins but Finally Morgan did manage to hurl Jerry bodily from the ring and as he turned to accept the applause of the frenzied gallery that villain of a Monahan slugged our hero from outside the squared circle and down he went in the most conceivable manner, easy victim of a press.

During the second round, that proved justice will be served. Monahan slugged Maxwell, Morgan punched Monahan, Maxwell warned Monahan, Morgan took a sock at Monahan, Monahan resembled a case of "who's fighting who and for what." Finally, in frustration, Monahan picked Referee Maxwell up bodily and pitched him into the suffering (well, he could have been more seriously hurt) Morgan. That was enough for both Maxwell and Morgan so the referee helped the "Tennessee Mauler" to his feet and then raised his hand in token of victory. Disqualified Monahan. Now "Irish Jerry" didn't take to this very well and remained inside of the ring during the recess and pondered over just how in hell he got into it and planning the possible annihilation of both Maxwell and Morgan upon their return.

Referee's Shirt Torn

Monahan's only effort in the final round was to tear Referee Maxwell's shirt off him, and then Morgan proceeded to jam bits of the tail down Monahan's ugly throat as the patrons howled with delight. The match ended following a series of bouncing flying tackles by Morgan that left poor old "Irish Jerry" wishing he was home with his loving (?) wife and family and a bottle of Scotch a press and a lose. "There ain't no justice," bemoaned Monahan as he nursed his bruises and sores all alone after the brawl. And when we say BRAWL we really mean it. In the meantime, Promoter Frank Tunney is trying to sign John (Killer) Kalan, the Palermo plasterer, to meet Morgan. Morgan. "You'll be sorry, Johnnie".

In the preliminary scrap Doc Pelice of Boston, strangled "Texas Cyclo" Mackey into submission with a powerful headlock after Bishop had purposely tried to tear Pelice's arm off for all intent and purpose of tearing the head off the body. "What goes on here," thought Leo Numa, of Seattle, when his second stroke of encouragement from the fans in his semi-final bout with Captain Little London Tuesday. Once Leo played cowboy with the Greek and mounted him in the 'ride 'em cowboy style', but this didn't work as Numa tried a bulldozer attack on Leo. The boys put on what appeared a short and fast slapping contest before Numa finally won with a reverse body slam. Next, Violin' Great grandparents fell back in Greece. All in all it was a great night of fun and frivolity, but no doubt the boys will guide a magician with more tricks of the trade next Wednesday night.

Ottawa (CP)—In a field of almost 120 contestants, Emile Rivard of Montreal Rosemere Golf Club, secured a 78 to win the Province of Quebec Field Day at Rivermead yesterday, one stroke ahead of Jean Ouellette of Rivermead, former Ottawa and Quebec Junior Champion.

DEACON LASSIES STAY IN RUNNING FOR LOOP TITLE

Defeat American Optical Girls 5-4 in Well-Played Contest

GOOD FIELDING

Deacon Shirt stayed in the running for a play-off spot in the Ladies Softball League and moved into fifth place by beating the Optical ladies 5 to 4 in the closest contested game of the season so far. The Armouries last evening. The game was one of the scheduled schedule but Deacons play Bell-Sargent a postponed game on Bell Field, right upon which considerable bears in the final league standing.

The pitchers were on top of the batting most of the evening with only four extra base clouts being registered collectively. Deacons took the lead with a single run scored by Joye Woodhouse in the second. Optical evened matters in the top half of the third, when Ev Reid scored. Deacons forged well to the fore in the third scoring three runs on hits by "Stevie" Stewart, M. Sword and Jean Cornell. P. Semark and R. Cook scored for Opticals in the fifth to put Jinnie Semark's nine back in the picture, but M. Sword put Deacons in the lead at that stage and scoring on J. Woodhouse's subsequent single to bring the Deacon count to five. I. Semark's sixth inning circuit blow moved Opticals to within one of knotting the count in the sixth, but Deacons rallied to leave two stranded in the last frame, when Jean Cornell made the game's most sensational running catch of I. Semark's foul.

Only One Homer

I. Semark hit the only home run of the game, while pitcher Ev Reid connected for a double for the only Optical extra base hits. M. Sword, Deacon shortstop, collected all of the winners' extra base hits, two doubles and both meant runs. Pitcher "Stevie" Stewart of Deacons had three singles and Joyce Woodhouse two. Miss Stewart walked four, while Miss Reid passed four and struck out as many. Pauline Schrieder started on the hilltop for Deacons with Stewart taking over in the second.

New York, July 29 —(AP)—First baseman Jeff Heath's announcement that the Phillies had a new manager was that Ji. and the rumors rampant in Philadelphia that Branch Rickey would be the new manager of the Phillies.

After letting the idea stew a while, we figure it just the other way—though Rickey and Bill Cox might find it easier to have a special phone for their conversations.

We won't see a man with so much baseball wisdom as Rickey sitting on the bench during the other apparent reason than that he insisted on doing the managing himself and keeping the owner in his place.

The only change necessary to get the Empire City racetrack ready for the harness meeting that starts on Monday is to have the inner rail as a hub rail. . . Empire originally was a harness track but the trotters haven't performed there since 1940. . . Rickey is trying out for Rochester University, come football season. . . Bill Dickey is batting among the Navy and Marine trainees—and a Dodger. . . Ted Williams is the Yale schedule.

Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune: "Johnny Weissmuller, movie actor from Santa Clara, has been rejected by the Army because of a perforated ear drum. Toronto, July 29—(CP)—An era in sport when every trick was good if it worked is recalled by Tommy (Hamilton Spectator) Moore's account of the rivalry between Toronto Argos and Toronto Rowing Club. Years ago, on the eve of a "grudge" match between Argos' Joe Wright, Sr., sent his Argo brother-in-law, Bert Bayly, on a fishing time. Jim Rice, coaching the Rowing Club, asked Wright to row to move the markers. Wright consented and the next evening Rice's crew got away to a good start every time over the 1 1-2-mile trial course. When the time came to bid for the big bullion, Rowing Club supporters got down everything they had—but Argos won by two lengths. It developed afterwards that an impish Argo attache had shortened the trial course by 100 yards—under cover of darkness, of course—just before Rowing Club took its trial spin.

Sissies??

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll was piqued when Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodger boss, referred to sport scribes as the "handmaidens of art." Dictionary definition of handmaiden: "female servant or attendant."

Match Race!

George Irvine, the Vancouver horseman whose fast steeds and sparkling silks stunned Ontario turfites, tells Johnny (Vancouver Province) Lee he may stage a match race against time between Palmero T. and Over Drive. Palmero T. won a handicap at Hamilton and Over Drive cracked a 32-year mark for 3 1-2 furlongs at Woodbine. Irvine says "I think I can name the sprinters in America on five fingers capable of Over Drive's flash (Over Drive) at six furlongs."

Saskatoon fans pushed 167,000 through the turnstiles one Wednesday afternoon recently to establish an all-time record for a baseball game. It's the same everywhere. . . Arrangements have been completed for an outdoor boxing show in Vancouver Aug. 19 featuring Kenny Lindsay, Dominion welterweight Champion of Canada, and Charlie Bagnulo, Toronto featherweight. Efforts are being made to have the winner recognized as the Canadian Featherweight Champion. . . Magnificent, which made Ten to Ace ineligible, will make its Canadian Derby stop in the fall. CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Junior, a seven-year-old, who had been in the country, recently went to visit his grandmother on the farm. Among other things he was fascinated by the tiny, fluffy goslings. Grandma explained to him that when they grew up they weren't goslings any more, but were geese and ganders. Junior thought a minute, then said:

Junior — Well grandma, how do you tell the geese from the ganders?

Grandma (quick on the trigger) —Oh, I just let 'em run and let 'em find out for themselves.

Did You Know . . .

They don't seem to be worrying much about the future of big league hockey in Chicago these days . . . As a matter of fact Bill Tobin, head man of the Black Hawks, thinks the hockey outlook there favorable . . . But maybe Bill hasn't heard of the Cubs and Cardinals baseball team drafting married men up to 30 years of age . . . Have you Aileen Bailey? However, players whom he expects will be available for the start of the season include Earl Seibert, Art Wiley, George Allen, Red Mitchell, on defence, and Mush March, Pete Conacher, Tom Thomas, Polly Dahlstrom, Bob Carse and Doug Bentley up forward . . . Lynn Patrick of the New York Rangers, the Hawks pick like a good young ranger bet to be in the thick of the title fight . . . Reports that Bobo Newsom started the first triple-play club this year with a contract that called for a $5,000 bonus if he were with the club through July 31 are not true . . . That misinformation was spread when Newsom was turned over to the Browns on July 14 . . . Actually the contract between the Dodgers and Bobo provided a straight salary of $15,000 for the season . . . When Newsom was acquired by the Dodgers late last season from the Senators, the Brooklyn club assumed his $21,000 contract . . . Though for the last four years, Sammy Baugh has been one of the highest paid mound artists in either major league.

Softball Sittings.

So it's to be those two old softball rivals again — No. 5 I.T.A. "Flyers" Bellamy and No. 6 Softball finals this year. The Flyers rubbed the Brists' dandruff out in two straight, but had to tend to their knitting to win last night 6-0 and score three in the ninth to make sure. It was a right tidy finale with Bala being error, but the "Bombers" just couldn't collect the run-producing hits off pitcher Kuryluk, the Flyers' fireball artist. Actually the best the winners could do was three runs off Connie Harris in the first eight frames, but skipper Gerald Barrage's Bristol proved "Bombers" Bombers" in the clutch and passed from the picture. The City League finals commence Tuesday night, goodings. Grandma explained to him that when they grew up they weren't goslings any more, but were geese and ganders. Junior thought a minute, then said:

Really Exceptional.

"I've hit a lotta homers in my life, including one in this year's All-Star, but the most thrilled thrill I ever got out of baseball— and that's not seen very important now — was to break a scoreless tie in the thirteenth inning when I was playing for Tucson in the Texas League by hitting over the fence," revealed Vince DiMaggio of the Pittsburgh Pirates."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 126

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme is stymied by two: whenever it is her turn to make a second round bid. If she passes, she is afraid it will be wrong. If she bids, she is afraid it will not be right.

You know better than that. If you are forced to bid, you always have an honest bid to make. You can always pick out the correct bid by following T-A-N; takeout, nadit, no-trump.

Unless it is a jump bid, only a takeout to a new suit forces you to bid again. No other non-jump response is forcing. Neither a non-jump assist nor a non-jump no-trump response.

If you are not forced to bid, you always pass. If you have nothing new to show. If you have something new to show, you select your bid from the T-A-N guide even if you are not forced to bid.

You have this hans:

♠8 3 2 4
♥A Q 9 6
♦K 7 5
♣A 3

You have a biddable heart suit. You have two sure tricks (two aces). You have four high cards (two aces and two kings). And you have five tricks (four high cards and a short suit).

You have just enough for an opening bid of one heart. Not one teeny weeny bit more in anything.

If you are not forced to bid by partner's response, you should pass any bid made in shirtsex.

But if you are forced to bid, you must not pass. In that case, you let T-A-N guide you. Look for an honest takeout. With no takeout, look for an assist. With no takeout by assist, bid no-trump.

If partner responds with a takeout to one spade, you are forced to bid again. With no takeout suit or assist to spades, you second round bid is one no-trump.

Instead of one spade, suppose partner responds with a jump bid to two hearts or with a bid of one no-trump. Neither is forcing. So, your second round bid is one spade.

When you are not forced to bid, wait until you have something.

LESSON NO. 127

There are kibitzers and kibitzers. A kibitzer, you know, is an onlooker at a card game. He gives gratuitous advice. He offers all kinds of unsolicited criticism. He's funny that way.

A master kibitzer is wise. He waits until you make a mistake. Then he reminds you only of what you should have done. That way, he is never wrong.

A dyed-in-the-wool kibitzer walks around the table and sticks his nose into each hand in turn. He tears his hair and makes swooning motions when he thinks you are going to do the wrong thing.

A palooka kibitzer tries to tell you what you should have done. You can offer any kind and insult him freely.

An apprentice kibitzer asks what you should have done. You can assume an air of superiority and ask him to do an errand for you.

An assistant kibitzer seldom disturbs the players. He merely calls a kibitzer's attention to your mistake when the kibitzer has overlooked it while borrowing a cigaret from your partner.

Do not confuse an assistant kibitzer with a helpful kibitzer. An assistant kibitzer spends all his time arguing a kibitzer out of his ideas.

One who keeps saying, "Ha, ha, ha," is known as a laughing kibitzer. He stands in the background and keeps shaking his head while making those clicking noises with his tongue.

To be a good kibitzer you must have the nose of a giraffe, the hids of a rhino, the laugh of a hyena, the politeness of a spider. You do not have to be crazy. But it helps a lot.

To be a good bridge player, however, all you need is Horse Sense Bridge. You can learn that in my daily column. We are now on the subject of second round bids.

You have this hand:

♠K Q 10 6 4
♥9 5
♦J 4 3 2
♣Q 6

Your opening bid with that hand is one diamond. Your partner responds with a bid of one heart, your second round bid is one spade.

With two equal length suits you first bid the higher rank. Thus, by bidding the lower ranking suit first, you tell your partner that is longer than your spade suit.

That's how your partner learns you have at least four spades and at least five diamonds. And without the aid of mirrors.

"Moonlight in Havana"

Romance, comedy, thriller and a brand new Hollywood star team are the ingredients calculated always to attract special favor for Universal's "Moonlight in Havana" opening next to the McCarthy theatre.

Allan Jones, who never fails to win the signpost of movie goers is co-starred with Jane Frazee, vivacious and lovely young actress headliner of many musical successes during the past few seasons. Grouped in the supporting cast are Marjorie Lord, Don Barry, William Frawley and the team of Pyzee and Nixon, favorite dancers of vaudeville and night clubs from coast to coast.

Other dazzling specialities in the picture are contributed by the celebrated Ilgerton Dance Group and the Jivin' Jack and Jill. Vocal and dancing numbers are said to have been cleverly incorporated in the story which focuses its interest on the adventures of a big-league baseball star who becomes involved in a romantic mix-up while doubling as a singer.

As the singing baseball player Jones is declared to have one of the most entertaining roles of his career. Heard in two solos, "I Don't Need Money" and the memorable "I Wonder Whose Kissing Her Now" the popular star is also teamed vocally with Miss Frazee in several new songs written especially for the picture.

Film by Dave Franklin.

"Moonlight in Havana" was directed by Anthony Mann from the original screen play by Oscar Brodney. Charles Pervin was the musical director and the dances were staged by Edward Prinz. The picture was made under the experienced associate producership of Bernard W. Burton. Photography is credited to Charles Van Enger.

"CABIN IN THE SKY"

In M-G-M's fast-moving, prize-package of music, drama, and laughter, "Cabin in The Sky," now playing at the Belle Theatre, Ethel Waters battles valiantly for the soul of Eddie Rochester) Anderson.

Based on the Broadway musical fantasy, the film deals with the struggle between the forces of good and evil for the soul of Little Joe, played by Eddie Anderson. Lucifer Jr. is played by Rex Ingram, well known stage star who enlists the aid of the beautiful temptress Lena Horne to achieve his end. The forces of good represented by Kenneth Spencer, noted concert singer and stage actor, counters your Uncle Joe's faithful and loving wife, depicted by Miss Waters.

Spectacular Sequences

Lena Horne, sensational songstress lately seen in Panama Hattie, is a tempting temptress. She sings the ballad "Honey in the Honeycomb", and does a delightful comic duet with Rochester called "Consequences".

Bright musical moments are provided by the swing members of Duke Ellington and his band and

"The Black Swan"

The master story-teller's most exciting story of the sea, Rafael Sabatini's "The Black Swan," has been translated by Seton Cromwell Fox into a rousing adventure film. Back to retain all the lusty tang of the book, the film looms all the more glorious, in its production way, thanks to the gift of blazing Technicolor.

Starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, the film now showing at the Capitol Theatre features a cast fully equal in magnitude to the dramatic story. Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Anthony Quinn, Laird Cregar, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Anthony Quinn, Edward Ciuzco and hundreds of others.

Rafael Sabatini's best-selling tale is a classic, of course. The book has yet to be written that can match the "The Black Swan" in virility, in the tempestuousness of its narrative, in the breath-take pace of its turbulent action, the fury of its stirring characters.

"Pardon My Gun"

In a gun-roaring round-up of bandits and rhythm, Charley Starrett is back again in his latest, thrill-packed, outdoor adventure drama, "Pardon My Gun," the added action picture now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

Leafs Defeat Jersey City to Remain Six Games in Front

BEARS ALSO WIN

By The Associated Press

Toronto and Newark, the International League's No. 1 and 2 teams prepared for their weekend crucial series yesterday by shutting out their opponents, the Leafs needing 18 innings to blank the Jersey Giants, 1-0, but the Bears romping off with an easy 8-0 verdict over Buffalo in a morning game.

The clubs aren't scheduled for today but they open their final series of the year on Jersey soil Friday, follow with another night game on Saturday and close their present series with a twin bill Sunday.

Right now the Leafs have a five game spread over the Bears and the Newarks have no chance of moving out from during the coming fray but the Meyermen are hoping for three victories in the series and a grasp on first place when they leave their home ground on Aug. 8.

While the Leafs are at Newark, Pasmic Friend of Frankie Zak will honor the Toronto shortstop.

Scoring in the Toronto-Jersey City game last night was the absolute minimum for the first 10 innings, but in the 11th Jimmy Bilpido found Ken Trinkle for a single, Lee Handley was walked and catcher Dewey Williams doubled for the decisive run.

In the circuit's only other game, Montreal walloped off with a 12-3 decision over Baltimore behind Wes Flowers' steady hurling, although the club was helped by five Baltimore errors.

Jockeys at Detroit Track Stand Behind Suspended Rider

(By The Canadian Press)

Because Johnny Adams, leading rider of the United States turf, had been set down for 25 days for failing to fulfil an alleged contract to ride at Detroit fair grounds, the jockeys at the track talked of staging a strike yesterday.

In a body, the riders waited on William J. Dowling, Michigan Racing Commissioner, to assert they looked upon the punishment to Adams as unfair. Owen Switzer of the Jockeys' Guild told Dowling that 13 jockeys were prepared to strike but the State official persuaded them to take part in the day's card.

Dowling explained that while that no injustice would be imposed and intimated that Adams' suspension would be reduced.

The Jockeys' Guild took the view that Adams had a verbal understanding with Earl H. Sievart, whose horse he did not ride at the fair grounds last Saturday, that he would go to Chicago to race in the Arlington classic. The outcome of discussions with Commissioner Dowling was an understanding that the matter would be further discussed.

One of the most widely-known authorities of the Lawn Bowling pastime, Lt.-Comdr. R. C. Hart of the Faculty of the University of Western Ontario, London, yesterday was elected president of the Western Ontario Lawn Bowling Association in conjunction with the tournament which attracted it bowlers to the Forest City.

When the Hamilton Jockey Club swung into action 50 years ago, the president of what was called the Track Association was the late William Hendrie. In the first three-day meeting, chief rivalry developed between the Seagram and Hendrie Stables. Next Saturday the Club opens its 50th annual meet with the $6,000 Jubilee handicap as the feature.

Driven by Morley McDonald, Miller Brooks, fast-stepping pacer of the J. C. Bell stable, established a half-mile track record of 1:33 1-4 in the free-for-all trotting feature at Listowel yesterday. The old record of 1:36 was made many years ago by Tommy Dillard.

Winning by such a margin in the first heat of the $1,500 stake that he was barred from the Mutuels on the next start, Phonograph, three-year old owned by Joseph Burke of Plainfield, N.J., and driven by Tom Berry, completed the field rolling day in the harness meet at Old Orchard, Me. Nutcracker was a poor second.

According to the Connecticut Athletic Commission, Secretary Frank Knox of the U.S. Navy has been asked by Chairman A. J. Green of the National Boxing Association to grant leave to Willie Pep from naval duties in order to meet Jackie Callura of Hamilton, unrewarded champion.

Two risks of the London Thistles were unbeaten in the rink competitions which opened the 48th annual tournament at London yesterday on the greens of the London Bowling and Rowing Club. Peter D. McCallum's four — Pete Pres. Trophy with a plus 24 while Frank C. Wilson's rink took the Labatt silverware with plus 22.

On trial at Detroit for alleged violation of the Service of Supply, Lieut. Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings declared on the stand that his work at a Detroit shipyard consisted of picking up blueprints and chauffeuring customers but that he worked at a machine until the hockey season started.

FLYERS NOW MEET RELIANCE SQUAD IN CITY FINALS

Earn Right by Defeating Bristols in Second Game of Semi-Finals

SCORE IS 6-0

Exactly one hour after the 'umps' had announced "play ball", the No. 5 I.T.S. "Flyers" had earned the right to meet the Reliance No. 6 squad in the finals of the O.A.S.A. city playdowns, by defeating the Bristol "Bombers" in their second game of the semi-final series by a score of 6-0 behind the six-hit hurling of Bill Kuryluk. The Reliance and the "Flyers" will meet in a four out of seven series, the first game to be played on Tuesday night and the second contest on Thursday. This should be one of the finest softball series ever played in this city.

On Wednesday night the teams played the fastest game, that has been contested this year. They rushed through nine innings in an hour flat and everything was injected to make it a perfect evening of sport. Both teams played almost errorless ball with both pitchers allowing the same number of bingles. It was a real hurling duel between Kuryluk and Harris with the "Flyers" giving better support to their hurler, when in the clutch. A walk and two doubles in the second inning one was away sent the "Flyers" into the lead and they never looked back. They added another in the fourth on an error and a walk and a long fly and to cinch the pastime, Gignac blasted a homer in the ninth and before Harris could put the fire out Archie Green's squad entered two more on a walk, an error and a double and the game and series was in the bag.

Only One Opportunity

The Bristol club only had one real opportunity to make the game close when in the eighth they secured two singles in a row but that rashly was soon squashed with a lightning double play and a ball hit to short. The Bristol crew were not undone in this respect as Pittsford started a double play by taking one of his best runs and doubling the runner at first. Kuryluk struck out the next did not issue a walk, while Harris whiffed four but his control was not so good as he walked four, Muldoon, Green and Muldoon each hit doubles and Gignac socked a homer and it was all of that, while the Bristol only garnered one extra base hit and that being a double by Latchford. Kiser led his team in hitting getting two for four, while Gignac and Mullins led their team in the hitting department. The line-ups:

Owner of Phils Apologizes to Harris but Dismissal Stands

YANKEES BEATEN

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Before the whole thing gets out of hand, this is a plea to William D. (I used to play for Yale) Cox and his Phoolish Phillies to please leave Brooklyn with its Brooklyn accent.

Things have been going wacky lately, what with the Dodgers dumped into third place in the National League yesterday. First there was the series of player deals cooked up early this year by William and Branch the reverend Rickey. Then the Phils fired Bucky Harris and took their new manager, Flatbush's own Freddie (fat and 42 today) Fitzsimmons, off the Dodger grid-dials.

And last night, the Phils gave it the final humiliating touch by even borrowing the Flatbush idea of a player strike, a stunt that took the play practically completely away from baseball's war relief day which saw eight games produce an all-time attendance of 1,390,733.35, along with an appearance of Babe Ruth as manager and pinch-hitter.

This time, the Phils — 24 of 'em — signed a petition that their would strike unless Cox reinstated Harris as manager and gave him a chance to resign.

Apologized to Harris

Faced with a walk-out of practically all his able-bodied hired hands, Cox apologized to Harris before the entire club for "an unfortunate incident." He told Bucky the dismissal "is not intended to reflect in any way on your ability as a baseball manager" . . . which left you wondering just what Bucky was fired for, then.

Anyway, his apology apparently satisfied one and all, because the Phils went out and made Flatbush mont' debut as manager a merry one by clouting the Cardinals 6-4, to snap St. Louis' winning streak at 11 and climb back into sixth place temporarily.

The standings in both leagues generally got a tossing around. Pittsburgh Pirates climbed into second place by beating the New York Giants 8-3. The Bums were clubbed twice by Chicago, 5-7 and 4-2. The Boston-Cincinnati game was postponed.

Whip Yanks Easy

After a four-run first inning, it was easy for Cleveland to whip the New York Yankees 6-2. Then the Tribe and Detroit combined under Rush's managing to take an 11-0 whipping at the hands of the North Carolina Pre-Flight Cloudbusters, during which the Babe batted at of the pinch hitter and drew a walk.

The Tribe's victory, plus a double defeat for Detroit and Chicago's win over Washington left a three-way second place tie in the American League among the Indians, White Sox and Tigers. Claude Judd served up a five-hitter to give the Boston Red Sox a 4-1 opener decision over the Tigers and a four-run spree in the eighth left the Sox with a 6-4 nightcap triumph. In Washington the White Sox landscaped 21 hits around the landscape for a 13-7 victory. St. Louis Browns belted the Athletics 5-1.

The Limestone City "mixty clickers" took home the New Queens Hotel Trophy and the Tip Top Cup emblematic to the major honors of the day. They also added mixed prizes for good measure. Belleville bowlers did come through with four of the day's eight winners.

Forty-four rinks of mixed doubles from throughout District No. 15 of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association competed in the annual Belleville mixed doubles, there being 22 teams from Belleville, six from Kingston, six from Campbellford, four from Stirling and a lone Desoronto entry.

The Queens Hotel Trophy and principal honors were won by the Kingston pair of Mrs. Moonie and James Little with a score of 44 for three games high. The runners up and winners of the Tip Top Cup was another Kingston team of Mr. and Mrs. R. Riley with a score of 42, being second in three games high.

Third in this group was the Belleville team of Mrs. Irene Ward and H. C. Argue with a score of 40, while the Stirling team of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Whitty took fourth prize in the three game high count with a score not lost in the draw to the Belleville couple.

The Kingston bowlers annexed fifth other honors by taking the fifth prize for three games high with the team of Mr. and Mrs. M. Gault scored a 38 count.

Belleville Pair Sixth

However, the remainder of the day's honors and prizes went to Belleville teams as Mr. Fred Harper and Mrs. Gertrude Wilkin teamed up to win the sixth honors in the three games high with a score of 36. In the two high bracket Mr. and Mrs. Doug Row emerged winners, while in the one game high it was Mr. and Mrs. J. Rutherford of Belleville with a score of 45, who won top honors.

At the conclusion of the tournament, that lasted well into the night, President Cliff Argue, of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, personally assisted in the presentation of the prizes won by the various visiting teams and reminded outside clubs of the first annual Belleville Corbin Gold Cup rinks tournament, that is being held in Belleville on Civic Holiday, when the finest trophies and most expensive list of prizes ever offered for lawn bowling competition in Eastern Canada will be sponsored by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club. A total of 64 rinks, consisting of 256 players from all parts of Ontario and Quebec are to compete.

New York, (AP)—Babe Ruth did more than parade before the crowd as field manager of the combined Yankees-Cleveland Indians in the Red Cross benefit tilt yesterday which the Ruthians lost to the North Carolina Naval Air Cadets 11-5. Herman went to bat in the sixth, drew a base-on-balls, got as far as second, then called for a pinch-runner.

Los Angeles, (AP)—Henry Armstrong, former three-way ruler champ, is hot on the comeback trail, Promoter Hal Pat announced the West Coast negro welterweight had signed to fight 15 rounds here Aug. 16 against Beau Jack, Pritzie Zivic or Slugger White.

CANDIDATES NOMINATED IN HASTINGS RIDINGS

West Hastings

Col. R. Vanderwater

Liberal

Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater is the son of Mr. Charles Vanderwater and of the late Mrs. Vanderwater of the sixth concession of the township of Sidney. He is a descendant of one of the first pioneer families in this district, the deed to his father's farm having been received from the Crown in 1796.

Mr. Daniel Vanderwater, his grandfather, surveyed the first road between Stirling and Belleville. This road, constructed of solid planking, the timber being original pine cut from the Vanderwater property. His grandfather also surveyed the first road between Port William and Port Arthur.

Col. Vanderwater attended Marlbill School, Stirling High School and Albert College. His hobbies have always been those pertaining to the militia and agricultural matters.

In 1931 he married Aileen O'Hara, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard O'Hara of Madoc. They have three daughters, Alison, Margaret and Glenna.

Col. Vanderwater has always been interested in municipal affairs and has been a champion of the agricultural industry. He is an ex-officio member of Sidney township, and an ex-Warden of Hastings. He has been for two years chairman of the County War Production Board and a member of the Provincial Rehabilitation Post-war Committee which is a sub-committee of the Federal committee.

Joins Regiment While Young

When very young, Roscoe Vanderwater joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and at the age of 19 he received his commission. Capt. Vanderwater was ready on the call of duty on August 4th, 1914, and on the day after, Britain declared war on Germany he offered his services to his King and Empire.

The fall and winter of 1914 he spent in Belleville with "B" Company of the 39th Battalion, which left for overseas in the spring of 1915. Waiting in England to be sent to France proved tiresome and he appealed to his O.C. for transfer to the Continent, but was refused and then appealed to the late Sir Sam Hughes, his appeal was considered favorably and he was transferred to the 2nd Battalion on service in France.

He was promoted to second in command and was continuous service at the front. In the summer of 1918 the officer commanding was wounded and Major Vanderwater was acting O.C. until the Armistice on November 11th, 1918, and directed his troops brilliantly.

Sir Arthur Currie offered him a post on his personal staff but Major Vanderwater declined in order to stay with his men.

Returned Soldiers Active in Action

Major Vanderwater was awarded the D.S.O. and received the decoration from His Majesty King George Fifth at an investiture at Buckingham Palace on November 14, 1916. He was mentioned in dispatches twice, on November 13th, 1916 and on March 18th, 1917.

After the armistice the Second Battalion was chosen to enter Germany by way of the city of Cologne. The vanguard, commanded by Major Vanderwater entered Germany at 8.30 a.m. By virtue of circumstances he was made chief of the canadian officer to enter Germany after the armistice and the battalion was discharged April 19, 1919.

He was later promoted to lieutenant-colonel and became O.C. of the local Argyll Light Infantry. Promoted full colonel he became brigadier of the 7th. Infantry Brigade District No. 3 for three years.

Offered Services In Present War

In 1939 before and after the World War No. 2 was declared, he offered his services to the Empire for any form of service abroad in any rank. Because of being slightly over age his offer was not accepted. He has since that time been busily engaged on his farm near Foxboro and actively participated in the four War and Victory Loans. He has been actively engaged in patriotic work of the city and county, and through his efforts this year airmen at local stations were made available to assist in harvest operations. He is secretary of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture and Hastings County director of the Bay of Quinte Fire Insurance Co.

Richard D. Arnott

Prog. Conservative

Richard D. Arnott, K.C., Progressive Conservative candidate in the riding of West Hastings, was born in Belleville, June 20th, 1904, son of Ida M. and the late Richard Arnott.

He attended Belleville Public Schools and graduated with honors in the Governor General's medal. At the Belleville High School he had a fine record and in that course passed his matriculation.

In his early years he was actively engaged in all forms of athletics.

Deciding to enter upon the career in the law, he was articled to the late F. J. Butler, K.C., as a law student. In the year 1924 he entered Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto, and was called to the bar in the year 1927. In the same year he joined the well known law firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott.

While busily engaged in the practice of law, Mr. Arnott was a student of local municipal problems and in the year 1933 was elected a member of the city council as an alderman, the following year he was again a member of council and in 1937 he became mayor

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price controls and regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ontario:

Q. — I am of the opinion that our landlord is charging me more for our rent at present than he is legally entitled to charge. Is there any way in which this can be checked?

A. — The rentals regulations demand that landlords shall furnish both their tenants and the Rentals Administrator with properly-completed copies, of form RC-40 whenever a lease, written or oral, is contracted or the terms of an existing lease are altered. If you have not received such a form from your landlord, you should demand it. The Rentals Administration will then be able to check the rental.

Q. — Is there any way in which I can be of assistance in connection with the distribution of the new ration books?

A. — Most definitely there is. Your Local Ration Board will be very glad to have your services as a volunteer in helping to issue these books.

Q. — I was able to buy some fuelwood recently and the seller did not supply me with an invoice. Is that not an infraction of the regulations?

A. — Yes, the firm or individual supplying fuelwood is required to furnish each of its customers with an invoice giving details of the transaction.

Q. — Our club is planning to hold a picnic. Is there no way in which we can secure special rations to cover our needs?

A. — You must provide rationed goods out of your own coupon allowances, unless the services of a public caterer are obtained to handle your outing.

Italian Troops Being Evacuated In Albania, Greece

Istanbul, July 28 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Reports from the Balkans today indicated Italian troops are being partially evacuated from Albania and Greece.

General evacuation of Italian units from Albania and Greece was believed here to have been one of the main subjects of last week's conference between Mussolini and Hitler, with the latter refusing to consent to a wholesale withdrawal.

Reports from the Balkans said two leading Bulgarian generals had conferred with the Italian commander in Albania within the past five days, crossing speculation that Bulgarian troops would replace Italian forces evacuated from Albania.

Ankara Hears Italy Willing to Negotiate With the Allies

London, July 29 — (CP) — The Ankara radio, in a broadcast heard by Reuters news agency, reported that "news reaching Turkey tonight says the Italian government shows willingness to negotiate with the Allies."

"The main difficulty seems to be the fate of German divisions in Sicily and Southern Italy," the broadcast added.

SHIP-TO-SHIP TRANSFER FOR CANADIAN OFFICER ON WAY TO SICILY

Just before Canadian forces started their assault landings on the beaches of Sicily it became necessary to transfer Major J. M. Robinson of Ottawa from the ship in which he had travelled from Britain to the destroyer H.M.S. Wheatland. This picture was taken as the transfer was made — by means of a "bo'sun's chair" slung on lines between three vessels. Even in calm weather transfer at sea from one ship to another is a hazardous operation. This operation took place while the convoy was steaming in waters where enemy attack was a possibility at any moment. (Canadian Army Overseas Photo).

6th Sidney

6th. Sidney — Gunner George Halsall was surprised on Monday evening when a number of his neighbors and friends gathered at his home to spend an evening with him before he left for the east coast. The evening was spent in community singing, speeches and visiting. The ladies served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rowbeck, of Milford, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Earl Chapman.

WHY NOT HAVE BABY SLEEP
THROUGH NIGHT

YOU and your baby look and sleep. There is a cause and you get relief. Dr. Mrs. B—, Dr. of Winona, Ontario, tell you to let baby suffer through night. Baby would cry and get restless. Then Baby's Own Tablets changed all that. What a difference!

In no sense are these "sleepies" tablets. They contain no opiate or anything like that. They help give refreshing sleep by relieving constipation, sour stomach and other minor troubles. Sweet-tasting, easily given. Tablets bring quick relief from colic, constipation, diarrhoea, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds. Try them. 25 cents.

COLUMN OF THREE'S

"Double, double, toil and trouble." Day by day the Officers' Training Centre at Brockville is educating young men in the art of war, and these soldiers, by the time they have completed their training, are being hardened to take anything that is handed out in future army battle courses.

The commissioned officers, who graduate from Canada's officers' training centres, are among the toughest physical specimens in the Canadian Army at home. It is a hard grind, both mentally and physically, but those who complete the course successfully know they are equipped to lead and gain the respect of the men under their command. This is the reason of the tough training meted out during officers' course. The commissioned officer has to be able to do everything better than his men. He has to be able to do the almost impossible.

Officers' Training centres play a major part in training men for war. One can see the vital necessity of such centres when a veteran fighting man, Col. K. R. Mitchell, has this to say following his return from overseas to take the Fire Control Unit at Brockville:

"If I have to work on this side of the Atlantic, I don't know of any place I'd rather be than here (Brockville). O.T.C.s have the most important mission in the Army in Canada—preparing future officers who are going to lead the Canadian Army into battle."

Many graduates of Brockville O.T.C. are fighting in the European theatre of war, where they are even now leading men into battle.

The soldier, if he is selected as an officer candidate, is transferred from his original training centre or unit to the first army school for future officers. This is known as the Officers' Selection and Appraisal Centre, which, in Eastern Canada, is located at Three Rivers, Que. This centre is designed to muster together Canada's finest officer material.

It is tough going at the OSAC, but those who are critical eye of the army board are given every opportunity of climbing further up the ladder of military success.

The next step for the officer candidate is the Officers' Training Centre where he becomes known as a cadet, and it is here he must be able to give everything he's got in the way of physical endurance and mental alertness.

The training periods at the O.T.C. are broken up roughly into two sections, "Common-to-all Arms" and "Special to Arms." The future officer's education for being begins with weapons, battle drill, junior tactics, map reading, field craft, military law, organization and administration, close combat, training, gas protection, field engineering, driving and maintenance of vehicles, route marching and is topped by a twelve day scheme.

It is when this training is over that the cadet is transferred to the "Special to Arms" course where he concentrates his studies on the particular service to which he will be posted.

When he has received his first pip at graduation at the Brockville centre, the newly commissioned officer is posted to an advanced training centre, where he again concentrates his studies on Artillery, Ordnance, Army Service or Engineers, or whichever arm of service he represents. Here also the grind is steady, both physically and mentally.

A long gruelling series of tests develop in each officer, a fire of leadership and command, a sense of justice and unending sacrifice necessary for the development of a fine officer. It is "double, double, toil and trouble" for the candidate but he knows that when he becomes a full lieutenant at the advanced training centre he has learned in the long hard process of becoming an officer many things which will fit him for the job that has to be done.

Brockville O. T. C. Briefs

On Friday night, preceding graduations, a dance is held at which the members of the graduating class attend with their wives or lady friends.

In the town of Brockville a Citizen's Committee operates the Hospitality House, where the officer candidates may find recreation outside the camp.

Another way in which Brockville is helping to make the officer candidates' stay in that town a pleasant one: A kind citizen has loaned for the duration a bolided spot on the St. Lawrence, just off St. Lawrence Park, named "Treasure Island," and here the cadets enjoy swimming, rowing, or just plain loafing around.

The Brockville training centre has its own little business section which includes a barber's shop, a tailor shop, a dry-cleaning establishment and the "Better Ole" and a snack bar called "The Coffee Shop."

New York, July 28 — (CP) — Dispatches from Madrid last night reported that Virginia Gayda, former editor of Il Giornale d'Italia and a top spokesman for Italy's now-departed Fascist party, had been slain during "revenge hunts" which flared in Italy following Mussolini's resignation.

Wallbridge

Wallbridge — Rev. Mr. Scott, being away on his holidays, the church services on the circuit were taken by Rev. Mr. Barrett of Brighton, who gave a strong Temperance sermon here on Sunday evening.

On Friday evening last a number of friends and neighbors gathered at the Town Hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lonsberry, who were recently married. They were presented with a couple of beautiful chairs and all join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

On Thursday last Mr. Cecil Sine took a number of neighbors to visit the huckleberry rocks. Huckleberries are quite plentiful this year.

Mrs. Jennie Kiernan spent a few days of last week with friends in Frankford.

PO. Roy Woods, Mrs. Woods and little daughter have returned to Ottawa after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sine and other friends here. They were accompanied home by Misses Neta Wood, Gwennie Ketchenson and Doreen Johnston who will spend a few holidays with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barlow, at their cottage at Crowe Lake on Sunday afternoon.

A number from here enjoyed a picnic at Cedardale last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe and Mrs. John Hinchliffe spent the tea hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. Fair, 3rd of Sidney.

Mr. Hudson Ketchenon is having the Hydro installed in his house.

Miss Audrey Johnston is having some holidays with Miss Joan Johnston here.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Moore and son spent his holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Moore. On Sunday they visited Mr. and Mrs. Blake Johnston, Halloway.

Hour of Grace

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER 39

Payne, his white jacket making him seem like a sudden light in the darkness, did not say anything. He did not see Meegan. No one saw her because she had stepped back where the verandan light's did not touch her, but where she could see Clare and Payne with the light full upon their faces. And such different faces, she thought... Payne with such different thoughts caught in an unguarded moment. Payne, erect, distinguished detached. And Clare, her eyes alive and seeking, seeking what and whom? She had everything... And Payne looking as the people on the island expected him to look and Clare looking as she had always looked with that indestructible beauty that made lesser mortals feel that they had always lived in the shadows and that only she had been born to light and grace and success.

When they passed and went into the club house, Meegan continued to stand for a few moments looking after them, feeling as if Clare had walked over her and crushed her leaving her to pick up the broken pieces of herself before walking in the direction of Erica's house. And once again Clare had done nothing to her. She had not even seen her. Yet her body hurt as if Clare had trampled her. Perhaps it was not Clare at all but seeing Payne again and remembering to what Van had reduced himself tonight. . . . Still her body felt as bruised as her mind and as old as her heart. . . .

Erica drove with the uncertainty of one who had not long been driving. She sat tensely, her small hand gripping the wheel, her right foot ever ready to apply the brakes. Restless, her black hair blew back away from her face revealing its thoughtful and infinitely appealing. Her admiration of Erica's looks, Meegan thought, was the natural one of a fair person for a dark one.

Erica said, "I don't talk much when I'm driving. I have to keep my mind on it. You'll have to tell me where you live."

"I'll tell you when we reach town. Isn't there anyone you want to see, anything you want to do while I'm at the apartment?"

Erica gave a negative nod. They were silent for several minutes before she said, "Helen and Roy have bought a farm not far from town. We'll be having the island after Labor Day . . . Helen was raised on a farm."

"Is she pleased about it?"

Erica nodded affirmatively. "It's a big place with a big mortgage on it. They're having it all done over inside. But Helen doesn't fear."

"She's married. Isn't that her husband who comes down on weekends?"

"Yes, that's her husband."

"Is she in love with Toby?"

"I don't know, Erica."

She said simply, "I am. I don't want to be. I've tried my best not to be. I didn't want to take anything of the island with me."

Meegan said, "It's the apartment house on the next corner. This side of the street. You'll come in, won't you?"

Meegan and Erica went into the tall apartment building together. The lobby soft with lamplight and the telephone operator greeted them pleasantly as they walked to the elevator.

Aid to Farmers To Be Continued Nixon Promises

Brockville, July 29 — (CP) — Premier Nixon said last night the Liberal Government's policy of direct aid to the farmer will be continued and extended if his party is returned in the next Wednesday's provincial election.

Addressing a public rally in support of Mrs. Josephine Fulford, party candidate in Leeds riding, Mr. Nixon observed that losses had had been paid Ontario farmers for cheese, bacon, cattle and sugar beets.

The Progressive Conservative party was saying "it's time for a change." There had been three governments in Ontario in the last 10 months and Mr. Nixon said he felt "it is time for a change, to the stable government that is offered by and is the record of the Liberal party throughout the years it has been in power."

He said LL-Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative leader, had been traded around from one constituency to another, like an package being relucted relatives."

He said the Liberal Government will not be "pushed around" by any group or by any newspaper. Mr. Nixon said if the time came when he was forced to go to a "newspaper's office for "the ronto gwspaper's office for "the eedge of the day," he would do so and "tell them what I think of the proviace."

Mr. Nixon said he is opposed to policies of state socialism he said were advocated by the C.C.F. He promised that his government would implement a policy of "fullest co-operation" with the Federal government.

No Invitation Given Drew And Temple to Speak

Toronto, July 29 —(CP)— The official nominations chamber in Toronto High School Sitting was the setting for an argument on precedent Wednesday.

LL-Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative leader and party candidate in High Park, waited nearly an hour with F.D. Wilson, Toronto, C.C.F. candidate, under the impression that officially-nominated candidates would be allowed to speak.

But Returning Officer J. Talbot issued an edict shortly before 11 and afterward, that his action was "purely incorrect," in 1935 the returning officer in High Park rising party leader to allow him to the hall for speeches following nominations.

Fred Crawthorne, agent for Col. Drew, said he "had been informed" custom at nominations of the past that all officially-nominated candidates be on the platform if they wish to speak."

R.C.A.F. Bomber Group Had Large Share in Blasting Hamburg

(By ALAN EANDAL)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group Somewhere in England, July 29 — (CP Cable)—Canadian fliers are in the forefront of the R.A.F.'s continued searing and blasting of the great German port city of Hamburg.

The heavy activity of squadrons of the Canadian group as the Dominion's flying contribution to the operations whipped away for the mass attack on the Nazi naval centre. Seven of two of the squadrons—the Lion and the Goose—were drawn from the are part of the Halifax Force.

Altogether the night's operation saw one hundred R.A.F. bombers, 18 planes, of which two were Canadian.

An official communique issued after intelligence officers had interviewed fliers at various stations said visibility was excellent and that preliminary information "indicated the attack was concentrated and effective."

While the bombers were over Germany, R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing undertook offensive patrols over Northern France, shooting down a Junkers and a number of railway targets.

Great Activity

Returning pilots reported great columns of smoke rising more than 20,000 feet hanging over Hamburg as the bombers began their return after last night's attack, understood to be on practically the same scale as the night's previous present series" when 2,300 tons of explosives were dropped on the city Saturday.

There were some hundreds of bombers engaged in the latest attack. And as R.C.A.F. crews clambered from their four-engined craft here early today they were emphatic Hamburg was blazing even more furiously than after Saturday's attack. In fact, the crews said Hamburg had not had an opportunity to stop smoldering since the series of bombings started.

They reported one great pillar of smoke, believed to be from one of the earlier fires still installations. Fliers said the smoke was so thick it entered their cockpits and almost choked the crews. Other airmen reported they could still see the glow of Hamburg while 200 miles away on their homeward flight, and Mayetic were experiences and incendiaries dropped there.

Opposition Heavier

Some crews arriving over the target early found the opposition lighter. Others said the greatest danger was the possibility of colliding in the air with bombers because whenever they looked to right or left they could see countless other aircraft heading for the target area for the bombing run.

Flying Officer Ian Dunlop, with fires, said Sgt. Mr. McLachlan of Alberta, "Hamburg was blazing like a sunset."

Hamburg was blazing like a paper box," added Sgt. Paul Lafleur of Ottawa. "I could see the wound his white scarf and got rid of his gear in the dressing room.

Flying for Harry Lion Squadron aircraft played hide and seek over a bright fighter for a time around one huge column of smoke. The pilot, Sgt. Ed Cornelius of Vancouver, said, "I tried to spread the smoke to get in undetected but just as we got around a single engined fighter came up underneath.

"As he closed in for the attack we sheered him around the smoke, and the town was just one big fire when we left."

Drew Criticizes "Proxy Voting" At Hamilton

Brantford, July 29 — (CP) — LL-Col. George Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative Leader, last night appealed to electors to pay no heed to the "evil geniuses" of the C.C.F. party who "suggest the old parties have had their day and the new party should have a chance."

Mr. Drew also spoke at Hamilton.

Since earliest history, Mr. Drew said, the plea of state ownership and abolition of monopoly had been used to dupe people into loss of freedom and to establish tyranny. Mussolini had risen as a Socialist, he said, and "Nazi" was the abbreviation for the title of his German national socialist party.

Doctrines calling for abolition of monopolies and nationalization of production led to a centralization of power which only continue by protecting itself from criticism by denial of free speech and finally by use of force, Col. Drew said.

"The Progressive Conservative leader said he did not suggest C.C.F. party leaders or his supporters realized the "dangerous parallel" he said existed between the C.C.F. and those from which produced such disastrous consequences in Europe.

"The simple fact remains that if the C.C.F. party chance had had an opportunity to put their doctrines into effect they would have a power that they could not control."

In Hamilton Col. Drew called upon "every red-blooded elector in Hamilton" to defeat the C.C.F. government that destroyed the British institution of the free ballot." He was addressing an election meeting.

Col. Drew read letters from soldiers to friends in Toronto in which their consideration of their inability to fill in on the proxy forms information regarding the voting constituency required before the proxy vote was valid. He described the proxy system as the "most corrupting and underhand way of stealing the ballot from those who were most entitled to it that could have been conceived."

LIAISON OFFICER

Wally Stanowski Pays Speeding Fine

Cpl. Wally Stanowski, former star defenceman with the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey Club of the N. St. L. and who is now taking a physical training course at the Trenton R. C. A. F. base, paid a speeding fine in today's County Police Court presided over by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd.

Stanowski was apprehended driving his motor car at a speeding rate of 80 miles per hour along the four lane highway immediately east of Belleville over the weekend by Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell, who preferred the charges. The former professional hockey great was charged under the War Measures Act and assessed a total of $22.50, including costs. The fine and costs were paid prior to the opening of the court proceedings which did not make it necessary for Stanowski to appear personally. Traffic Officer Caldwell revealed, however, he was given a speedy race before he finally apprehended the former rookster. Stanowski is a native of Winnipeg.

Charged with speeding under the W. M. A. Clarence Dezel, of Belleville, paid $17.50, including costs. Howard Card was also driving as fast as the former motorist charged. Cpl. Mike Nichols, of the Trenton R. C. A. F., paid $2.50 and costs after he pleaded guilty of failing to stop before entering upon a through highway, while a careless driving count was dismissed against Leonard McDermont of Read. Constable Gordon Chalmers, in the case prompted Magistrate Lloyd in his decision. Charles Hulse, K. C. appeared on behalf of the defendant.

Several other cases were enlarged and a disorderly conduct charge, preferred against a Sidney Township woman, was heard in camera.

No Speeches At Nominations In Stirling

Stirling, July 29—The official nomination of candidates in the provincial election for the West Hastings riding was held here Wednesday, at the hour of o'clock. The three candidates were present and filed their papers which were scrutinized by the Returning Officer. The candidates accepting the official nomination are R. D. Arnott (P-Const), Col. Roscoe Vandervoort (Lib) and Capt. Douglas Bews (CCF).

By mutual agreement there were no speeches made by the candidates after the nomination which was due largely to the regrettable loss through death of the wife of Mr. Bews. The hall was practically vacated by voters present to hear the candidates speak and following the acceptances the few left immediately.

Always TEMPTING—Always PLEASING—and Low in Cost!

Three Nominated In P.E.-Lennox

Picton, July 29—The nomination meeting at which three names were presented to contest the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox was a smaller one in record with less than forty present. These nominations were: Charlotte Annie Downsview R. R. 1 (York County), C. C. F. (Left Wing); Mrs. Bloomfield, Liberal; James dec. Hepburn, Picton, Progressive Conservative.

Nominations were received by Returning Officer Lieut.-Colonel Hugh M. D. Williams was chosen chairman, with Mrs. Brown as the only speaker.

Mrs. Brown stated that the Oxfup Pull showed that the three parties would split the vote about evenly and in that event she predicted the Liberals and Conservatives would form a coalition. The C. C. F. did not favor coalition, she said. With that in mind, the Liberals and Conservatives are publishing advertisements telling the people to vote for one or the other of these two parties and not to vote for C. C. F. and thus split the vote.

Mrs. Brown said that Mr. Nixon, concerned over the C. C. F. platform, has now offered to give the people everything that the C. C. F. offered, and claims that Premier King had also increased Old Age pensions to a figure nearer to that asked by the C. C. F.

Mrs. Brown flayed both parties as servants of the "Big Interests". She assailed monopolies which she said existed in connection with cattle marketing, flour, aluminum and other articles. She claimed the C. C. F. would free the people from such monopolies not by confiscation of property, but by taking them over at fair prices as a public enterprise.

She claimed the C. C. F. takes no stand for monopolies for election purposes. She appealed for support of the C. C. F. for a fair deal for returned men and to restore prosperity to the farmer and small businessman.

APOLOGIZE FOR FIGHT

London, July 29 — (CP) — Conservative, and Capt. Alec Cunningham-Reid, Independent, members of the House of Commons, apologized today for engaging in fisticuffs yesterday in the corridor after a dispute in the House.

Locker-Lampson told fellow members that "inasmuch as I was to blame...I desire to tender my full apologies." As an after-though he added he had not struck Cunningham-Reid, "although I was struck."

Cunningham-Reid said: "Whatever was in the right or wrong, I apologize to the House and to the House for any embarrassment that any action on my part yesterday may have caused."

Delegation to Ottawa Fails to Get Permission to Boost Fuel Wood Price

The Belleville delegation of Mayor Harry Rollins and Aldermen Chamberlain and Pulford met Premier in Ottawa Wednesday interviewing the fuel controller regarding the possibility of having the basic price of cordwood raised in the local area, met with little success, it was stated this morning by Mayor Rollins.

"We were definitely informed by Fuel Controller Wallis that an increase in the basic price of wood to permit Belleville dealers handling cordwood at a profit would not be allowed," stated Mr. Rollins. "We were nevertheless advised to go ahead and purchase what wood we can as every possibility exists of there being a distressing fuel situation this winter."

The Belleville delegation went to Ottawa on the direction of the committee appointed by the city council to look into the purchase of wood for use by city residents this winter. The committee in its report to council stated that cordwood could be bought at a price which would permit profitable distribution by city dealers at the present ceiling price.

To Lay Matter Before Public

Thwarted in their efforts to have the price of wood increased, Mayor Rollins now intends to call a public meeting of all citizens during the wood question fairly before them. The committee will possibly ask endoration to go ahead an purchase what wood is available as it is generally recognized the fuel situation this winter will be a serious one.

The Mayor stated that from the findings of this meeting the committee will be directed. Owing to circumstances the meeting will probably not be held until after the election.

Other Centres Interested

Belleville is not alone in its uneasiness over the fuel question, stated Mr. Rollins. The same day that the Belleville delegation was heard, men from Toronto and Oshawa had interviewed the fuel controller, while a delegation from Kingston are scheduled to be heard immediately following.

The city of Toronto asked to be supplied with 350,000 cords of wood, but according to the Belleville men, were told by the fuel controller that this amount "just was not available."

The question of a municipal wood lot has been broached to the Belleville committee and again it was stated, because of labor-arises, it was stated. One suggestion was that the wood be secured not too far distant from the city and the services of the jail inmates be utilized for the cutting of the wood. The lot would have to be within commuting distance of the jail with transportation to be provided by truck.

THE LONG TRAIL TO WAR

Supplies move on porter-back to the hard-to-reach fighting front in the War-Mobs area of New Guinea where Australian men are fighting the Japs for vital bases. Australian "diggers" armed with sub-machine-guns guard this vital train of supplies making along the trail out of a jungle village base.

Some Observations on Capt. Myers Who Founded Belleville in 1790

From "Fad Years" reminiscences of Chas. R. Mowbray, appearing in Dominion Spectator.

The passing of an old friend, James W. Sutherland, in mid-December last, recalled to minds of long ago in Belleville when he first we met. Some time after he removed to Hamilton. I followed his example.

In connection with the memories therewith let me recall that the community was settled in 1790 by one Captain Myers as stated afterward was called Myers' Creek—two years before Upper Canada's first governor, Col. John Graves Simcoe, convened his first parliament at Newark (Niagara). The river subsequently took on the Irish name of Moira, in honour of that Lord Rawdon who, after fighting through the Carolinas and Georgia, succeeded as the Marquis of Hastings. He was a friend of Thayendinega (Joseph Brant). The settlement in 1816 adopted the more compact title of Belleville, the "Belle" I believe commemorates Bella," wife of one of the governors of Upper Canada—Sir Francis Gore, who held office from 1806 to 1817. The old District of Gore, of which Hamilton was the capital, was so called in his honour, at any rate.

Captain John Walter Myers, to give the U.E.L. founder of Belleville his full name, was awarded his captaincy in the Loyal Rangers at Quebec by His Excellency Gen. Sir Frederick Haldimand in 1782, when that old soldier was Governor-General of Canada. Myers had, however, served the King's cause in the event, served the King's cause in the Kinonen's war that ended in the loss to Britain of 13 American colonies. It will be of interest to all to know that Myers was commissioned to make a night attempt to capture and spirit away the rebel general, Philip Schuyler, who had organized the invasion of Canada in 1775. On arrival of Myers and his men in the yard of the general's residence the latter, the leader caught sight of his object through a lighted window. He also found, however, when the abductors entered the house Schuyler was nowhere to be found! The garret was searched and a number of overturned pumpkins examined—but not the right one. When fighting days were done the general and Myers met and swapped stories, the former telling the latter in high glee that had he but hit upon the particular pumpkin on under which a female slave had hidden him, Myers would have "got his man."

* * *

Another tale is told of the Loyalist officer: In the early stages of the revolutionary war he was frequently the bearer of dispatches to His Majesty's troops in New York. One day, resting in a friend's house, he was aroused to make his rebels, but managed to make his escape through a window. He was seen running away and followed to the woods, into which he disappeared. Being their human breed, the pursuers went after Myers hotfoot—but failed to find him. The quarry had hidden himself easily in the thick-growing nearby and, when he knew his enemies were far in the bush, he quietly emerged into the open, picked out the best horse and continued his journey to New York!

Myers was of Dutch stock, like so many of the old Loyalists, and much at home in mill-building. The pioneer grist-mill on the banks of the Moira opened its doors to the poor, and operated vessels on the Bay of Quinte. Its son William Cannift, the historian, tells us that, added to his other robust qualities, Myers was "given to great hospitality." Perhaps he never forgot the time he nearly starved to death on one of his journeys, when he carried his favourite dog, weakened by hunger, for days on end, not knowing when he would have to kill the poor animal for his own survival. However, the tragedy was avoided, and dog and master managed to escape disaster by timely arrival at a wayside place where shelter and food were furnished them by friendly hands. Cannift relates that, after the close of hostilities, Myers proudly showed the dog to his friendly enemy Schuyler, and told him the story of escape from death of the two when all hope seemed vain.

Had the post-revolutionary period been blessed with enough sensible old soldiers of the type of Schuyler and Myers, instead of being cursed with petty politicians and narrow-minded "historians" who wouldn't let the old sore head what a mass of misunderstanding between the mother and daughter states might have been avoided ....After more than a century of non-conflict between the two great branches of Anglo-Saxondom, it is indeed gratifying to know that in two of the world's worst wars in all history we have fought side by side in the common defence of human decency and the inalienable rights of all men to be free. The first World War saw us as "associates"—the second, and greater conflict, as "allies." It's a comfort to know that Britons and Americans learned at long last the lesson of pooling their spiritual and material possessions in the mighty effort not only to free the world of war-mongers, but to keep it free and strong after Hitler and hallucinations shook his "Herrenvolk" are destroyed.

ITALIAN TROOPS REVOLT IN MILAN, REPORT HASTINGS AND PRINCE EDWARD REG'T IN SICILY

Refuse to Obey Orders to Fire On Demonstrators

Thousands Parade Streets Shouting Demands for Peace Dispatches State

STRICTER DISCIPLINE

Berne, July 30. (AP) — Italian troops have revolted at Milan, refusing to obey orders to fire upon demonstrating compatriots who swept the streets by the thousands shouting demands for peace, a Chiasso dispatch said today.

Premier Pietro Badoglio ousted the Milan military commander, Gen. Canale, and ordered Gen. Vittorio Ruggero, chief of an Italian division, to take over in that industrial area, it was reported.

Seek to Quell Unrest

These and other sharp measures were taken by Badoglio, seeking to quell domestic unrest and prevent dissemination of the peace proposal broadcast in London by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower yesterday, But talk of an armistice persisted.

Chiasso, from which came the account of Milan developments, is a Swiss frontier town 28 miles north of Milan.

(Paul Archbald, NBC reporter in Berne, said today the Italian people, "despite all sorts of official denials" are convinced that some sort of peace talks are in progress.)

A definite stiffening of governmental discipline was described in reports reaching Berne. Badoglio's army-endorsed decrees banning all printing freedom of expression by newspapers aroused bitterness among Liberal and Leftist political leaders.

Thousands Hear Eisenhower Speech

Badoglio, however, did not succeed in keeping the Eisenhower speech from the public. While countless thousands listened to it on the radio, mimeographed copies appeared on the streets of the principal cities a few hours after its publication was banned.

Travellers from Rome, Milan, Genoa and other centres said the peace speech was the sole topic of conversation in those streets and cafes.

Eisenhower's broadcast came while Italians paraded in Milan and other cities carrying banners inscribed with the slogans "we want peace", and "we want our sons back".

The Italian populace, reports received in Lugano said, were becoming increasingly worried over the failure of Italy to ask the Allies for an armistice.

Uneasiness Increases

There was no doubt that the first concrete result offered by the Allies through Eisenhower were commanding the downfall of the Badoglio regime, yet the fact that government officials have insisted that relations with the Germans would be carried on as before and that the people would be continually increased the feeling of frustration and uneasiness.

In one of the few newspaper dispatches that have been allowed to come out of Rome under the new censorship regulations, the Stefani Telegraphis agency today quoted government circles as saying the Eisenhower speech of peace had not modified the Casablanca formula of unconditional surrender which Italy "could never accept except without renouncing one of the most elemental sense of dignity".

SMUTS INCREASES MAJORITY

Pretoria, July 30 — (CP) — Final returns from the general election held July 7 in the Union of South Africa today showed that Prime Minister Smuts' government won a sweeping endorsement of its war policy, increasing its parliamentary majority from 21 to 67.

The coalition government won 107 of the 150 seats at stake in the election, and also holds the three seats, representing Cape Province natives, which were not up for contest this year. Field Marshal Smuts thus has a total of 110 members in the House of 153.

Allied Troops Inching Closer To Munda Base

Allied Headquarters, the South-west Pacific, July 30.—(AP)—Allied troops, inching forward slowly through the jungles of New Georgia, have moved 200 yards nearer Japanese Munda airbase and Allied Headquarters today described their progress as satisfactory and according to plan.

The ceaseless pounding of the Munda area by sea and by air, the communique said, has cut the enemy's supplies to the point Bombers have dropped at least 700 tons of explosives there in the past four weeks and United States warships have poured more than 400 tons of shells upon that Central Solomons stronghold.

Fourteen Japanese pillboxes were destroyed yesterday by the advancing soldiers and marines, now within 1,900 yards of the airdrome.

Reconnaissance in the territory 5 mile north of Munda, have been hemmed in by Americans who landed a few miles away at rich anchorage July 3. The enemy still holds coastal strips west and north of Munda, but their beachheads in this area are commanded by American artillery on Rendova Island eight miles south of Munda.

A communique from Allied headquarters today also told of sinking of a Japanese destroyer and destroyer-transport, probably and a transport which previously had been reported set afire.

Heavy and medium bombers made a concentrated attack on Balikpapan, dropping 49 tons of bombs in 17 minutes on the already battered Japanese strongpoint on the southeast coast of New Guinea.

WARNS NEUTRALS AGAINST REFUGE TO AXIS LEADERS

FDR Gives Virtual Ultimatum Against Harboring Fugitive Axis Criminals

REFERS TO RUMORS

Washington, July 30—(AP)—President Roosevelt issued a virtual ultimatum to neutral countries today not to offer asylum to Axis leaders.

He also told a press conference that he was not sure with whom the government deals in Italy as long as it is not a definite member of the Fascist Party. He expressed a willingness to treat for peace when the time comes, with a King, Prime Minister or even a Mayor of a city.

In a formal statement, the President took cognizance of rumors that "Mussolini and members of his Fascist gang may attempt to take refuge in neutral countries by air. He added, Hitler and his gang and Tojo and his gang will be trying to escape from their countries.

"I find it difficult," he said, "to believe that any neutral would give asylum to or extend protection to any of them. I can only say that the government of the United States would regard the action by a neutral government in affording asylum to any such fugitive inconsistent with the principles for which the United Nations are fighting and with the United States government hopes that no neutral government will permit itself to be used as a place of refuge or haven of safety for any person in any effort to escape their just deserts."

Belleville and District Men Climb 2,500-Foot Cliff to Surprise Nazis

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Assoro, Sicily, July 24 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Clambering up a 2,500 foot precipice, an Eastern Ontario Regiment stormed the crest in a pre-dawn attack, captured the town of Assoro and drove a strong German force from the mountain peak on which it is situated.

The attack, carried out in moonlight up the sheer face of a cliff which the enemy thought was impassable to scale, took the Germans by surprise.

The exploit, which took place during the night of July 21-22, was one of the most daring and heroic of any performed by the Canadians during the invasion of Sicily. The regiment is being praised for its accomplishment by the Canadian Canadian formation.

After reaching the peak, which juts out like a pinnacle amidst the cliffs, and mountains of this part of the island, they fought outside Assoro and cut off the enemy's escape slopes.

They were heavily shelled during the day but held their ground with determination. The regiment was cut off for most of one day but two members of the unit went thru the enemy lines and got supplies.

After a steady fight of more than 24 hours the regiment finally broke off the position and the weary Canadians brought the crest of the town and other Canadian units passed thru to continue the attack.

Action Described by C. O.

Yesterday (July 23) I reached the regiment and found it in position as the front. Officers and men told me of the storming of Assoro's cliffs. Then I went to the cliff top with the regiment's commanding officer, now he described the gallant action that gained so much for the Canadians at the cost of a few men and a mountain citadel of rocks and peaks.

It took half an hour to drive to the cliff top from the valley. This peak is the most prominent one in this mountain district and has been a landmark for the past week during the fighting in the area northeast of Enna.

From the summit of the peak, on the outskirts of Assoro, I could see 50 miles, with a magnificent view of Mount Etna and the valleys and hills to the southwest over which the Canadians had advanced and of more hills and mountains to the north and northeast, where the Germans were located.

Nazis Strongly Dug In

The Germans were dug in strongly on the slopes south of Assoro and in the valley dark the town.

They apparently counted on the cliff on the eastern side of the town as a natural defence and an obstacle no army would assault. But the Canadian did what the enemy thought impossible.

On the afternoon, July 20, a careful but dangerous reconnaissance of the Assoro cliffs was made by officers who crept into an orchard at the base of the sheer precipice. Details of the attack were completed for this back-door surprise under dark the following night. The regiment moved forward as darkness fell and began the climb.

The weren't intercepted en route but an Italian civilian gave us a warning that Germans were at the night driving a bullock before him."

Commanding Officer's Instructions Helped to Save Battalion

He said one company was stripped down to fighting order for the assault company, armed with a large number of automatic weapons. Capt. Alex Campbell of Perth, Ont., led this company with another one up the left side of the cliff. He took the route of the fugitive although a steep gully on the right and led it up the precipice path.

The men started to climb silently in single file about 1 o'clock a.m. July 21. By 3:05 a.m. they had reached the top of the 2,500-foot

HAMBURG TARGET OF 2,000 TONS HIGH EXPLOSIVES

Canadian Bombers In Great Strength Take Part in Seventh Raid Since Saturday

28 BOMBERS MISSING

London, July 30 (CP)—R.A.F. and Canadian bombers dropped more than 2,000 tons of explosives on Hamburg last night, it was announced today, giving that great German seaport its seventh pounding since Saturday night.

It was learned a great, many Canadian bombers participated in this attack, as they have in every Hamburg raid since the round-the-clock bombing began last weekend.

The Air Ministry said the attack was made "in very great strength" and that the delivery of explosives was accomplished despite increased ground defences and numerous German fighters.

Twenty-eight bombers were reported missing. A half dozen enemy night fighters, the Air Ministry said, other raids, the Air Ministry said, were destroyed in the attack.

The massive attack offered speculation that Hamburg is being made the subject of an Allied experiment to determine whether a city that large can be paralyzed completely from the air.

Results achieved in the persistent day and night bombing of Germany's second largest city and major marine nest were viewed as likely to determine the pattern of the air war for the next few months.

In this connection it was noted that lengthening nights will bring Berlin itself within the range of heavy day and night bombing by October or November.

Last night's attack was the 104th of the war carried out on that city by the R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F., but this week's concentrated assault on the city apparently was aimed at blowing it off the map.

American medium bombers swept out at daybreak today to continue the round-the-clock aerial attack on Germany and occupied territory in the war's greatest air offensive launched at Wednesday's dawn by Eighth Bomber Command.

Swift British Mosquito planes hit at other targets in Germany during the night while R. A. F. fighter-bombers struck at rail targets at Merville, Coulommoiris, Mantes and Corbeil in France and Courtrai in occupied in Germany.

German aircraft struck back at British airfields and shipping during the night, but little damage and no casualties resulted. One enemy plane was destroyed.

Hastings And Prince Edward Reg't Its History

Ottawa, July 30—(CP) — Here is thumb-nail sketch of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment among the nine Canadian battalions identified officially today as taking part in the Battle for Sicily:—

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment

The Regiment went overseas in 1939 as part of the 1st Infantry Brigade and was selected to go to France in May, 1940, to support the Dunkerque evacuation. It was there it lost its famous mascot, the Little Christ Dogs Indian figure which towered also go a Private, standing factory for 50 years.

The Regiment was the first to be mobilized in Military District No. 3 (Kingston, Ont.) after the outbreak of war. It carries on the traditions of the old 16th Battalion, the 49th Hastings Rifles and the 80th Battalion in the Great Great War: Somme, Hill 70, Amiens, Ypres, Hindenburg Line and the Pursuit to Mons.

All But One Fascist Grand Council Arrested

London, July 30—(CP)— Transocean, German Propaganda Agency, announced today arrest of the Italian Fascist grand council except one had been arrested.

It did not identify the exception, except to say he was "particularly radical," nor did it give any reason for his escape.

Members of the now outlawed Fascist-bound directorate including, Count Galeazzo Ciano, his son-in-law; Carlo Scorza, Secretary of the Party; Grandi, Bottai and Pariacci, former Secretary of the Fascist Party; Count Luigi Grandi; Marshal Emilio de Bono; Giuseppe Bastianini, former secretary of the Grand Council; Luigi Federzoni, and other ninety-hundred Italians.

The transocean report was broadcast by the British radio and recorded by The Associated Press.

News of Canadian Capture of Leonforte Delayed a Week

London, July 30 — (CP Cable)— For reasons best known to the Allied High Command the announcement of the Canadian capture of Leonforte in Sicily was delayed a week.

Yesterday's communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa announced the capture of the mountain stronghold a week to the day to date. However, dispatches from Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, disclosed Leonforte fell July 22, about the time the Americans were entering the city of Palermo, capital of Sicily.

Queried as to the reasons for the delay in the announcement, London spokesmen said they knew only "but they must have been good."

Some observers thought the High Command withheld the announcement because it feared the town had been completed and there was the possibility of a successful Axis counter-attack.

Stockholm, (CP)—An additional 6,000 pounds of sugar is to be received by the Swedish government for shipment to the civilian population of Norway.

Leonforte Street Fighting Highlight Of Canadian Units Drive Thru Sicily

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Leonforte, Sicily, July 24 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — A wild night fight in the bombed streets of Leonforte and its surrounding hills and the heralding of the capture of Piazza Armerina are highlights in the battles of a Canadian Regiment in its exhausting foot-slogging advance through Sicily.

In Leonforte a group including Colonels and men — most of the night and morning in stone buildings in the centre of the town, with German tanks and infantry trying to drive them out. They hung on until they were relieved.

I spent a night and hours with the Canadian troops, hearing their story from officers and men trying to get some sleep in the midst of pandemonium.

The battle for Leonforte warmed up with an artillery barrage which preceded the attack. The regiment was ordered to assault the town from the eastern side at night. They got into the streets and met only minor opposition until they were at the central square. There the Germans who infested the place gave up in the machine-gun and tracer bullets and cannon fire from tanks down every narrow street.

Five German tanks roared thru the Canadians in the first wild attack of the Edmontons. (The dispatch did not mention which unit of Canadians attacked through the streets in small groups and there was much fighting throughout the town.

The Commanding Officer, from Edmonton, and the elements of two companies attacked "right in the middle of Leonforte and were surrounded by Germans. We were in a few two companies of German infantry and those menacing tanks.

Communication Disrupted

Wireless communication was disrupted and they could not send messages to brigade headquarters although they could hear the brigade trying to reach them by wireless. For a time the brigadier thought they had been annihilated but knew they were putting up a superb show without severe casualties.

The Nazi tank crews knew approximately where the Canadians were and rumbled around the buildings every little while, plastering them with cannon and machine-gun fire. At one stage they fired mortar shells straight down the streets like a field gun. The bombs bounced off the narrow streets and splattered metal all over the place.

The Germans fired at rifle silhouettes shells down the dark streets. It was mad street fighting for hours. The Canadians stuck it out until 1 a.m. Thursday, get 22, but relief came to the two behind tanks.

Before this, however, German infantry began a systematic search of buildings and the Canadians were ordered to withdraw. The rendezvous was well up the town and the Germans were in the houses throwing grenades into houses and the streets with automatic weapons.

Turned and Ran

They were about 10 houses away when suddenly they turned and ran, bombed by the leading company let out a whoop. Canadian tanks and infantry were coming up the other end of the street and the besieged group helped them clean out the town.

At Piazza Armerina, 30 miles south of here on the road to Enna, the Canadians made a fast night action, clashing with the Germans for the first time. A company commanded by Major Ian Johnstone and the infantry rode from Leonforte in the lorries of Germans on the top of tanks.

In the early dawn of that road centre German machine-gunners and snipers overlooking hills fired on the Canadians. They scrambled off the lorries and deployed through fields and valleys as the regiment came up. Then they advanced towards the hills from which the fire was coming and searched out the Germans.

Crombi said the Canadians were in a heavy fron long matches that they were grabbing 40 winks shut-eye while lying on their stomachs to avoid Nazi shellfire. The attack began at noon and by dusk the troops had captured Piazza Armerina with the Germans retreating to the north. Canadian tanks and infantry attack in this action.

NEW REGULATIONS ON USED TIRES, TUBES ANNOUNCED

Can Only be Purchased on Permit as Required for New Tires

TO CONSERVE STOCKS

Ottawa, July 30.—(CP) — Effective today used tires, tubes and tubes may be purchased only with a tire ration permit similar to that issued for new tires, Administrations Minister Howe announced today in a new regulations order designed to conserve dwindling stocks of civilian tires as well as those now on the road.

Under a previous order, used tires and tubes could be bought merely by filling out a certificate of essentiality.

The new order, modelled closely on the rationing plan put into effect in 1942, sets up three classes of eligible buyers and rules out all other vehicle owners as ineligible to purchase or to usable tires or tubing service. The classes are "A," "B" and "C."

Class A includes those things:

1. It revives the lists of eligible vehicles, for instance, the A-book rating of certain denists, optometrists, doctors, veterinarians and allows tire-buying privileges to farmers, rural mail carriers, inspectors for base metals and oil, owners of moving vans, chain store supervisors, rural undertakers, proprietors of trucks delivering newspapers, and others.

2. It allows, for the first time since rationing went into effect, the retreading of tires for vehicles in class "C," including farmers, diplomats, rural undertakers, commercial travellers and others.

Defines Term 'Dealer'

3. It re-defines the term "authorized dealer" and thus prevents anyone from selling tires or tubes if he did not sell at least 75 per cent of his purchases of tires and tubes to the public in the year ended Oct. 31, 1941.

It compels every authorized dealer to retain turn-in tires for 30 days to allow for possible govern-

G-POINT PLAN OF U.S. FOLLOWS CANADA'S CLOSELY

Minister of Pensions Mackenzie Refers to Help for Returning Servicemen

Ottawa, July 30—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie today told President Roosevelt's six-point plan, announced Wednesday night for returning servicemen, that Canada's war veterans already is in effect in Canada. The exception is the 90-day hospitalization privilege in insurance, which are on an experimental basis in the United States.

Other old age pensions are non-contributary and provide veterans with compensation privileges in other ways."

Mackenzie discussed the President's six-point plan one by one and described what Canada had done along the same line.

"The President's proposals and their counterparts in Canada are:

1. Mustering-out pay to cover a basic living allowance for members of the fighting forces has been provided in Canada.

Canada provides that before a veteran, sailor or airman is discharged he receives one month leave of absence with pay to enable him to visit his home and decide what branch of civilian life he wishes to enter. He also receives pay during one month's rehabilitation pay and his other benefits. The same applies to women in the forces.

2. Jobs will be found for all veterans after diligent search, then unemployment insurance is to be provided if the individual registers with the United States employment service.

Canada provides that a veteran is to be given credit in the unemployment insurance equal to the amount he would have in the fund had he been contributing or a civilian basis since July 1, 1941, when the act was set up.

Canadians Clear Out Every German From Battered Mountainside Town

(By ROSS MUNRO)
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Leonforte, Sicily, July 24 — (Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Through shattered streets and past battered houses of this mountainside town, Canadian troops fought their grim-faced way today after having had rebuilt a bridge the night before which carried them into Leonforte which at the time was filled with Germans.

After they had taken the Nazis up in attacking Wednesday day and night, July 21-22, and by the morning of Thursday (July 23) Canadians had cleared out a large number of field guns. Blood flowed in the streets during the day in boiling heat.

1,000 FT. LUMBER CUT FROM PINE TREE

The tree was cut on the farm of Rose Dafoe of Chatterton and measured 36 inches across the stump. Eight feet high the tree was cut into four 12 ft. logs for 14 ft., one of 15 ft., and an eight ft., the top of the last log measuring eight inches in diameter. The lumber was sawn at Russel Stapley's mill.

CANNERS INCREASE PRICE OF RASPBERRIES

Inability of some canning factories to get sufficient raspberries for their canning requirements has been one of the main reasons for the high price of this type of fruit on the Belleville market, it was learned this morning. During the spring, farmers contracted with canners to supply raspberries at so cents a box, but with the recent demand for the berries some have now raised this price to 35 cents a box. This is possibly an all-time high price for canners in this district to pay for raspberries for canning purposes.

Returning Officers To Speed Election Results by Telephone

Toronto, July 30 —(CP)— Major Alex Ewing, Chief Election Officer, announced today that returning officers in Ontario constituencies will report the Aug. 4 election vote by telephone from their deputies in each individual poll. The new arrangement will speed compilation of the returns by the press for the public.

In past elections, constituency returns have been compiled from reports from candidates' committee rooms because of delay in deputies' reports. The telephone system has been very successful in the 1942 Dominion election and has been used in federal by-elections since then.

Major Ewing's instruction reads: "Deputy returning officers are authorized to telephone the result of the votes polled for each candidate at their polls to returning officers and where a charge is incurred for telephone service such charge may be entered on their expense sheets."

POLICE COURT

Gerald Sweet, Peterborough, was sentenced to serve eleven days in the county jail after being convicted of breaking and entering Queen Mary School, when he was arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today.

"Peterborough police hold a warrant for this lad", revealed Deputy Chief Arthur Herman, which prompted Magistrate Lloyd to keep the lad in custody until such time as the Peterborough authorities could exercise the warrant. The 11-day term was dated back to the time of the arrest of the lad on July 22rd. Sweet and another teen-aged lad were apprehended in Queen Mary School by Sergeant Arnott and P.C. Wright early on the morning of July 23rd. The juvenile, was later returned to his home.

Returned to Home

Peter Brennan, an inmate of the County House of Refuge, was apprehended loitering on city streets last night, and returned to the County Home.

In the Thursday afternoon police court, presided over by Magistrate Lloyd, Albert Belmont, Point Anne, was sentenced to serve six months in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted on a serious charge. Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson conducted the prosecution and responded when severe penalty be exacted.

With E. O. Butler, local barrister, as special prosecutor, Bernard Sherry of Toronto, was convicted of violations of the Wartime Leasehold Regulations in this city and fine $50 and costs. The charge arose out of increasing of rents without the sanction of the Board.

TOWN CLOCK OUT

Gananoque, Ont., July 30 — (CP) — Time clocks punched by Gananoque workers have been more than a little puzzled of late. Staffs were punching in as much as seven minutes ahead of time, few were late. Answer to the new punctuality was found in the fact that the town clock, a very model of dependability through the years, is speeding up with age.

of the second storey of practically every Sicilian house.

Street Fighting Grim, Real Scrap

The Commanding Officer who was a schoolmaster in Medicine Hat, Alta., described the action. He said:

"The street fighting was a grim, real scrap. Coleman and his company did a magnificent job.

The Canadian tanks pulled off into the reeking chaos of a side alley running from the main street. Down the main street the rest of the German tanks going in to attack the infantry with rapid-fire machine-guns and cannon. The Nazi Panzermen drove right into ambush. One Canadian tank crew held its fire until the leading German tank was 20 yards away and then blasted its turret off with gunfire.

TAKE 4 — CANADIANS six in a row

I saw the wrecked tank in Leonforte this morning. Four 24-ton armored rigs with its turret 50 yards away from the wreckage. The crew, including the tank sergeant, escaped and Canadian infantry continued their advance without a fighting.

Germans shelled the town at frequent intervals. Leonforte was an inferno of fire and clouds of fighting. In the centre of the town infantry came to the relief of the two companies with the Commanding Officer and Maj. Bill Cromb and Maj. Bill Berry, second-in-command, who had been cut off in Leonforte and fought the Germans all around them throughout the night.

"They were hunted down by German tanks and infantry and were making their last stand in three houses when the infantry rushed up the streets to raise the siege.

Coleman said the unit piled out of the wrecked buses, getting into fantrymen on the back and shouting their thanks. One of the men yelled a bottle of vino into my face," said Coleman.

A lone company of infantry pressed up the streets and fought its way to the station on the north side of the town. One group battled over the hills on the northern fringe of the town and got to the station.

Canadian Fight on Ridge

Canadian tanks were blocked by enemy mines at the edge of town and Coleman's company hung on till the rest came up. Major Jack G. Sutherland of Georgetown, Ont., brought his company up in trucks and they fought their way up the ridge overlooking the town. A platoon commanded by Lieut. Bob Carey of Victoria attacked and overran the position and it was a hot and anti-tank gun.

"We had a real fight in the town," he said "We were going along the street when the leading German tanks at a corner with a flock of grenadiers behind them. There was a lot of shooting in the darkness. We made quite a mess of the Germans."

A few miles east of Assoro which is on top of a cliff a Canadian regiment went over a blown bridge and down a steep cliff to get behind at the enemy. They were cut off got down on the forward slope in a vineyard, when it was attacked at point-blank range by two German tanks firing incendiary shells and using rapid-fire machine-guns. Smith and his platoon had to fight like inspired men to hold the position.

Mopping Up

Pinal, Maj. E. T. A. Pasnet of Quebec City brought his company into the town to mop up. They cleared the last of the snipers out of the houses and ended the contact. Lieut.-Col. Cumming of the battalion in this action was Maj. Cameron Ware of London Ont.

After telling me the general story of the commanding officer praised the work of Capt. George Fairfield, the battalion padre, the medical officer, and members of the medical section which evacuated casualties in the hours under machine-gun fire and shelling. They moved the wounded from the front down the street to the local hospital where Fairfield treated the cases.

Walking around the town, looking at the damage and trying to piece together the story, I talked with one group who had been through the same stuff. The group included Alex Hodgson of Port Arthur, Ont.

Hodgson said the sniping was fierce all the way and made for slow going down the hill and he had to keep under the cover of walls and houses. He was hit by snipers windows. Several men had to chase the Germans out of the top floors before capturing them. They were very surprised at the youth of the German soldiers, some being 16 and 17.

Artillery Barrage Impressive

The artillery and mortar fires were greatly impressed by our artillery barrage. One prisoner told me the Russian front salt it compared with that of the artillery barrage we undergone at Stalingrad.

After a few miles to the right of Leonforte completed the success in this sector after four days of fighting. The Canadians are crowding back into Leonforte and fleeing to caves and holes in the town deserted except for the Germans and the battle raged.

Battle Panzer Grenadier Regt.

Canadians at Leonforte had come against the best part of the 1st Panzer Grenadier regiment which includes three battalions loaded down with machine-guns and mortars. They have strong supporting arms too, and in confined country like this the Canadians cannot bring the whole weight of their force to bear on the enemy at one time, according to staff officers.

Lieut. Maynard in the assault said the toughest job of all was getting the Germans out of caves and houses. Pte. Jim Pofcroft of Calgary who participated in the attack on Leonforte said it was a hot business.

"We had a real fight in the town," he said "We were going along the street when the leading German tanks at a corner with a flock of grenadiers behind them. There was a lot of shooting in the darkness. We made quite a mess of the Germans."

A few miles east of Assoro which is on top of a cliff a Canadian regiment went over a blown bridge and down a steep cliff to get behind at the enemy. They were cut off

THE WAR TODAY

By JOHN EVANS
(Associated Press War Analyst)

King Victor Emmanuel's hold on his war-torn throne seems to be strengthened by the very uncertainty that might be expected to unseat him.

This is because the Allied words just now asks "who is Italy?" Not long ago Mussolini was Italy, and today Gen. Eisenhower tacitly recognizes the King as the one to accept "honorable conditions" of peace.

At first thought it would seem that rumored riots and insistent popular cries for "peace" might shake the throne and start a revolution.

It still seems to some the King and Badoglio are touched with the taint of Fascism because they tolerated it, recognized it and worked with it. On the other side are these facts:

1. The King accepted Mussolini and Fascism because he couldn't help himself. He tried the war Premier Giolitti and others in short-lived governments in vain efforts to stave off a revolution. He finally gave in to Mussolini and summoned him as Premier, as the King said, to avert civil war. Badoglio at that time assured the King the army could defeat the Fascists marching on Rome, but the King took the costly easy way out.

However, once Mussolini was in, the King had to decide either to abdicate and leave everything to the Fascists or to hang on as best he could, biding his time. He bided. Now Mussolini is out and the King is in.

2. Rioting and all the demands for peace may seem to shake the throne but instead they increase the importance to the Allies of having in Italy a real head, respected by the people supported by the Italian army, thoroughly in touch with conditions, and knowing the political complexion of all those openly opposed to the King who will be trying to raise themselves into certainly power for the end of it.

If events suddenly should force out the King, Badoglio or both, and go and Italy would be a country in chaos without leadership, easy prey for the Germans and other kinds of trouble.

3. One of the strongest factors in all this mess is the spiritual one. Pope Pius XII may or may not be active in trying for peace but he most certainly prays for the end of war, especially in his own country. Upon him, as devout Roman Catholics, the King and Badoglio can rely for aid and comfort in any proper search for peace.

R.D. Arnott Charges Holding Election At the Present Time Is "A Crime"

P.-Con. Candidate Addresses Meetings at Wallbridge and Springbrook

PRESSURE BY OTTAWA

Speaking in support of the Drew 22-Point-Platform at Springbrook and Wallbridge in the West Hastings' riding Thursday night, R. D. Arnott, K.C., Progressive Conservative candidate opened his address with a direct reference to the "broken pledge" of the Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature and labelled the August 4th election as a "test kite" for the coming Federal election which will "undoubtedly" be called this fall if the provincial election goes the right way—for them.

"You people call it a shame that the government should go over the election at a time like this, in the middle of the busiest season for the farmer..." Mr. Arnott said, "You call it a shame...I call it a crime! Any person professing to be a farmer all his life should know better, should realize that this time of year is the worst time to call for an election and the only one justification can be placed on such an act and that is that he has received orders from higher up."

Blames Mackenzie King

Mentioning the "gentleman's agreement" between ex-Premier Hepburn and Col. George Drew that there would be a truce—should be pulled in the province during wartime, Mr. Arnott again placed the blame on Mr. Mackenzie King and cited it as the cause for Mr. Hepburn's resignation from office. The pressure brought to bear from Ottawa was directly the cause of Mr. Conant's failure in health and forced him to drop from the leadership of the Liberals and turn it over to Mr. Nixon, who, Mr. Arnott said, following discussions called an election at a time when an election should never be called, Mr. Arnott declared.

Calling Nixon's campaign posters, "Keep Nixon at the Wheel, Vote-toons", Dick Arnott said that he agreed wholeheartedly with the slogan, but that Premier Nixon should be kept at the wheel of a tractor at home where he could do more good raising some crops.

Meet Important Events

"This is the most important election in Ontario since Confederation," said Mr. Arnott, "and, with the soldier vote practically non-existent, the soldier disfranchised it is up to those of us remaining at home to see that a majority is brought in on August 4th for a government who will have the interests of the people in mind and not return a government who will arrange things so that the men in the armed forces are rendered impotent and those in the Reserve Army absent from their constituencies when the vote is taken."

Advance Full Referend

"I have endeavored to arrange for an advance poll to be set up at the camps where these Reserve Army men are engaged in summer training, but this was refused, said Mr. Arnott, "and, there is no doubt in my mind that the camps this year are the best they have ever been and are being made so attractive that most of the men there will not want to leave them to return to their homes to vote. And I don't blame them. . . . It was good planning on the part of someone."

Mr. Arnott said that the Liberals had always tried to get in on each other fellow's mistake and had nothing but destructive criticism to offer without once extending anything constructive. He said that the Progressive-Conservative Party was coming out this time with a platform that is not a "map platform" such as we have had before but is one designed for the average person in Ontario, a "people's platform." The only criticism is that it is too good a platform and George Drew is not the enemy to carry it out. "I can assure you," he said, "that George Drew is big enough to carry it out and he will do it."

Quotes Pledge

Quoting the first plank of the Progressive-Conservative platform: "To do all in its power to maintain institutions and strengthen the British partnership as the best guarantee of Canada's spiritual and material welfare." Mr. Arnott said he was proud of this pledge, proud that Canada holds such a high position in the Commonwealth of British Nations, proud to be part of it though the day on which withstood the ravages of war while the rest of the world was preparing and for this we have not forgotten made it possible, standing alone, to help others and we will be able to come to their aid.

A 50-per-cent reduction in Education taxes was promised by Mr. Arnott, the complete abolition of service charges on Hydro and a standard set of wage payments in all districts in Ontario.

Speaking in support of Mr. Arnott were Mr. George A. Reid, Belleville, quoted Hydro rates in several West Hastings villages and towns, pointed out wide differences in charges such as $35.75 per horsepower at Marmora, $44.75 at Tweed, $51.40 at Westport as against $12.51 per horsepower at Toronto.

Rates Explained Given

He said that there was no explanation of these wide differences other than of accumulation but, Mr. Reid declared, "this is refuted by the fact that the rate charged in the town of Trenton pays $29.20 per horsepower as against the $12.51 of Toronto, and the Hydro Plant is located within the limits of the city." Mr. Reid asked why there should be two prices for the same commodity. "The Progressive-Conservative party proposes to distribute power evenly throughout Ontario."

Also supporting Mr. Arnott in Springbrook and Wallbridge were Mayor Harry Ketcheson, Belleville who spoke at both meetings, Capt. Ernest B. White, M. F.-Hastings-Peterboro, George E. Thompson, Ex-Warden, the latter two speaking at Springbrook. Mr. W. E. Hamilton, M.P., addressed the meeting at Wallbridge at some length prior to the candidate's appearance and was supported by George Stokes, M. P.; Clem Ketcheson, Arthur Burke and Alfred Reid.

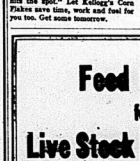
Record of Gov't Not Attacked Says A.G. Slaght

Toronto, July 30 (CP)—Arthur G. Slaght, Liberal member of parliament for Perry county, said in a radio address last night that proof of the record of Ontario's Liberal government can be found in what "lies in the fact that neither opposing leader or their leaders have been able to criticize in any respect the record of the Ontario Liberal government and they talk about everything else in this campaign."



Speaking over a network of Ontrap stations, Mr. Slaght praised Premier Nixon through whose 36-year political career "there has never been a breath of suspicion as to his integrity and high purpose."

Attacking the C.C.F. party, Mr. Slaght said: "I am not making any attack on the provincial leader, for whose name $ do not recall, nor upon their Federal leader.

"I do suggest to this audience that their provincial leader—so far as I am aware—has absolutely no experience whatever in public affairs and to make such a man premier of this great province of Ontario, with $100,000,000 to expend of Your taxes and the important and grave problems of the next four years to deal with—would be the part of folly."

The Progressive Conservative party in the election campaign "appears to consist of one man in the person of their leader" and "one must look in vain for cabinet material, if they should win."

I eat them every night, too — they're so easy to digest and the flavour just hits the spot." Let Kellogg's Corn Flakes save time, work and food for you too. Get some tomorrow.

Says Returned Men Will Want Better Deal Than Their Fathers Had

J. A. McAninch, C.C.F., Speaks in Trenton in Interests of Capt. Bews

STIMULATE BUILDING

Mr. J. A. McAninch speaking in Trenton Friday night on behalf of Captain Douglas Bews, C.C.F. candidate for West Hastings, declared that he knew from conversations with men of the armed forces that they are looking to the future for a new social order so they will not be forgotten as their fathers were after the last war.

He reminded his hearers of the time the veterans marched on Queen's Park and were barred.

In England, Mr. McAninch claimed, where lumber had to be imported, they are building homes at a cost of from $18 to $35 a month which included lights, heat, interest, and taxes, "the same thing is true in New Zealand and the United States, and it is one of the first things the C.C.F. will do after the war, thus stimulating the building trades, and getting rid of the slums that clutter up this fair province.

Vote for Freedom

To the past belongs the dictatorship with the party systems controlled and financed by the big monopolies and combines, said Mr. McAninch. To the future belongs a better world. A vote for the C.C.F. is a vote for freedom. The old parties have been tried since Confederation, and they have let the people down every time, drifting from bad to worse. See what New Zealand did by electing a Labor-Farmer-Labor Government. They have solved the problems that the old parties could not solve.

The C.C.F. can do this for Ontario.

Mr. J. Maguire spoke from the standpoint of labor, and claimed that the previous governments had not been able to find one point in aid of the laboring man, and had failed to deal with the labor problems when they arose. The C.C.F. has a definite labor policy drawn up and approved by labor.

Mr. C. Guss was chairman and asked that a one-minute silence be observed in honor of Lt. Col. Bruce Sutcliffe who had just been reported killed in action, presumably in Sicily.

Drew Explains His Health Program

Toronto, July 30 (CP)—Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative leader, said last night at an election meeting in Toronto Armouries that his party, if elected, "could care for the $2,9%.- 000,000 debt without any increase out of profits they (the Liberal government) have made charging for distilled water in whiskey."

He said the Nixon government has no record upon which to claim the support of the people.

Col. Drew said the vital issues of the Aug. 4 Ontario genera! election were two—that the government then elected will have to deal with the demobilization period following this war and that they will have to assert the province's constitutional authority and rule the province "for the people of Ontario and according to British institutions."

Best assurance, he said, that a Progressive government could deal understandingly with demobilization is found in the fact that over 60 of the party candidates have served on the field of battle."

Col. Drew said that Premier Nixon knows the 22-point party program was not brought out just for election purposes, because "he himself voted against every point" as it was brought up in the legislature. He said the program is not "George Drew's program" but that approved by the party, and the fact that they have committed themselves to the program is on record in legislative report.

Will Not Quit

The housing program included among the party's 22 election points "will not cost one copper" in tax taxes, he declared, but in removing the "dead load of taxation"—50 per cent of the costs of education—from real estate, home ownership would be encouraged. He saw "the billions of dollars" accumulated in war savings being invested in private homes at the war's end.

Col. Drew said a big problem in this election would be rousing the people to vote Aug. 4 in the "most important election in the history of the province."

In another Toronto speech Col. Drew spoke against the Social Credit (CSL) said the Liberal government has failed to protect expenditures to expand the "old factory building known as Christie Street Hospital," providing "another evidence of the lack of understanding of the needs of those in military service."

(The Federal government has announced that it has added a 1,000,000 addition to the building, located in Toronto.)

Col. Drew said it is "an outrage to bring wounded and sick men into such a congested factory district."

5. It provides that, except by permit or by legal sales between dealers and manufacturers, or by sale, loan, or exchange of the vehicle itself, no person may buy or sell, borrow or lend, give away or receive as a gift, mortgage, barter, or in any way dispose of a usable tire or tube, and it thus prohibits any two or more owners from bulking their tires to equip one vehicle.

Issued by Rubber Controller Alan H. Williamson, and countersigned by Chairman Donald Gordon of the Prices Board, the new order reminds all previous tire orders and rullings and established a revised schedule of ceiling prices on used tires.

For instance, the most popular passenger tire, the 6.00 x 16, if less than 50 per cent worn and in usable condition, now may be sold for not more than $10.00 The maximum price on the same tire worn more than 50 per cent, but not smooth, now is $7.20; or if smooth or regrooved, $4.50.

For purposes of the order, a used tire is one which has been driven from 1,000 miles or more.

Shorten War by All-Out Effort

Everyone is interested in the time when the war will end and President Roosevelt gave a sane expression of opinion in his Wednesday night radio broadcast, that the length of the war will depend upon the uninterrupted continuance of all-out effort on the fighting and home fronts for the effort of all one. He confessed that he is sometimes bewildered by the conflicting statements he sees in the press. "One day I read an authoritative statement that we shall win the war this year, 1943 — and next day comes another statement, equally authoritative that the war will still be going on in 1949." His reply to this was "of course both extremes — of optimism and pessimism — are wrong."

He then gave a bit of sane advice to anyone who is told by someone that the war is in the bag and all is over but the shouting. Ask that person if he or she is working full time on the job, growing all the food possible, buying the limit of war bonds, and cheerfully co-operating with the government in preventing inflation and profiteering and in making rationing work with fairness to all.

If the answer to that question was "No," then he said "the war is going to last a lot longer than you think."

The whole-hearted effort that the Allied governments have put into the war and the devoted self-sacrificing effort of so great a proportion of the people are making the Hun war on the map a failure and making possible those massive raids on German military targets and the present dilemma of Italy with the ousting of Mussolini and the disbanding of the Fascists. It is this mass effort of so many million Allied minds and so many million arms and bodies together with the devotion of the troops that have put the Axis powers on the toboggan.

The slight inconveniences the civilian undergoes are as nothing to the service of devotion to death which the soldier, sailor and airman give. In Mr. Roosevelt's words there should be "no complacency, indifference, slacking up, lest these may sacrifice the lives of soldiers and contribute to the loss of an important battle."

That advice will do for people everywhere. It is this relentless steady effort of all together that has taken the free world along the way so successfully to this time and will to the end with the aid of everyone. And he said it is this whole-out effort that shortens the war.

Responsibility of Axis Peoples

Mr. Churchill's statement the other day that "there can be no really valid defence for any people which allows its freedom and inherent rights to pass out of its own hands," is a warning to nations particularly the peoples of Germany and Italy. The suddenness of the collapse of Mussolini and the elimination of the Fascist party would seem to have been far more easy to achieve than most people expected. Of course Fascism was killing itself in Italy and what was left of it had to bear the penalty for the evils it had brought on Italy.

If many people had had to predict what form of upset in Italy would take place it is doubtful if many would have seen it just as it is.

So this very ease with which the Italian Duce was deposed, "once the foes against him made up their minds, will go a long way toward proving that the people of totalitarian countries must assume a large share of the blame for the administrations that rule them." That is the comment of the Windsor Star.

The history of dictatorships in the Hitler and Mussolini sense is along the line of Mussolini's collapse. Their reign of tyranny does not endure. Forces arise and throw them overboard.

There is the instance of Germany that allowed Hitler to foist himself upon that country and he, once securing authority, seized more power and set out to use the people to his will and to that of his group.

Neither Germany nor Italy took steps to prevent the rise of the men of evil, Hitler and Mussolini, and the result has been their subjection.

Still Mussolini has found when the disasters gather round a nation, people do become vocal and in his case they became vocal enough to knock him off the pedestal on which he placed himself with solemn ceremony.

In the words of Mr. Roosevelt the "pirate philosophy" of the Fascists and Nazis cannot stand adversity.

In Mussolini's case the "sawdust Caesar" shrunk suddenly before the avalanche of opposition, much of which had been unexpressed until the striking time came.

The tragedy is that these men are not put down before they ever reach the dictatorship. For that their peoples are surely to blame. What it has cost and will cost the world in treasure and blood and tears to wipe out the evil that resulted cannot be estimated. A united world has to undertake the task Germany and Italy should have done.

Furniture and Silver

(London Times)

Though books also are among the highly priced desirables of the moment, they do not reach such records of the sale room as antique furniture. Ordinary furniture is, another story, and that story is told in an official warning to dealers who charge exorbitant prices for second-hand pieces. Nearly £4,000 was given at Sotheby's for Old English silver; and at Christie's keen bidding like that of peacetime was responsible for a total of £7,166 brought by a collection in which Chippendale was prominent. Single prices were surpassed by the £651 for one English drinking glass of the 17th century which set up a new auction record.

War and Cost of Living

(Christian Century)

The League of Nations, which still functions as an institute of statistics, has published recent figures indicating the comparative economic effects of the war on the cost of living and the public debt in various countries.

The index of cost of living showed little or no rise in Europe or in South America, except Argentina, in the early months of 1943. The following are the percentages of increase for the first quarter of 1943 as compared with previous years:

Iran (the highest except China) 247; Turkey, 2b0; Spain, 65; Norway, 50; Switzerland, 48; Sweden, 43; Mexico, 39; the United Kingdom, 29; Japan, 27; United States, 23; Canada, 18; Argentina 13; Germany (the lowest of all), nine percent.

China is in a class by itself. At Chungking the cost of living in August, 1942, was 2.149 percent above the 1939 figure.

A Private Hansom Cab

(Manchester Guardian)

A hansom cab, newly painted, with yellow wheels and shafts and driven by an elderly man in a fresh grey billycock has been seen on recent weeks in the streets of the City of London.

Cab and cabby are believed to be the last survivors of London's hansom-cab era but they have not been brought out of their retirement and tiltivated up merely to amuse American soldiers. Some months ago Sir Edward Wilshaw, the chairman of Cable and Wireless, Ltd., laid up his car and hunted London for a hansom cab in which he could pay his business calls.

He now owns the only hansom cab on the streets of London and the best-looking cab seen in London for years.

EMPLOYER'S WAIL

Time was the customer was right,
Nor did the clerk's opinions matter
Now, lest it vanish over night,
It is the help we're asked to flatter;
There's much they'd have the public know
Which makes employers fume and fret.
The customers may come and go,
But help today is hard to get.

Refrain from anger's bitter word
And look upon all blunders lightly
For something they have seen or heard
Their jobs the help are quitting nightly.
You may be right, but do not roar,
A staff is easily upset.
We've customers enough and more,
But help today is hard to get.

Resist the impulse to complain,
Trade's skies today are far from sunny.
A chided servant won't remain
Though we should offer twice the money.
Be gracious, customers, and kind
However churlishly you're met.
More patrons we can always find,
But help today is hard to get.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

July 30th., 1923

The Rev. Dr. Marr of Edinburgh, Scotland, will occupy the pulpit at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here during the month of August.

Congratulations are due to Mr. J. J. Johnston of this city, who will tomorrow celebrate his fifty first year in the service of the Grand Trunk Railway. He will make his final trip tomorrow and will then retire and go to California to reside near his sons and daughters. Mr. Johnston has reached the age of sixty six years. He entered the railway service at the age of fifteen years in Toronto. For the past thirteen years he has been a highly respected resident of Belleville. He is the oldest engineer in seniority in service.

30 YEARS AGO

July 30th., 1913

Mr. Frank D. Wallace has left on a trip to Edmonton, Regina and Saskatoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace, South John Street, have left to visit their son, Mr. H. B. Wallace, in Winnipeg.

Many citizens went on excursions today. The picnic of St. Thomas' Church Sunday School at Massassaga Park was well patronized. The creamer Aletha made several trips to the park. The Sons of England excursion per special train to Hampton and the 1,000 Islands attracted a large crowd, and the excursion by train to the Provincial Tournament at Deseronto was well attended.

crest, just as dawn was breaking.

"The Boches weren't expecting us to come up the cliff and we made the top without a shot being fired," the Commanding Officer said.

The only German we found on the peak were three observation men who were directing the gunfire against our troops the day before."

Crest Rapidly Cleared.

The crest was rapidly cleared and the Canadians took over the German trenches. By this time it was broad daylight and the remnants on the forward slope and in the town realized the Canadian battalion had performed a near-miracle and scrambled up the cliff to catch them on the flank. Then the fighting started.

The town was situated only 200 yards from the peak where the troops were concentrated. Many of them in caves and holes in the rocks. There were sharp exchanges of fire between the Canadians and the Germans in the town, a jumble of buildings barely clinging to the mountain side.

The Huns were milling around the town and our men shot up knicknacks of them when they tried to clear out of the narrow streets," Lt.-C. O. continued. "There was sniping such as I have never seen before. It was guerilla and mountain war-fare rolled into one."

The Germans then began to shell the Canadians on the crest and kept it up for hours. Nazi machine-gunners got the range and the shelling became fiercer. There was mortar fire too.

Perform as Snipers

The artillery even performed as snipers, with 88 mm. guns shooting precisely and open sights, trying to dislodge the pockets of infantry. Canadian transports tried to come up a road leading to the town and were ambushed by German artillery fire. The vehicles were not only blocked by a huge crater but also stopped by shells.

The regiment was cut off by mid-afternoon and running short of food and ammunition, for they were unable to bring large quantities with them up the cliff.

Capt. Bill Hocksteer of Madoc, Ont., and RSM. Angus Duffy of Trenton, Ont., set off on foot, thru the enemy lines to get supplies. They got through and Duffy explained it by saying "we ran like hell over the open spaces."

Wednesday night (July 21) supplies and ammunition were packed up the cliff by two companies of a Canadian Regiment who were supposed to be resting but who pitched into this tough job to help out. Tried to Run Him

One officer said they tried to use a mule for the job but the cliff was too steep and loaded it down with supplies. But the mule got as far as the bottom of the cliff and then died. Everything had to be placed on the backs of men. By this time the men on the clifftop were breaking into the town and turning out the enemy.

"The Germans on the forward slope could not dent the Canadians' positions and were forced to clear out.

The Canadian artillery, fire was effective and many harassing German guns were silenced. Finally the Canadians occupied all of Assoro and established a firm grip on the hard-won clifftop.

But yesterday (July 22) when I was there the peak was being shelled occasionally by heavy guns. Below — in the shell-blasted church, a Padre was burying four — soldiers and there was a shell a few hours before I reached Assoro.

The action in the cliff assault and the fighting on the peak included Capt. Blackmer, Maj. Bert Kennedy of Owen Sound, Ont.; Capt. Reilly Cleworth of Oakville, Ont.; and North Bay Ont.; Capt. Jim Bird of Picton, Ont.; Lieut. Len Hyslop of Kingston, Ont. Signal officers included Lieut. Roy N. Burness of Huntsville, Ont.; Lieut. Jack McRibbon of Trenton, Ont., and Capt. Les Yates of Brockville, Ont.

Picton, Madoc Men in Action

Among the N.C.O.'s were C.S.M. George Howard of Picton, and Q.S.M. Cecile Yearsweed of Madoc.

Many of the crack infantrymen that followed the officers through to victory came from Cornwall, Belleville, Brockville, Trenton, Madoc and other Eastern Ontario cities and towns. I talked with a few of those men. They are in tremendous spirits now after getting a rest. Cooks were preparing stews and gallons of steaming tea in the caves and trenches they were occupying.

There were numerous incidents of individual gallantry and there will probably be a number of awards as a result of this first big action the unit has fought as a regiment. Resting on July 22

They were supposed to be resting when I visited them July 22 but they still were keeping in the fight voluntarily as snipers climbed the crags to their camp, the first persons I saw were Kennedy and Maj. Winston Nicks of Madoc, crouched in a field glass as an observation post with artillery officers.

They had spotted a detachment of German machine-gunners in an orchard a mile off, who were waiting, apparently to ambush another Canadian unit going along a road from the observation post the watching officers wirelessed back to the guns and a few minutes remained the orchard was busting with shells there throughout the battle.

My Ship

What joy will be mine when my ship comes home!
As she plows her way through the fleecy foam
And I catch the gleam of her shining sail
I'll think of the dreams that will not fail;
And I'll lift my eyes to the sky's blue dome
With a thankful heart, when my ship comes home.

I've watched for my ship for many a day,
When life's sky was bright, when its clouds were gray;
I've sat in the sand by the shining sea
And dreamed of what it would bring to me;
Far from its haven in hand, my thoughts will roam
To that glad hour when my ship comes home.

Though I watch and wait through life's long day,
And my ship should not, with its treasure gay,
The dreams I've dreamed of the ship's full hold
Have held a dearer charm than gold;
Hope's star heals on while my spirit roams
To that glad hour when my ship comes home.

Though a phantom ship it may seem to be—
A phantom ship on a misted sea—
When sinks life's sun and my guiding star
Shines on beyond the dim, grey bar,
And my way lies over the darkening sea
To my port the Captain will pilot me.

WEDDINGS

ELLIOTT—CLARKSON

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Perrytown, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday when Christina Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Clarkson, of Garden Hill, became the bride of Robert John, son of Mrs. William Elliott and the late Mr. William Elliott of Port Hope.

The service was performed by the Rev. Lloyd Delany, assisted by Rev. John Deforth Hornby, Belleville. Mrs. Edwin Wilson played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked a picturesque gown of white marquisette over satin with a finger tip veil falling from a matching halo. Her bouquet was of white roses and blue cornflowers blended with the summery flowers that decorated the church.

Mrs. V. L. Jennings of Long Island, N.Y., sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor, and wore a floor length blue gown. This frock had a fitted waist with full skirt over a taffeta underskirt, and a matching hat with shoulder length veil completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. George Elliott, brother of the groom, was the best man and the ushers were Leigh McClenaghan, Prearsville, and Walter Kelly of Port Hope.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony, where the bride's mother received wearing a flowered blue silver dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Elliott, mother of the groom, chose for her son's wedding, a navy dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left later for their wedding trip to Bain Beach, Georgian Bay, the bride travelling in a two-piece red polka dress with grey accessories. On their return the couple will reside in Port Hope.

BROWNE—FUNNELL

A beautiful wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, July 28, at four o'clock, in King Street United Church, Bowmanville, when Rev. J. D. The bride was lovely in a handembroidered floor-length gown of taffeta wedding gown, fashioned with fitted bodice, square neckline and long tight fitting sleeves.

Her elbow length tulle veil was caught to her hair with lily bands made flowers and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and bouvardia. Pfc.-Lt. W. Stavely gave the bride in marriage.

Miss Laura Funnell, her sister's maid of honor, was wearing mauve chiffon over taffeta, with full skirt, short puff sleeves under bright and veil fell in graceful folds from a coronet of hand-made flowers. She carried a shower bouquet of Talisman roses and bouvardia.

Miss Evelyn Pritz, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. C. Webb, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. The former was in turquoise taffeta, with dainty lace edging on the fitted bodice and long tight-fitting sleeves. Her headdress was similar to that of Miss Pritz, only in pink. Her arm bouquet was of red roses and bouvardia.

Richard Browne, brother of the groom, from Leamington, acted as groomsman. The ushers were Sergeants Alexander and Stepler of the R.C.A.F.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother for approximately sixty-five guests. The bride's mother was attired in a navy blue suit of midnight blue with black accessories and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was wearing turquoise blue with brown accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

For the wedding trip, the points west, the bride chose a pink two-piece ensemble and black accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Trenton.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Browne and Mrs. Richard, of Leamington; Mrs. R. Newman, Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, Detroit; Mrs. Pinkston, Belleville; Mr. Thomas Pelzer, Brighton and Mr. William Connor and Miss Connor of Belleville, the former the bride's maid mother who also attended Albert College.

The groom has just recently returned from service overseas.

Man Shopper Finds Buying by Coupon Has Its Difficulties

It has always been women's claim that men shop for only a few things. However things have been in order lately, with a long list of many things rationed many men have a very difficult time when they have to go off and leave them to attend to the shopping. Not being used to the coupon system they often find their task made doubly difficult.

Such was the position of a man who was shopping in a corner store the other day. He had a list carefully made out, probably given to him by his wife. The difficulty was, however, that she had failed to make clear the quantities desired. The shopper kept conferring with the proprietor, who had made out the list to make sure that nothing was being overlooked. At the top of the list was written quite plainly, "Do not forget the ration books" and following instructions the man had several of the required documents in his hand.

"I Don't Know" Said He

One of the items on the list was coffee, but when the clerk asked how much he wanted, he said, "I don't know, I guess one of those tins." The clerk decided that that would be a pound, and extracted the corresponding tin. At the bottom

Dykes White Sox Challenging For Sixth First Division Spot in the Last Nine Years

Team Now in Second Place in the American Loop

YANKEES WIN

James Joseph Dykes and his White Sox are in second place in the American League this morning, and before he starts getting rosy ideas about bowling a 300 game on the next miracle, somebody's better get him shoved out of the clouds.

Right, now, it looks like the Sox are going to wind up as Dykes' fifth first division White Sox club in the nine years he's been starring the southsiders.

Dykes has been saying all along that Gordon the Schmaltz Maltsberger is a handy guy to have around and he's proved it last night. Gordon had won only two games in last night, with the tying run on third and the winning run on second, handed James Earl Johnson to give the Sox a 5-4 decision over Washington Senators.

Going into yesterday's games, the Sox, Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers were all tied up in second place, when the Indians were given the old Yankee treatment in the double-header that New York and the Tigers were postponed in Boston — and there you are. The Indians got the usual Yankee lumps yesterday, Lefty Marius Russo handcuffed them with a two-hitter and beat them 11-1 with the help of homers by Charley Keller, Joe Gordon and Bud Metheny.

That was the only fun in the Junior circuit yesterday and last night, since the Tigers and St. Louis Brownies were rained out. Next end in a couple of rassles with old man weather tonight, and Philadelphia.

But over in the National League, the Phoolish Phillies' new manager, Pat Freddie Fitzsimmons, fouged out the score in a hurry. His Phils chalked up two runs for a 2-1 decision over the Reds in a playoff of their protested game continued from June 5. Then the Cardinals got peeved and what with a nine-run fourth inning they pepped it on Pat Freddy's phantastic 13-3 triumph over Brooklyn's regularly scheduled shindig.

The only other tatty-pull saw Johnny Vander Meer fan 14 and walk nine to bell-cow Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 decision over the Boston Braves.

ORIOLES DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER WITH ROCHESTER

Manager of Baltimore Moans Because He is Losing Players

CHIEFS SHUTOUT

By The Associated Press

All that noise you hear coming from the lower depths of the International League are the moans and groans put out by the suffering Tommy Thomas of Baltimore Orioles.

In mid-July he lost Bob Repass, considered by many to be the best shortstop in the circuit, to the Army Forces and it wasn't until Wednesday that Jim McLeod broke in to help Tommy to fill the gap.

Now Thomas, whose club is within five percentage points of the first division, has been informed that Ted Szczepkowski, one of his few remaining regulars, has been drafted by the Coast Guard and will report to the Curtiss Bay station next Tuesday.

The club went out and divided a twin bill with Rochester last night, dropping the first by an 8-1 score but taking the second with an 18-hit barrage, 19-7. In the only other baseball game in the circuit last night, Montreal handed Syracuse its 13th shutout of the year, 5-0, with Hal Gregg doing the flinging. Szczepkowski was stationed at second base in the first game and batted .333 as Fred Schmidt twirled his 10th triumph of the campaign.

Early in the second fray, with Kemp Wicker, manager Pepper Martin and pitchers Al Harpe and catcher Jerry Burmeister all sharing the Rochester mound duties, Szczepkowski cracked out two blows as the Baltimore nine won easily.

Toronto and Newark, the league's two top clubs, were idle last night as teams their crucial first place series tonight.

Toronto, July 30 — (CP) — For years now, field lacrosse has ranked with Tom Thumb golf, silent motion pictures and Mah-Jongg — good while it lasted, but pretty likely to return. Edouard (Newsy) Lalonde takes issue with this theory. A booster figure in hockey and lacrosse circles more than two decades ago, Newsy tells Jack (Cornwall Standard – Freeholder) Park field lacrosse can be revived if sportsmen prepare now to launch the game after the war.

Boxla, in Newsy's eyes, lacks the science of the more ancient sport. "The new ball will box lacrosse if field men are smart." Hockey better watch out, too — power plays are sending the game downhill fast. One of his visions is a post-war senior lacrosse league along lines of the old National Union, embracing Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Cornwall clubs.

Lalonde started his career as a printer at 23 a week and derives his nickname from connections with the old Cornwall Freeholder, forerunner of the Standard-Freeholder. He visited Park in the latter's office and conducted at the flow of world news over the teletypes. "You can sit right in the office now and be a reporter," he said.

Net Guilty:

Dave (Sugina Leader-Post) Dryburgh tells about the presiding steward who confronted a swimmer with an electric battery the steward believed had been used illegitimately. Disclaiming ownership, the horseman replied disarmingly: "Mine has a piece of adhesive tape on it."

SCORE IS 5-0

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 138 LESSON NO. 139

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You can open without a can-opener in bridge. All you need for an opening bid of one in a suit are these minimum amounts: Five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable suit.

Why do you need a biddable suit? So partner will know if he has adequate support for it.

Why do you need two sure tricks? So partner will know you have reasonably quick control in half your suits.

Why do you need four high cards? So partner will know that many no-trump tricks to expect in your hand.

Why do you need five suit tricks? So partner will know the least number of tricks you have. Also how many additional tricks you show with your future bids.

If you bid again, follow the order of choice in T-A-N: takeout, assist, no-trump. But any future bid must make, whether forced or not, must also tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

To not bid a new suit unless it is biddable. Do not rebid an unassisted suit unless it is rebiddable. To not assist unless you have adequate support. Do not raise unless you have support.

You have this hand:

♠ A K 8 5
♥ 9 4
♦ 10 5 4 3 2
♣ 8 6 5

Your opening bid with that hand is one diamond. Not only is your diamond suit biddable. It is the best, rebiddable.

Suppose your partner responds with one no-trump. Following T-A-N, it would seem that your second round bid should be two diamonds, a takeout to your re-biddable suit.

But that is not what you should do with the hand you have. Instead you should pass on the second round. Why? Because, in order to rebid your diamonds, you would increase the contract number.

When may you increase the number in the last partnership contract? On a subject we'll start talking about tomorrow. Take a rabbicheck.

There once was a bridge playing Jane who drove all her partners insane. If you bid a suit, she thought it was cute to raise you again and again,

When have you enough to raise your partner's last bid? Plunge right into lesson number 139 in Horse Sense Bridge. It reads: Raise once for each trick not previously consumed.

A raise is an increase in the last partnership number. Each raise consumes a trick in addition to what your partner already expected in your hand.

Maybe the word "consume" does not cling like a flash. Think nothing about it. The meaning of it will register without much effort as we go along from here.

Start with the fact that a bid of one is a contract to take seven tricks. The opening bidder promises five of those seven tricks. Partner is expected to have the other two.

Now, suppose partner bid of one shows five tricks. And all five of those tricks are consumed in the opening bid of one. None of those five tricks may be used for further bids.

When may the opener raise in future rounds of bidding? Only when he has more than the five tricks he has consumed in his opening bid. Then, he may raise once for each trick in excess of five.

You have this hand:

♠ A K 8 5
♥ A Q 10 4
♦ J 2
♣ A K 6

Your opening bid with that hand is one heart. You have exactly five tricks. Two aces, a king, a queen, a short card in diamonds. Your opening bid shows and consumes those five tricks.

Suppose your partner responds with an assist to two hearts. No new suit bidding is available. You have no more tricks with which to raise the assisted suit. You should pass.

Partner's interest is not in the stuff you haven't got.

"The Black Swan"
(In Technicolor)

For entertainment at its zenith, be sure to visit the Capitol theatre this week. Here 20th Century-Fox is presenting Rafael Sabatini's "The Black Swan." This technicolor adventure triumph, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, is far and away the most outstanding film of its type that has been seen this year.

Picture, if you will, the entertainment slab that is served. Tyrone Power, in our book one of the finest of stars at the present time by virtue of his ability to do anything and everything extremely well, is in a role that is hand-tailored for him.

As Pirate Captain "Jamey" Waring, he gets every opportunity to display those qualities that have kept him at the top of the heap for the last five years. Paired with him in the romance line is that scintillating, impossed over the basic adventure story is creamy complexioned, generously apoloned Maureen O'Hara. Maureen's a spirited damsel in this film, and it takes a great deal of masterful wooing yb the dashing buccaneer before she's won over.

"Pardon My Gun"

Don't let the title fool you: There's nothing polite or dignified about Columbia's new western, "Pardon My Gun" which opened yesterday at the Capitol theatre. In fact, this histrionic Chas. Starrett outdoor adventure yarn packs more action and excitement into its 61 minutes than any picture of its type that we've seen in this season.

Filled with flashing gunfire and roaring action, the new Charlie features lovely Alma Carroll and Arthur Hunnicutt in its supporting cast, plus Texas Jim Lewis and His Lone Star Cowboys.

Second hand Zane Grey's "King of the Mounties" rounds out a grand entertaining program.

AT THE McCARTHY

What's Bumin Cousin?

A musical picture said to be one of the merriest and brightest films of the current season is coming to the McCarthy Theatre on Monday. The picture is "What's Buzzin Cousin?", a Columbia production featuring Ann Miller, Rochester, John Hubbard and Freddy Martin and his popular swing orchestra.

Directed by Charles Barton, the story of "What's Buzzin Cousin?" sounds like a perfect showcase for displaying the unusually fine talents of the leading performers. There's Ann Miller, a clever actress as well as a brilliant dancer. After "Reveille With Beverly" we know what to expect from this pert miss and it's entertainment that's tops. Did say one ever stay stormy listening to Rochester, that popular funny fellow? And to add the "ice to the groove" touch, Freddy Martin's orchestra is said to provide out some great sweet and hot arrangements of the new tunes featured in this picture. There are a raft of them and they all sound like hit songs.

William Frawley (L), Jane Frazee, Allan Jones and Marjorie Lord have several comedic, dramatic scenes together in Universal's "Moonlight in Havana," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"Cabin in the Sky"

Music, drama and fantasy mingle in rapid-fire entertainment that holds in a air-conditioned Hades and ends in a wrecked night club in "Cabin in the Sky" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the Broadway stage hit, which is now on the Belle theatre screen.

Relaxing song hits of the original show, augmented by new original music, and featuring Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Lena Horne, Ethel Waters, Louis Armstrong with his famous trumpet, Duke Ellington and his band, and the Hall Johnson Choir.

"Dumb Hounded" is the title of a colorful cartoon to be presented on the same program with "Keep 'Em Sailing" a timely and entertaining Crime-Does-Not-Pay story.

Also on the program is "Rolling Thunder" a thrilling "Edge of Darkness" the Warner Bros. film based upon William Woods' popular novel of the same name, and the new screen offering at the Belle theatre this week-end.

Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan head one of the most outstanding casts ever assembled in the one motion picture. Featured in the supporting cast are Nancy Coleman, talented young player who performed so brilliantly in "Kings Row", "The Gay Sisters" and others; Walter Huston, John Compton and Jerry Cohen in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" with long be remembered; Judith Anderson and Ruth Gordon, both prominent players of stage and screen.

Other important names in the film include John Beal, Charles Dingle, Morris Carnovsky, Roman Bohnen and Helmut Dantine, who scored in "Mrs. Miniver" and "Casablanca".

Brought to life on the screen is the story of a Norwegian fishing village, its simple peacelovng people, and of the brutal Nazi hordes that stamp out freedom wherever it goes.

A Merrie Melodie color cartoon "Jack Wabbit and the Beanstalk", Canadian Paramount News, and a new chapter of "Vanishing Men" will likely be exhibited. Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

Steam Shovel Blocks Traffic on Bridge

Trenton (Special) — Trenton's bridge of 1916, though extremely modern in that day, is definitely not adapted to present day traffic as was again demonstrated Thursday afternoon during the rush hour between 5 and 5.30.

A huge steam shovel on tractor tread, being transported through town on a truck was the means of holding up traffic for more than an hour, also doing considerable damage to the pavement. As the piece of machinery neared the bridge it became quite apparent it would not clear the arches and had to be taken down from the float to attempt the crossing under its own power. The shovel attempted to cross on its tractor but found that it removed too high for the clearance. The smoke stack had to be lowered and when this down more and black coal, smoke and steam filled the air until the engineer

Hour of Grace

On the fifth floor Meegan opened the door, stepped into the foyer and went into the living room that had the dusty, musty odor of an airless, unlived-in room. When she turned on the light, the room took shape and personality and color and she saw Erica glancing at the old, good furniture that was too massive for an apartment and at pictures that were too large for pictures that were too large for apartment walls. In had long seemed to Meegan that their furniture longed to burst from its confinement and return to the high wide rooms of the home to which it had first been brought.

"I won't be long", she said to Erica. "Can I get you something to drink"?

"No, thank you," Erica said. And no doubt because she was feeling self conscious again she picked up a thick book that lay on the coffee table. "Who's been reading Omar Khayam?" she asked.

Meegan glanced at the open bookshelves, seeing a thin gap like a missing tooth.

"I don't know". Someone had been in the apartment. The janitor had access but hardly an old colored janitor would pick up the Rubaiyat . . . And so that Erica should see what she was thinking she walked toward the bedroom and said "I won't be long".

In the room that she shared with her mother and she went quickly about getting a coat from a closet, phone bag and two sweaters from a bureau drawer heavy with the odor of moth balls . . . . All the while thinking that someone had been in the apartment and knowing that neither her mother nor she had been in it since they left in May. Toby . . . Toby, of course. But would Toby return to read the Rubaiyat in a small and stifling apartment in mid-summer? Someone had been with him, Clare . . . It had been Clare who had left the gap in the bookshelves because Clare never put anything back when it came . . . How characteristic of her not to replace the book but to cast it aside when she was done with it.

She went into the living room again with the coat and sweaters over her arm.

"I'm going to the kitchen for a glass of water. Then we can be getting back."

"I'm in no hurry," Erica said. She glanced up, her eyes bright. "I love this, the Rubaiyat . . . There's a gift in the public library who suggested books to me. Funny, most of them don't say anything new. But they put your thoughts into words so much better than you can".

Meegan knew her understanding smile was feeble. Going to the white, anonymous kitchen she turned on the light and opened the compartment door and reached for a glass, seeing that of the many glasses on the shelf only two had been placed with their rims up. Only two glasses, different from the others when all of the glasses had been left the same. Clare and Toby had had drinks . . . while one or the other had been reading the Rubaiyat . . .

She returned to the living room and to Erica.

"I'll give you a copy of that for Christmas", she said. But not this copy . . . Not this copy for Erica.

Erica put up and put the book back in place. "I didn't think I'd see you after we left the island".

"I'm driving, too, you know. Of course we'll see each other".

"You and Adele. I'd like to see Adele. I'd like to see Toby, too. I thought he was interested in getting a job at the plant, but he has not talked about it lately".

"I hope he will talk about it again, I'm ready now".

Driving back to the island they talked about books, a safe subject, for a little while it was very pleasant indeed to be . . . riding . . . gently through the summer night talking about favorite books with Erica.

Then Erica said, "There's the island ahead. It looks . . . well, from here you'd think only happy things happened there".

"Like Utopia from here". Meegan took a deep breath. If only there was some way of not seeing Sue tonight . . . "I'm going next door to stay with Mrs. Van Nostrand's children tonight. So you needn't take me home".

WILL BROOK NO OBSTACLE —Woodstock Herald, July 30. (CP)—Home Secretary Herbert Morrison said today that the first demand upon Italy will be that she throw no obstacle in the path of the United Nations, whose goal now is to crack Germany.

Italy's future, he said, is the concern of the governing consideration in our dealings with Italy, and we shall not hesitate to use force if we have to."

Barn and Contents Destroyed by Fire

Spontaneous combustion in a mow-full of recently stored hay is believed to have been responsible for completely destroying the large frame barn of Donald Johnston, 1st Concession of Thurlow Township, shortly after eight o'clock, Monday afternoon.

The fire is thought to have started in the south end of the packed barn and had gained considerable headway before being noticed by the family. The Ivan Ketcham farm was burning on the hill while the farm tractor stored in the building was also lost. No stock was in the barn.

Belleville Fire Department was called to the scene of the blaze and assisted in protecting the main residence and other buildings from the fire although the blaze caught one of the sheds which had to be extinguished. Two small buildings were saved from the flames, but a combined hog house and implement shed, only a few feet from the barn, was consumed. It was in the latter building the farm tractor was stored.

Approximately 100 loads of hay were destroyed in the blaze with the entire loss being estimated at approximately $4,000, $2,000 of which is partially covered by insurance.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 30 —(CP)— Stocks were higher in the early session on moderate volume today, particularly the Golds and Industrials. Golds advanced to a new high for the year, on fairly heavy trading, Hargreaves rising 40 cents and Bankfield, Kerr and Wright-Hargreaves each 25 cents. Base Metals were also in the limelight, Kerr-Addison advanced to 8.15 but weakened to 7.90 under profit-taking for a net gain of 10. Other feature traders included Falconbridge, Noranda, Aunor, Kirkland Lake, Beattie and Upper Canada. Base Metals Corporation was a Base Metal feature on the up side and gains were made by Consolidated Corporation and Hudson Bay.

Newsprints and Miscellaneous Industrials ruled higher and International leaders weakening narrowly included C.P.R. Brazilian, Dominion Foundries and Imperial Oil.

WALL STREET

New York, July 30 — (AP) — The stock market reversed its trend today after attempts by leading shares to add to Thursday's gains and many prominent issues lost ground. Losses of fractions to more than a point were widespread today at the fourth hour.

Most tangible factor behind the decline was the mounting of British war cabinet shortly after midnight. Rumors had it that peace with Italy was the subject and the vestors turned wary, for the market took heart overnight on "by the peace scare" of Mussolini's resignation was fresh in their minds.

Among mixed Canadian issues, Distillers Seagram gained 1-8, Lake Shore 1-8 and Canada & 3-8, Canadian Pacific and McIntyre dropped fractionally and Hollinger 1-8 was unchanged.

Belchtown Steel drew occasional support. Slipping were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Monsemery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas, United Aircraft, N. Y. Central, Westinghouse Coast, Pont, International Nickel and Western Union.

HOGS

Toronto, July 30 — (CP) — Prices were unchanged at keenly buy markets reporting early today.

Liveweight: Chatham $13.

Dressed: Toronto, Montreal and Hamilton $16.75 delivered. Stratford $16.50 delivered, Brantford $16.35 plus transportation, Niall $16.60 plus transportation, Chatham $16.15 plus transportation.

WOULD AGGRAVATE PROBLEM

London, July 30 — (CP) — Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, already acute, would be aggravated if Italy surrendered on Gen. Eisenhower's terms involving Italian prisoners to go home.

The Italians in Britain have been a big help on the farms, and many of them have been so happy they would like to bring their families here instead of returning to Italy.

Their release would force Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor and National Service, to reconsider his decision to stop recruiting for the Women's Land Army.

British Women's War Service Nearly Up to Strength

London, July 29 —(CP)— British Women's Auxiliary Services are nearly up to full strength and no further age groups will be conscripted under the National Service Acts, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin told Commons today.

All women in groups now subject to conscription will be asked to enter aircraft factories and the government will extend the registration age of women available for employment to include those of 50 years, Bevin said.

To ease the labor shortage in the coal mines, Bevin said, all men eligible for military service will be given the option of entering the mines. Heretofore this option had been extended only to men over 35.

Answering questions on the recent announcement that the government may have to conscript youths of 16 to 18, for work in the mines, Bevin said he would not take such a step at present but it might be necessary lately if older men do not volunteer for the work.

ALLIED POWERS IN HARMONY ON ITALIAN CRISIS
BRITISH AND AMERICANS MAKE NEW GAINS

Britain, Russia Back Up Warning By Roosevelt

Churchill Orders Cabinet and Army Leaders to Stand By For Weekend

BIG NEWS MAY BREAK

London, July 31 (AP)—Great Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia are acting in close harmony in dealing with the Italian situation it was learned today, and it can be announced that any armistice terms laid down for Italy would carry the approval of all three powers.

This manifestation of Allied unity became known as Prime Minister Winston Churchill ordered all British cabinet members and heads of the fighting services to stand by over the weekend for any possible developments in connection with the Italian crisis.

Other Allied governments were also being kept informed of developments. Foreign Minister Anthony Eden summoned the British executives into conference shortly after the two early morning sessions yesterday of the British war cabinet.

How closely the Allies were working together was indicated by the speed with which Moscow backed up President Roosevelt's warning to neutral nations not to give refuge to Mussolini or any other war criminal. From the Russian capital, too, came the disclosure Great Britain had sent a similar warning to neutral countries even before it was officially announced in London.

It was pointed out that the three powers—Great Britain, the United States and Russia—are pledged to achieve unconditional surrender and the specific terms of any capitulation would be laid down with full regard for the military requirements of the Allies. These, presumably, would include a joint agreement as to the best methods of using Italy's surrender to strike at the major Axis power—Germany.

The early cabinet meeting created a wave of excitement in London and there was a feeling that big news was about to break—either a sudden capitulation by Italy or a possible new invasion blow.

Tuesday night was hailed by a Vatican City report broadcast by radio listeners into Lisbi Grandi Machione, Papal Secretary of State, had spent yesterday in almost continuous conversation with diplomats of countries accredited to the Holy See.

The general view in London was that Italy was at a crossroads—out of the war already, and one London newspaper, the Sunday Pictorial, carried a banner headline saying, "Italy may be out of the war by tomorrow."

As British public anger mounted over Premier Badoglio's delay in replying to the Allied peace demands, the possibility arose that he might be induced to step down in favor of anyone willing to sue for peace on the basis of terms outlined by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his message to the Italian people Wednesday. This, it was said, would provide a basis for talks between Badoglio and made any "pledges"—as Radio Rome has declared—concerning the downfall of Mussolini 1st Sunday.

"It is time that plain words were addressed to Marshal Badoglio," asserted Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express. "If it is his desire to make peace with the Allies he should hasten to accept the offer of honorable but unconditional surrender. By delay, by equivocation, by shilly-shallying, he is only making matters worse.

"In Italy, Badoglio, urging his peace-loving people to be patient, said last night:

"Italy cannot now get out of the war honorably and only without the exercise of great wisdom and caution. Time requires time."

The premier's broadcast was quoted by BBC, whose broadcast was recorded in New York by the National Broadcasting Company.)

From neutral listening posts and Axis radios came news and propaganda describing grave developments in Italy.

The Swiss frontier town of Chiasso heard reports that Italian troops in Milan had been placed under a new commander, Gen. Vittorio Ruggero, who had refused to fire on compatriots demonstrating for peace. Earlier, DNB, German News Agency, had reported Milan rioters firing on uniformed troops, Italian and German alike.

CIANO RESIGNS AS AMBASSADOR TO THE VATICAN

Accredited to Holy See After Six Years as Italy's Foreign Minister

CLAIMED ARRESTED

London, July 31 — (CP) — The anaRome radio said today Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, had resigned as Italian Ambassador to the Vatican.

Ciano was accredited to the Holy See last Feb. 7 after six years as Italy's foreign minister, a post which he had lost a few days earlier when Mussolini made a series of cabinet shifts.

Chiso, 39, is the husband of Mussolini's daughter, Edda, who has shared with him the safety of Vatican City since the fall of Rome months.

Opening of an avenue for a possible peace bid was among the ideas advanced at the time as a possible explanation for his Ambassadorial appointment. Another was German antipathy for him.

New War Minister

It was announced Giraud will preside over the committee, when military affairs are discussed while deGaulle will occupy the chair when civilian affairs are the order of the day.

The permanent military commission composed of Giraud and de-Gaulle and their respective chiefs of staff was abolished and it will be replaced by the office of war ministers.

The French military crisis was brought to a head by Giraud's immediate action on a compromise plan submitted by deGaulle.

Formal questions of the fusion of the Fighting French Army and the North African forces of Gen. Giraud came to a head with the new War Minister who will be responsible for the organization of national defence headed by deGaulle.

The action committee will direct-tion of this unified military power to be in Giraud's hands as Commander-in-Chief.

REMSCHEID, RUHR STEEL CENTRE, HIT BY RAF BOMBERS

First Heavy Assault Of War Staged on This Objective by 'Large Flight'

17 PLANES LOST

London, July 31—(CP)—The Allies rolling air offensive shifted to a new target last night when R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers blasted at Remscheid, German steel centre on the edge of the Ruhr.

It was the first raid of the war on Remscheid, which was picked out for last night's heavy assault after Hamburg had been subjected to its seventh attack in a week on Thursday. Moment of the Ruhr city attack Moose Squadron flew with the R.A.F. on the raid.

The tremendous offensive rolled on throughout daylight today with light bombers and fighters of Allied bombers being shepherded out over the channel by fleets of fighters.

Appears In State of Eruption

It was followed by a series of explosions and heavy gunfire reverberated throughout the morning hours. Reports from the whole northern French coast appeared to be in a state of eruption.

At the same time R.A.F. and Canadian Mosquitoes and Beaufighters attacked enemy airfields and railway targets in sweep over France and Holland, the air ministry communique disclosed. One Canadian plane was lost.

Fifteen bombers and two fighters, including one Canadian bomber, are missing from the night's attacks.

Remscheid is the centre for the manufacture of machine and precision tools vital to German munitions production.

The specific target of the big bomber force was the works of the Alexanderwerk A.G. which covers 75 acres in the suburbs. Other buildings in the territory for the chemical industry and for the manufacture of railway rolling stock and armaments.

All Electors Should Vote and Should Vote Early on Wednesday

On Wednesday next, August 4th., voters of the Province of Ontario will elect a new Legislature.

It is at this time the duty and responsibility as well as the opportunity of all voters to exercise their franchise. Everyone should vote and assume his or her share in helping to decide the membership of the new provincial legislative body. The vote should be the largest possible so that the result may be representative of the will of the people.

This is one of the privileges of democracy — that the people elect their Legislature to govern in their name.

In using the ballot the voter is exercising his or her best judgment as to who should represent the constituency in which the voter lives and also is helping to choose the next Legislature.

There should be more than usual interest in the present election because of the very number of candidates, namely 363, contesting the ninety constituencies. There are no fewer than nine ridings in which there are four-cornered contests and there are 73 ridings where there are three-cornered contests. And in each of the Hastings ridings there are three candidates and the same is true in respect to Prince Edward-Lennox constituency.

Voters are urged to plan to get out to vote without fail. They know that the ballot is the final word and the means of expressing their opinion on matters relating to the Government of this Province.

Voters should vote early on Wednesday. The polls will be open from 8 a.m. and will remain open until 7 p.m.

Safety of the Italian Navy Concerns Allies Almost As Much As It Did Il Duce

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press War Analyst

Allied planes are over the Italian fleet almost every day. This is by revelation of a military secret, it's just something that's been there all the time. But no bombs are dropped. Why?

Outside of a flurry at La Spezia, Italy's important naval base, have come remarkably scot free recently. Crotone was bombarded and bombed, but the Messerschmitts too often from the Middle East went to Bari duty. Taranto escaped out the airfield. There may have been something at La Spezia, so near the Mussolini Strait, that needed attention just before the invasion of Sicily, but on the whole the Allied air appear to have been almost as solicitous for the safety of the Italian navy as was Mussolini.

It may be only that the bombers have had more urgent work to do elsewhere. But there may be another answer.

There has been the suggestion that the pendulum in Italy might even yet go far as to bring her into the war on our side.

If the rage to occupy her shipyards and factories would be available for transportation and supply of her fleet and, with raw materials from the United Nations, she might do a much better job of it than she did for herself.

One reason with whom I discussed the subject disagrees. He says the Italian fleet is now dispersed, making bombing not worthwhile during the other more urgent Mediterranean campaigns of recent months. But several others think the harbors of La Spezia, Bari and Taranto are loaded with ships, and the concentrations at Genoa, Venice and even at heavily-bombed Naples. They say if the Allies are not coming out, cannot come out in the face of aerial reconnaissance and superiority, and that they are not building any more Allied naval strength in the Mediterranean than would be necessary anyway.

The initial landing of the land-ing the Loyal Edmontons and the 48th Highlanders came in as reserve units. Then landed the two Militimes regiments and the Royal Canadian Dragoons. The R.C.R. raced inland to capture Pachino aerodrome and smash the Italian defence posts northeast of the town. The other adhoc infantry battalions, some fighting on the beaches, then advanced inland. The Loyal Edmontons occupied—Ispica on the march into Central Sicily and Princess Pats and Princess Pats occupied Modica.

The Canadians moved up through Vizzini and the first spirited action came in Grammichele, between Vizzini and Callagirone, when the Hastings and Prince Edward Infantry, tanks and guns blasted an advance guard of Hastings and Prince Edward men working with a tank reconnaissance patrol.

The enemy fired on the column and knocked out some Bren gun carriers before the Canadian force pushed on stormed down and drove the Germans out.

GROWING MIGHT OF ALLIES READY FOR PACIFIC WAR

Series of Great Offensive Thrusts Against Japan May Soon Start

MAY RAID TRUK

Washington, July 31—(AP)—The growing might of Allied arms in the Pacific is being readied for a series of great offensive thrusts against Japan which will be the present preparatory strategy has set the stage.

This was the understanding here today following the visit to the United States Navy Secretary Frank Knox that the present "limited-to-distant future.

In reviewing the situation at a press conference the Navy Chief agreed that Allied forces have made great major stabs at vital strong points in Japan's island empire system. South points which includes the naval base of Truk in the Caroline Islands, and the naval bases in the Philippines and various defence outposts in the islands north of Japan, with the fall of which its every heart of the enemy would be expelled to assault and destruction.

Knox made it clear the purposes of the current island-hopping campaigns are to furnish jumping-off places from which crippling attacks be made.

REINFORCEMENTS FAIL TO CHECK RUSSIAN DRIVE

4,000 Nazis Killed as Reds Move Six Miles Closer to Orel

REDS USE CAVALRY

Moscow, July 31 —(AP)— German reinforcements flown to Russia from Germany are thus a day before they were thrown into the battle broke before the furious onslaught that brought Red army forces closer to Orel yesterday, front dispatches said today.

At least 4,000 German troops fell before the Russian onslaught which battered its way for gains up to six miles and possession of two more villages in the path of the Soviet steamroller slowly grinding the key German base, a Soviet communique said.

The reports said German prisoners taken in the offensive declared they had been flown to the front from Stettin day before yesterday.

Red army infantry and cavalry units succeeded in driving German forces out of several villages, the communique reported. In another sector north of Orel, 300 Germans were killed, nine tanks were disabled and four destroyed.

Underground Forces in Balkans, Occupied Countries Await Revolt

Madrid, July 31 — (AP) — Underground forces of Occupied Europe and especially those in German Balkan governments, stirred by Mussolini's downfall and Hitler's crisis, have grown increasingly restless and some are awaiting orders to erupt against Axis powers, Balkan dispatches and reports from widely-separated points indicated today.

An indication Germany views the Balkan situation gravely was seen in reports the Nazis were hastily consolidating their positions in Bulgaria, Greece and Italy's Balkans, possibly in fear of an Allied thrust there to capitalize on sympathy from the Balkan peoples.

Reports from Istanbul said last night Axis troops had fired on Greek patriots protesting German orders requiring Bulgarian troops to replace garrison points. There were "numerous casualties," said the broadcast.

(Widespread strikes and violent street demonstrations were touched off, in the wake of the fall of Mussolini.

(A Berlin broadcast quoted an Athens dispatch as saying German occupation troops had been removed from many Greek cities because they were needed elsewhere due to "military necessity" and increased Allied air activity.)

Spanish correspondents in Vichy reported the "Communist" Liberal there was growing, according to Vichy authorities.

Inasmuch as Vichy calls any anti-Nazi activity "Communistic" these reports were interpreted as referring to all underground groups.

One Vichy dispatch reported a Paris Nazi-controlled radio broadcast 100 "Communists" and French veterans from the German front in Russia. "Police witnessed the attack but did nothing," the dispatch said, adding "there were casualties on both sides." It reported several continuous attacks by underground groups against occupation authorities throughout French territory.

(From Berne, Switzerland, came reports of violent rumblings in Vichy-dominated France. The Zurich newspaper Weltwoche suggested France's secret army numbers at least 300,000 men, all observing in a burning hatred of the occupying forces of the Vichy regime.")

The Bern Switzerland correspondent of the Prolange newspaper Arriba reported "this which the Communists cannot settle, will be settled by bayonets, and the war approaches in a crisis of liberation."

The Istanbul pauper patriot guerilla bands were watching Italian developments, observers said, before any army they might leave if called home, and Bulgarian partisan bands have concluded a formal agreement with the guerilla forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovich. Balkan reports stated. All have been tremendously encouraged by Allied successes in Sicily and raids against Italy. Most are continuous, the reports said.

NO RUN REPORTED ON 'FROZEN' GOODS

On entering many of Belleville's grocery stores this morning, and glancing over the rows of canned goods on the shelves, it appeared that the stores much better stocked than would be expected but on closer examination this illusion vanished. The well-filled shelves proved to have a greater sameness. Condensed milk, several varieties of soup and a few tonics were doing their best to keep up appearances.

When asked whether there had been a run on canned goods since the order from Ottawa freezing stocks of canned fruits, and vegetables, the answer in each case was "No." One clerk said that the demand had been no greater than usual, but that people were asking whether canned goods were rationed or not, were going to be rationed. She also said there was no demand for fruit in the store, but that there were still a few vegetables.

Another store keeper gave a reply which undoubtedly many would give if questioned. "No, we didn't have any to run on."

PAPERS TAKEN FROM NEWS STAND

The petty thieving of newspapers left in the doorway at W. G. Bell's news stand, 303 Front Street, has excited no little annoyance to the proprietor, police were informed Saturday. The newspapers are left each morning neatly tied by the publishing delivery trucker. Before Mr. Bell arrives to open his place of business, however, sneak thieves open the papers and steal anywhere from two to a dozen papers each morning. Police promised to patrol the area in the future with hopes of apprehending the guilty party.

At the police station the airmen gave their names as Herbert Sutcliffe and Sidney Pardue, both of the R.C.A.F. stationed at Kingston. They were placed in custody on charges of intoxication.

Trenton Boys Mentioned By Correspondent When Heights Scaled at Assoro

Trenton, July 31 (Special)—Trenton people are feeling more than proud today in the mention of their boys in the hard scaling of the heights of Assoro, Sicily. After nearly two years of training the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment is at last getting an opportunity to show what fine fighters they really are, so it would seem by the lads will be mentioned in the next few days, perhaps days or patches but today singled out only two Lieut. Jack McClibbon and Regimental Sergeant Major August Duffy.

Lieut. McClibbon is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McClibbon of 181 Henry Street and is now just 20 years old. At 18 he enlisted in the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment and after only some weeks at No. 20 Canadian Army (Basic) Training Centre, Trenton, was made a lance corporal. He was then promoted to full corporal and after only a few months was given a commission as second lieutenant. He was then posted to the Regimental Sergeant Major but before Christmas 1938, he was left for overseas. He has been most popular with his men, and one of him in his home he is referred to as "The Little Caesar of the Unit." He has also had the honor awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal for meritorious service. He returned from Trenton to represent the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment at the coronation of the present King and Queen.

McClibbon is with the R.C.A.F. at Rockliffe, Ont., having first graduated with a B.A. from Queen's University, Kingston. The father of this military family, is a prominent Trenton lawyer for a number of years collector of Customs at Trenton. Duffy live in Belleville. He had been with the regiment since 1939 starting as a Signaller, he quickly gained rank to Regimental Sergeant Major. Sergeant Major just before Christmas 1938, when left for overseas. He has been most popular with his men, and is referred to by them as "Gus" as the "Little Caesar of the Unit."

He has also been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Medal for meritorious service. He returned from Trenton to represent the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment at the coronation of the present King and Queen.

Col. Vanderwater Reviews Achievements of Liberal Government in Province

Liberal Candidate for West Hastings Speaks at Bancroft and Maynooth

Travelling northward in the West Hastings riding on Friday night, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Liberal candidate for the constituency addressed two meetings, speaking first at Bancroft and later at Maynooth. Col. Vanderwater was supported on the platform at Bancroft by Mr. M. Burgess of Belleville and Mr. P. J. Brown, the Liberal candidate for the sister riding of East Hastings. Mr. Brown also spoke at the meeting at Maynooth.

Col. Vanderwater said that it was only fair that he made it impossible for his appearance on the platform as he had been during years younger he would be with the Liberal party. "I am also proud to state why are so valiantly fighting in Sicily," he said, "and for these in time of total warfare, that a citizen must serve wherever he can is best, declared the speaker. Col. Vanderwater. "I am offering myself in the coming election in West Hastings because I feel that I can do my bit by representing the people of West Hastings."

"Since the end of the last war I have been a resident of West Hastings and an active worker in the county and I am willing to leave the verdict in your hands whether I am your choice or not. I have spent you for five years in the Provincial Legislature," Col. Vanderwater said. "The main topic not only of this country of West Hastings but in the whole Dominion of Canada is the co-operation of the war effort and upholding Canada's part in it."

Nine-Year Record

"Let us look at the record and achievements of the Provincial Administration during the past nine years," continued Col. Vanderwater. "I am not going to deal with them in detail, you all know them. I am not going to weary you with them, you can get them from the newspapers. Those records and achievements have once been attacked on any just grounds by either of the other parties.

Col. Vanderwater went on to mention the fact that the Liberal Conservative and C. C. F. parties have had to offer. He said had a lot of fine promises and were committed to those promises, the Liberal Conservative with their 22 points and the C. C. F. with their 15-point platform, "but," asked the Colonel, "where is the money to come from to back up these promises?" He said that it must come from one or other of two places; either borrowed money, collected from natural resources or from direct taxation of the people. "You, Mr. Liberal, can that money be spared from the war effort to carry out these promises? There is no other way it can be done. It would be much better to use this money to bring the war to a speedy conclusion."

He proceeded to question whether the Federal Government would allow the spending of this money at a time like this. "It is the will of the people that we raise one hundred per cent behind this war effort and you, Mr. Liberal are very active to abide by your decision. Do you wish to change horses in the middle of a crisis? Is it sound and safe business to do so?"

Interests of People Looked After

Col. Vanderwater expressed his belief that the present Government had done more than could ordinarily be have been expected of them under the burden of war, stated that direct relief instituted for the rate payers. He said that the published figures speak for themselves and prove that the Government has looked after the interests of the people of the country of Hastings and other counties in Ontario.

A demonstration was held on Wednesday evening of this week from this very platform by the Progressive-Conservative party," declared the Colonel, "statements which were not reported in the not Press for that candidate. I will quote from what he said: Mr. Hepburn, a former Premier of the Province of Ontario, was the most successful Premier the Province of Ontario has ever produced." I would also like to show you in the Friday evening edition of the Ontario Intelligencer that this same candidate, speaking in Sprinbrook and Wallbridge, testified the same Mitchell Hepburn on account of his unfairness to the Province. Whereupon was in the County of Hastings," went on Col. Vanderwater, "we make the same statements, use the same subjects and the same line of attack that this candidate."

The Colonel pointed to his formal statement regarding the Liberal compact with the Dominion Government pertaining to the all-out war effort. He said: "Col. Drew crossed the Atlantic and visited the British Isles, also Germany and Russia. He returned home with the declaration that there should be a closer relationship with Germany and that Russia's Army was meagre."

Lauds Nixon

He passed from this subject to the "Hong Kong" situation to return to Leader Mr. Nixon. He spoke for 6 years of Legislative experience, the Province's wealth and the same riding continuously since 1918. His association in the service with all farmers, calling him: "One of our own." He also referred to the meeting to decide which they would have as the next. Nixon recommended the fate of the people of the county of West Hastings. "Here is the hands of a man who earns his livelihood by his hands as any of us. An agricultural business is best run by a farmer," said Col. Vanderwater, "you have a better fitted for it, and who is better than Harry Nixon, who is himself a farmer and a man we can depend on. He has had the training, he has the experience and there has never been a smirch on his character."

Approves Proxy Vote

Referring to the "Proxy vote", Col. Vanderwater said that there was no reason why the boys in the service should be refused a proxy vote whatsoever. He said that it was the duty of everybody to establish polls overseas where our soldiers, sailors and airmen are fighting or are stationed awaiting the call to the front. Previously he was stated by Col. Vanderwater as the only way to handle the vote of the service vote. "Col. Drew agreed to that legislation being passed but he is not so kind finding fault with it. It is typical of the man."

Col. Vanderwater enlarged upon these points at some extent and passed along to other subjects before leaving the Bancroft meeting to speak at Maynooth. At this latter village he added only one statement differing from the first meeting of the night, "the Liberal government, in power of myself and Mr. Nixon, pledge ourselves to maintain tributary roads in the County throughout the ensuing months, procuring the machinery needed and the labor necessary."

GROWING MIGHT

These future assaults undoubtedly will be correlated with operations in China against Japan's western flank. President Roosevelt said in his radio speech earlier this week that the enemy would be attacked from all corners of the compass.

Knox said it is "our estimate" that the enemy has already suffered such shipping losses that he faces extreme difficulty keeping his armed forces supplied adequately. The difficulty becomes greatest at the ends of his supply lines, in the Southwest Pacific, where the Japanese have built up what they hoped would be the Malay Peninsula to New Guinea.

Many Tanks Disabled

South of Orel, Russian troops were reported to have killed 3,000 Germans, destroyed 16 tanks and captured six others in addition to disabling or capturing a large number of artillery pieces.

The Russians also sent eight Soviet fighter planes engaged 22 of the Nazi bombers bringing down four without loss to themselves, the communique added.

In the Donets Basin area southwest of Voroshilovgrad, a 3,000 army hurled back a German assault with heavy loss, in Nazi transport and tanks, the bulletin said.

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, Frank Wilson, who passed away July 31st., 1934.

If I could only speak to you dear,
Laugh with you the same old way,
Hear your voice once more,
Then life to me would be worth while.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

months undergoing more or less vigorous training with the Canadian Army Overseas and at the same time viewing rolling English countryside, the sight of Canadian shores looked good to Neil Mcleod formerly of the West Huntingdon district. Neil arrived in Belleville this week having been granted a 28-day furlough.

Formerly associated with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Neil several months ago was transferred to another company but was still close enough to realize his former buddies were in intense training for the big adventure. He noticed familiar faces gradually disappear as members of advance parties, and then one morning the regiment was gone. Later it was learned his former buddies had gone to North Africa for the Sicilian campaign.

Born in England, Neil got into the First Great War "just in time for the Armistice," and later served with the Imperial Army in India. Of the billmen on the Afghan frontier he recalls one association. "They shoot at you without provocation and no fooling." he says.

Twenty years ago he returned to England from India and sought to make his home in Canada, arriving in the Cobalt mining district where he stayed for the next 17 years. In October, 1939, he enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and two months later was on the Atlantic bound for England again.

Neil met with the Canadians when they went into Sicily just prior to the downfall of France and was ashore for a matter of four days before the order came to get back to England. As at Dunkirk the Canadians were forced to leave most of their equipment behind, he said.

"I don't know where I am going when my leave is up," commented Neil when interviewed. "My directions will come at the end of the 28 days. In the meantime, however, I intend to do a lot of visiting around with friends in Belleville and West Huntingdon."

Neil has a brother in the Imperial Army who was taken prisoner during the evacuation of Dunkirk, while a second brother works at Batawa. He is now staying at the home of Mr. James Haggerty, Church Street.

Sweltering under a blistering hot sun, for the first time in years, the 1st Reserve Battalion Argyll Light Infantry under command of Lt.-Col. H. C. Duncan, M.C., D.C.M., E.D., assisted by the second in command, Major R. C. Sisler, arrived at Connaught Ranges, Petawawa, Ont., last Sunday afternoon, Headed by the Argyll Band, a column of equipment and personal belongings, the Argylls, led by the Pipe Band, were again the first unit to get off the train, formed up ready to move off to the rows of tents which are to be the home of many personnel for the next two weeks.

Everything had been made in readiness by the Unit Advance Party including the Adjutant Captain K. R. Holmes, Major Kyle-Morgan, Quartermaster and the A. & T. Staff from the Belleville Armouries.

* * *

A new system of messing has been introduced and along with the new arrangements being provided there is no question about the food being served to the troops here. 2nd Lieut. G. Cox, mess officer has all to say on the new regarding messing as he is the unit Messing Officer.

* * *

Great credit is due to Acting Regimental Sergt. Major Alex Lacey who is doing a splendid job along with the non-commissioned officers of the unit. The men on arrival Sunday last were immediately given a hot meal, then bedding, palliasses, etc. were issued by the quartermaster stores. Following the preliminary necessaries men spent the remainder of the time putting all lines in shape.

* * *

Captain Les. Shiels has been made unit Sports Officer and the unit has entered a softball team in the camp league. Wednesday next there will be a sports day in which all the units take part, the Argylls being well represented.

* * *

Training commenced promptly on Monday morning with a day on the ranges. 2nd Lieut. D. R. Kalbfleisch, the unit training officer, although attached to Headquarters as a range officer has done a splendid job in preparing a syllabus of training for the Argylls. Major Shafer, Major Hall, Captain Bateman, the unit weapon training officer, and R.S.M. Lacey, have done everything in their power to make the training as interesting as possible. Instruction in gas, Bren gun, rifle, drill, and lectures on military law are all included in the instruction being given here.

2nd Lieut. J. E. Dickens has been posted to Camp Headquarters as Liaison Officer, between Brigade and the units assembled at Connaught.

2nd Lieut. C. E. Davis and Sgt. R. Lanthier certainly were very fortunate in securing a course on fieldcraft under Captain T. C. Holmes, R.Q.M.S. The course was run all day Monday last and from all reports was very informative as all the work was practical. Sgt. D. H. Cox, C.O.C., is taking a course on universal carriers for Monday and the examination of which he will return to the unit and become the driving instructor for the unit. It is hoped in the near future that many more will be given the same opportunity. With regards unit courses, S.S.M. Holmes A. & T. Staff, Argyll Light Infantry, is now in the process of compiling which are to be the courses of study as unit drivers class III in a 3 day course beginning this date.

Wednesday, July 28th, all ranks again made a trip to the ranges under the unit officers and from reports, per 2nd Lieut. Kalbfleisch, scores of firing have been better all round, and a fact much better than those of the previous camp.

* * *

A very interesting lecture was given in the Headquarters building here last evening by Lt.-Col. L. F. Grant, D.S.O. 1 M.D. 3, who has just returned from a tour of all Canadian overseas units. All officers of Headquarters were present at the lecture and report that much was learned through this talk.

Estimate Apple Crop 25 Per Cent Below Normal

Principally as the result of a wet spring which retarded pollination of the blossoms, the apple crop in the Bay of Quinte district this summer is estimated by Agricultural Representative T3 per cent of normal, it was stated this week by Mr. Clarence Stevenson, district fruit inspector.

The late spring frosts, especially Spys, will be the most affected, although late developments have shown indication of a larger crop than was first expected. Of the early varieties of apples, McIntosh show promises of the best crop, it being claimed the yield will be close to that of the normal season.

The advent of wet weather during the spring months hampered with proper spraying and as the result of the inability to apply spraying at the proper time and the result of and to some extent, but caterpillars and worms were claimed not to be as noticeable this year as other years.

Scabby apples will find a good demand as the various processing plants across the province, it was indicated. Such plants for grinding sauce, pie filler and jam substitutes.

The pea and bean crop in the Bay of Quinte district is almost a complete failure as the result of an exceptionally cold winter injuring the trees, while the poor crop is also attributed to the backward Spring wet season. The few peach trees in the district were killed by the last winter, while large numbers of peach trees had been killed by frost in the Niagara Peninsula.

Cherry crop has also been below normal and with an extra demand having been shown prices are considered to be almost unprecedented figures. The demand has been so great that farmers have not had to attend markets with their cherries, city residents call directly to the farmer for what supplies are available.

Germans Fail To Hold Reds In Check at Orel

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, July 30 — All the German forces fighting desperately to hold Orel at all costs brought in fresh units from France and Germany yesterday but failed to check the crushing Soviet drive, the Russians announced today.

When knee-deep mud and driving rain threatened for a time to slow their massive attack on the Orel salient, the Red Army turned to a cavalry charge to drive the Germans from three fortified positions, front line dispatches said. Nazi forces were reported to have left 600 dead and large quantities of arms behind.

A Soviet communique said upwards of 3,000 Germans were killed as Orel's approaches and gains close to six miles were registered as 40 additional villages were captured.

The Germans counter-attacked east of Orel but the Russians said they beat off the waves of infantry and forged ahead after inflicting heavy losses.

A German regiment of 1,500 to 1,800 men was wiped out in another Orel battle when Nazi infantry supported by 30 tanks struck back at the advancing Red columns, the communique said. Two of the attacking tanks were burned out or disabled.

Hamburg Burned Out Says Flier

By SYDNEY GRUSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group, England, July 31 — (CP Cable) — Hamburg's combat area of industrial fleets systematically destroying Hamburg by increased use of thermite bombs was reported today by Canadian fliers participating in their third raid on the giant port this week.

"There were three times as many beams last night as on the second raid, and the Jerries have a new technique," said Sqdn. Ldr. John Mahoney of Ottawa.

"They are moving the lights slowly as if each had its own bit of sky to search. There is no rapid swinging about and the lights apparently are working for the night fighters."

Several squadrons of the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group were on the raid, including the Bomber Squadron now led by Wing Cmdr. Gordon Smith of Preston, Ont.

"They let the pilots echoed the observation of P/O. Gordon Barnhoiden of Moose Jaw, Sask., a bomb aimer, that "Hamburg seemed shaken right out and I don't see what would be the sense of owning real estate there."

An explosion described as "gigantic" was reported by Mahoney who said it seemed to come from the built-up area near the docks and the city centre.

"It was the biggest explosion I have ever seen," he added. "Flames shot up and spread like a beautiful mushroom and fire and smoke blasted 4,000 feet into the sky."

Despite heavy cloud cover the Canadians carried out their attack and taking good hold, Mahoney said.

Sgt. Cleius Lunny of Montreal reported having seen black smoke at 18,000 feet.

Others in the operation included Sgt. Harold Morris of Welland, Ont.

British Cruisers Shell Italian Mainland

New York, July 31 — (CP)—The BBC said today an overseas broadcast that correspondents in Sicily reported British cruisers and destroyers shelled the Italian mainland Thursday without opposition. Axis air reconnaissance.

It was the third time that British warships have shelled the Italian mainland.

NAZI SUB CREW MUTINY!

Montreal, July 30. (CP)— More reports of mutiny among German U-Boat crews in Norway have reached the Norwegian government's press and radio here.

The reports said the U-boat was sunk by its German crew in Trondheim Fjord and the crews from Norwegian waters U-boats were so badly shaken up by their crews that they had to return to port. At Stavanger, the reports said, several crews refused to obey orders to put to sea. Several death sentences were said to have been imposed on the mutineers.

Irate Neighbor Wrecks Boy's Model Plane

To teach a boy a hobby and watch him work at it, develop it and learn to love it is a pleasant sight to behold. Besides being a means of educating the boy, it helps to keep him occupied and off the streets in his playtime. Proper adoption may take the form of collecting birds' eggs, stamps, carpentry or building model aeroplanes, either one has its value and keeps a young mind busy and alert. A hobby cannot be praised too highly for his efforts and lauded for the efficiency of his work, but there are a few people in this world who have neither praise nor applause but only gruff words of reprobation and reproof.

Model plane building is the hobby of one local youngster; and he is good at it, making models of bombers, fighter planes and other modern aircraft, and he likes it, spends all his spare time in his workshop and has his own downwell-founded pride in his achievements. Of late, however, he has suffered an exceptionally profitless; and model he wished to display it to his friends to demonstrate his perfect prowess.

Landed Next Door

The model was released and took to the air with steady even grace, and was held for the length of its flight until spent it landed in the yard of a nearby neighbor. This was not a baseball inadvertently, but with a panel of window glass, it wasn't a maliciously thrown stone which had caused the damage. It was a powerful, heavy weight model aeroplane unable to stop its flight before its full-blown brothers are at the present moment winging upon Germany and Italy and yet, the irate neighbor demanded, in scathing words, the grounded toy and displayed indications of demolishing it in a few seconds what had taken the lad hours to construct.

The pleas of the boy and his friends saved the plane from immediate destruction but with the admonition: "Keep your trash in your own yard!" the model was flung into the air by the neighbor, like all flying machines, the one that followed was unpredictable; with a roar of tearing fabric and splintering struts, the model aircraft struck a tree and was smashed beyond repair. The result and tears were forgiveable.

Blast Japanese Monsoon Quarters

New Delhi, July 31 —(CP)— RAF Bombing Command attacked Japanese Monsoon quarters on the Mayu Peninsula in the Western Burma Thursday while fighter patrols were active over the Akyab area, Arakan and Kalemyo areas, an Allied communique said.

The Blenheims scored a perfect hit on Monsoon buildings at Nparshyin.

Nineteen river boats and a steamer were damaged by Beaufighters between Pakokku and Monywa. Three enemy occupied places near Kalemyo were bombed by Mitchells and Hurricanes took four sampans in the Arakan area.

BELLEVILLE, ONT., JULY 27, 1943.

To The Electors of Hastings West:

For the first time in the history of our Province a Prime Minister who claims to be a farmer has brought on a general election in the busiest and most important season of the year. Now, when every hour counts in the harvesting of the crops and urban residents are being urged to render assistance to the farmer, Mr. Nixon through his action in bringing on an election on August 4th, withdraws from the food front, hundreds of hours and days of work of people who will have to give their time in the election instead of helping in the harvest. This, at a time when butter and meat are rationed and our Food Controller, Donald Gordon declaring: "THE PRODUCTION OF FOOD RANKS IN IMPORTANCE WITH GUNS AND TANKS AND PLANES." If it was necessary to hold an election why could it not have been delayed until after the crops were harvested, say October or November? Is this act of Mr. Nixon's to be interpreted as indicating the measure of his interest for the farmer and the food-front? However he has called the election AND WE MUST meet the challenge.

It is evident to everyone that it will be possible for a candidate in the few days remaining before election day, to contact only a small portion of the Electorate. Everyone is busy and the transportation problem is acute owing to fuel restrictions, etc. Therefore I am taking this means of respectfully soliciting your co-operation and help.

I stand shoulder to shoulder with our leader, George Drew and his progressive business-like and up-to-date 22-Point Program, the finest and most constructive Program ever submitted to the Electorate.

"We Come as Liberators"

In his broadcast to Italy General Eisenhower, commanding the Allied invasion army in Sicily, used a phrase which should strike the Italian people very powerfully, "we are coming to you as liberators." Italians have known what the sordid regime of Mussolini's Fascism has meant to them. They have seen also the mild and beneficent occupation of the Allies in Sicily.

The format uses the same thought as peace demonstrators use in Italian cities, "peace." He said, "you want peace. You can have peace. Immediately and peace under honorable conditions which our governments have already offered you."

The message goes on, "we commend the Italian people and the Italian army for ridding themselves of Mussolini, the man who involved them in the war as a tool of Hitler and brought them to the verge of disaster. The greatest obstacle which divides the Italian people from the United Nations has been removed by the Italians themselves."

They are told that "the only remaining obstacle in the road to peace is the German aggressor who is still on Italian soil. Your part is to cease immediately any assistance to German military forces in your country."

"If you do this we will rid you of the Germans and deliver you from the horrors of war."

That is the Allied pledge and then will follow as said by the Allied commander, "Your men will return to their normal life and to the productive employment and provided all British and Allied prisoners now in your hands are restored safely to us and not taken away to Germany, the hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners captured by us in Tunisia and Sicily will return to the countless Italian homes who long for them."

It is a broadcast worthy of a great democratic commander representing the united free nations.

War Correspondents Praised

Prime Minister Churchill in the midst of his long opening speech on the developments in Italy and the fall of Mussolini mentioned the character of the accounts of war correspondents reporting war operations. He said:

"Very complete, vivid and excellent accounts are appearing in newspapers of all operations. An immense army of correspondents move with the troops and carry their cameras into the heat of fighting. An immense volume of material of the deepest interest and of a very high level of quality and accuracy flows into public press from hour to hour. And there is very little which I could add to this except, of course, to set matters in proportion and my colleagues and I endorse them and to place the proper emphasis, or what I conceive with our fallible judgment to be the proper emphasis, upon the various facts and factors."

These are words of true praise by one who knows the value of the written word and himself an old newspaper correspondent. They stress the accuracy and quality of the large amount of war correspondence sent by the alert newsmen and cameramen at the front day in and day out and to point the courage and fidelity and honor of these men in the service they are rendering.

Prime Minister King recently praised the adequate and correct news coverage of the events of the war.

Those who read the stories of the war correspondents will feel as these national leaders feel how inspiring is the work of these representatives of the press.

Planting by the Moon

With interest shown by more than usual in gardening this year, the "Victory Garden" effort, attention is drawn to an old belief concerning planting by the moon and the New York Herald Tribune wonders how many of these gardeners planted their rows in accordance with an old theory mentioned in Sir James Frazer's "Golden Bough" in which this appears: "The principle generally followed is that whatever is done to increase anything should be done while the moon is waxing; whatever is done to diminish anything should be done while the moon is waning."

The Herald Tribune wants to know if such a simple law which is easily followed "be only moonshine," and remarks that "anyway, hard-headed farmers who never read the "Golden Bough" have been following the moon method of planting for years, with a further extension of the principle so that whatever ripens below the ground — potatoes and other root crops — is planted when the moon is waning; while above-the-ground vegetables, like peas, beans and corn, are started off in their leafy career when the moon is waning.

Now that so many gardens are in full swing of sun, moon and hoe handles, it might be well to gather reports from moon gardeners.

"Let the Weather Bureau talk snobbishly, if it will, of myths and superstitions. There are many... Washington meteorologists, we feel certain, who never planted a pea or dug a hill of potatoes, and who know more about the golf greens of Chevy Chase than they do about the spinach and broccoli of Marland gardens. Old sayings, especially those dealing with the soil — and where they have dwelt so much longer than he has in laboratories — should not be kicked around too carelessly by scientists.

"There is active moon which can look around it when the heavens are bare and affect tides and turn milk, might reasonably enough have a hand in the proceedings of a string bean or a turnip."

Salt is Helping

(Wall Street Journal)

America at war is spending tremendous quantities of salt to meet expanding needs of its industries, its workers, its fighting men and its food producers.

The familiar table salt for seasoning food accounts for about 20 percent of the output of an industry that in 1941 produced close to 25½ billion pounds of salt at approximately 33½ million dollars. Last year output was stepped up to more than 27 billion pounds, including rock and evaporated salt and salt in brine.

In order to make this vast quantity—more than one-third of the world's total salt production—83 different plants of 63 companies are at work in 13 states and in Puerto Rico.

One striking new way of marketing salt is through the tiny salt tablets which are disposed with drinking water to industrial workers and to the nation's fighting men.

Twins Rise Together

Explosio of two bomber, pilots the twin sons of Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Singer of Gisborne, New Zealand, are watched with enthusiasm by the home folk. Recently Flight-Sergeant A. M. Singer and Flight-Sergeant P. L. Singer were promoted to the rank of pilot-officer. Both joined the Royal Air Force in 1941 and went to Britain where they were attached to Bomber squadrons. Lately they have been captains of Lancaster bombers and have shared in some of the most notable raids on Germany, Italy and France.

A Thousand Generals

(Chicago Daily News)

The War Department announced the other day that there are now more than a thousand general officers on its Army list. The month of March in World War 1 was 522, and then we had an army of 3,665,000. The exact number of generals now is not given, because it is feared our enemies might deduce therefrom the size of our Army.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CROW

The crow appears a mighty bird
And very smart, 'tis said,
Whie undisturbed he views the herd
From tree tops overhead.

While no one challenges his might
He rules the country scene,
The biggest feathered thing in sight
And selfish, sly and mean.

When six or seven crows convene
They set their sentries out
To signal when men are seen
Their enemies about.

But should a gallant kingbird small
Come wheeling into sight,
They beat it for the forest tall
And will not stay to fight.

The kingbird drives them as he wills
Until fatigued they fall,
For crows are mostly beaks and quills,
And have no heart at all.

Principle Before Party

(Ottawa Journal)

An odd sidelight on the provincial election and on journalism—was thrown by St. Catharines, where the Standard, a Conservative newspaper, is supporting the Liberal candidate for Lincoln.

The origin of this situation goes back two years. At that time, and after a vigorous campaign, the Conservatives got itself a sporta arena which was hailed as a great thing for the city's youth. But, according to the Standard, the arena at once "became grasping interests . . . planted a beverage room at the very back door of the Garden Centre St. Catharines youth was to disport itself."

The representative of St. Catharines in the legislature was Mr. Archie Haines, a Liberal and popular lower of Mr. Hepburn. Mr. Haines protested against giving a beer license to this place to the door of the arena, and when the government refused to pay attention he made his own position very clear by resigning his seat, inviting Mr. Hepburn to contest a local opinion through a by-election at which he, Haines, would be a candidate.

Result: St. Catharines Standard fought the beverage room to the limit of its power, and praised the action of Mr. Haines. Liberals, led by Haines, pledged itself to support Mr. Haines if he sought re-election.

Mr. Hepburn refused to call a by-election in Lincoln, and the seat remained vacant during the remainder of the Legislature's life. Now, in the forthcoming election, Mr. Haines is the official Liberal candidate, and although the Progressive Conservatives have a man in the field, the Standard is making good its pledge. It says it has "no use for the politics of the Hitler group represented by Mr. Hepburn" for Haines it's for him all the way.

It is the course one would have expected of a newspaper that the Standard's honorable traditions.

Italian Collapse Believed in Sight

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

An abnormal and significant degree of official reticence still covered Friday the fate of the two surface British War Cabinet huddles in London during the day; but close observers could see small doubt that the break which could in Italy and in the Balkans close at hand.

American and Canadian troops are storming the main central segment of the Axis defenses in Sicily. They are well beyond capturing Enna and Leonforte within reach of a break-through that would crumple up the whole Enna position. The railroads from Catania to the north coast is imminent as did bombers have unrelentlessly key junctions behind it like Enna, Randazzo, Regalbuto and Adrano in perfected application of the Allied theory of the tactical function of aviation in support of ground-moving troops.

Mars Outdone: Threat.

Meanwhile, however, a more ominous threat of events to come on the Italian mainland was in the making registered. Long-range bombers from Malta and even from the North Mediterranean were concentrating on Axis and installations around the whole Italian boot south of Naples. They had all-night attacks in addition and only sporadic anti-aircraft fire as the Italians had turned out field after field to report and to say. Grounded enemy planes were reported burned.

This lack of vigorous organized resistance to Allied bombing also implies that Nazi air power already has been withdrawn from the Southern Italy and that Italian pilots alone are left to oppose the little stomach to keep up the fight. Reconnaissance planes have been The apparent stepping-up of the Allied air attack on the mainland must be regarded as the first major belt reinforcement of the doomed Mussolini regime. It is the logical prelude to Allied invasion of the Italian mainland, with the preliminary softening up of bursting air bombs and shrieking sirens. Should the Italian people fails to heed the surrender ultimatum, the invasion of Allied troops and people by Gen. Eisenhower.

Some Elements.

Some elements of the Italian mainland army have already quit cold at the sight of the Allied Legion of Sicily. Other parts of the army are reported infected with Nazi forces above or on the Po River line to fight to the last man. Hitler is fatally setting up an extemporized force to stem the tide already shattered coastal barriers in Sicily are on the Italian mainland boot. Still another element, which is said to have revolted against orders to fight, is the Fascist militia. Mussolini's creatures and blackshirts are reported to be in open revolution of flat.

Even in these symptoms of immediate Italian collapse are present the beloved, hopeful factors from view in even pro-Axis capitals of Europe like Madrid that the end for Italy is in sight, is coming not one or days at most; and that the shaky Badoglio regime in Rome dare not long delay surrender approaches if it sought re-election, or fall itself.

Even in the crisis for Badoglio, President Roosevelt made it known that he will have no truck with anyone who makes the surrender so long as it is not a Fascist official.

The Italian people, and the European neutrals with prompt backing from Washington, feel that this would frown on any granting of refuge within the borders of Mussolini or any other Fascist "criminal" seeking to escape from "just deserts." That raises a question as to the whereabouts of Count Dace and his accomplice Pascist leaders for trial might not be found in Italian territory.

If and when surrender comes, however, there is small doubt that it is Gen. Eisenhower, acting under instructions from Washington that will dictate the armistice terms.

Battleline Jottings

With the Canadians in central Sicily, July 30—(Delayed)—(Canadian Press Cable)—Battleline jottings from a war correspondent's notebook:—

Capt. Jack Leach of Kingston, Ont., is an artillery observer with the Perth Regiment, the Princess Patricia' Canadian Light Infantry. He has an intense dislike of snipers. So he had with him was his pistol. He left his artillery jeep to see if he could have blown them to bits.

Leach was at the outskirts of a town when machine-guns blazed down the street. He whipped out his pistol, "then he got closer and realized that the machine-gunner there was coming from three big tanks at a corner. He couldn't do anything about it, so he came back to get the guns up. . . But by that time the tanks had disappeared.

According to this story, Pound thought Fascism an ideal avenue for a spread of the Douglas monetary theories, hence moved to Rome where he forgot all about social credit and became a Fascist.

No Beans Today

The dead in Britain this week of Lord Wedgewood reminded this reporter of possibly the finest example of moral courage he has ever seen. It was that Sunday afternoon, back in September of 1939, when British declared war against Germany.

Lord Wedgewood then was a member of the House of Commons. After the formal declaration of war had been made by Prime Minister Chamberlain the air raid signal sounded out on the streets and throughout Westminster. The members of the House from the press gallery trooped down to an improvised parliamentary shelter. It happened that Lord Wedgewood, a man of deep convictions who never feared to express them. He calmly announced that he was not going to shelter. No bombs would fall on London for months. Then he added:

"I have been to only one air raid shelter in Ontario waters and while it is called a black snake, it is very much alive. It is about the length of close to six feet and while it will put up a fight and it has teeth, it can do no great harm to any person. It is not poisonous, it has no fangs. It feeds entirely on frogs and small fish and is not dangerous to man and diver.

The best specimen of this species of snake we have seen in the Bay of Quinte has been caught in Prince Edward in Hay Bay. Bay of Quinte. Several of its relatives were over five feet in length and are to be caught in the marsh district.

"TOBY" DIES

Said to be one of the few Seal-ham dogs in Belleville, "Toby" died at his home, 34 Bridge Street, and owned by Arthur W. Rowland, is believed to have passed on to the dogdom's reward. After being seen in the lake's waters for about 13 years in the 200 year of 13 years, the terrier died on Thursday.

Toby's birthplace was never known by its owner, but he came to Mr. Rowland about 13 years ago and refused to leave. It is thought he was first in Belleville by a tourist. Neighbors, attracted by the terrier's appearance, had tried to adopt it but it always "Toby" found his way back to the Rowland home.

UNPARDONABLE SIN

The phrase "unpardonable sin" does not occur in the Bible.

It is nevertheless a phrase given to the sin against the Holy Ghost, because Jesus referred to it as the sin which is incapable of no forgiveness.

In Matthew 12 it is recorded that the Pharisees accused Jesus of casting out devils by the prince of devils instead of by the spirit of God. "All manner of sin and blasphemy," answered Jesus, "shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. Whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world—neither in the world to come." Similar passages occur in Mark and Luke.

Theologians differ as to the exact nature of the unpardonable sin and the subject is an abstruse one indeed. The general effect of the passages referred to indicates that the sin against the Holy Ghost consists of assigning his works to Satan or of denying the work of pure works.

Nevertheless interpret the words "blasphemy against the Holy Ghost" in their most literal sense and define the unpardonable sin as the utterance of an insult against the divine Spirit itself. Others define sin against the Holy Ghost is held to mean final impenitence and persistance in "mortal sin" until death. A sin unto eternal death, as places in this class all sins committed in the world which especially those directly opposed to charity and outright malice, supposed the characteristic qualities of the Holy Ghost.

There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it," says the author of 1 John, and some suppose that Hebrews 6:4,5 and 6 refers to a sin of apostasy that a person must go through to commit that sin, that is, become enlightened and partake of the Holy Ghost and then fall away.

A few commentators go so far as to state that "the great transgression" mentioned in Psalms 19:13 refers to the same offense, but generally speaking the wisest and knowingly doing what is known as wrong, is held to be sin in the sight of God.

HEALTH CHATS

DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health.

Staphylococcus Cause Of Most Eye Infections In Infants

There is no question but that almost everywhere called staphylococcus germ is the host waiting to attack when conditions are favorable.

In the opinion of Dr. James H. Allen of Iowa, probably the most common inflammation of the eyes in babies is caused by these staphylococcus germs. In fact, about one-half of all the eye inflammations in newborn babies is caused by this germ.

The infection may start at any time after the birth of the baby, and may begin suddenly. There is swelling of the eyelids and a discharge of a yellowish material from the eyes. The lining membrane of the eyeball becomes red and inflamed. Ulcers sometimes clears up within about seven to ten days.

A chronic infection of the eye caused by the staphylococcus germ may also occur in grown-ups. This condition apparently lasts over a period of several months or years. From time to time, it clears up but then starts in again at a later date.

When the infection is present, the patient has red and congested eyes. His eyesight is blurred, he has a scratching sensation in the eyes, and they burn and water. There is a crust on the edge of the eyelids. Crusts and scabs form along the lid edges and sties may also be present. If the infection is severe, the lids become swollen and similar to the eyeball because they become thickened. Sometimes the skin around the eyes also becomes inflamed and reddened.

Now and then these persons also have ache, or ulcerations of the hair roots on the face. In practically all cases, the cornea, or front part of the eyeball also is involved by the infection. This may cause the formation of scar tissue on the cornea, which interferes with the eyesight.

When the disorder has lasted for a long period of time, there may be no symptoms. However, the edges of the eyelids are red and scaly and there is a discharge from the eyes which is particularly noticeable in the morning. Furthermore, the patient is known to use his eyes over a long period of time without their becoming painful.

Various types of treatment are used for this condition. The drug which has been most effective in the treatment is one of the sulfonamide preparations known as sulfathiazole. It can only may be given by month, but also may be applied directly to the eye. An ointment containing sulfathiazole is often used. Now and then the disorder may be treated by giving staphylococcus bacterin, toxoid or vaccine. The staphylococcus antitoxin is given when the infection is severe. However, the effects are only temporary. If the infection causes a great deal of inflammation, staphylococcus toxoid may be used to advantage.

Picnic Hints—Summer time is picnic time and with so many people holidaying at home this year family picnics are more popular than ever. "A picnic basket is really a glorified lunch box", says Marion Harlow of Nutrition Services, "and some thought should be given to its contents so the meal will supply the foods necessary for one day's supply of essential foods". . . Three "musts" for a well-planned picnic basket, says Miss Harlow, are a fresh fruit or vegetable, preferably both; some form of protein food, such as meat, fish, eggs, cheese or baked beans, and milk in some form for the children.

Comparative Prices — From a Saskatchewan resident, by way of her diary, comes a comparison of prices in vogue in the First and the present World War. On Aug. 26, 1918, eggs cost 56 cents a dozen and butter 60 cents a pound. . . or cloth for soldiers' uniforms.

Brown sugar retailed for 26 cents in two-pound lots, and white sugar costs 21 for seven pounds. Lard was 40 cents a pound and cheese also 40 cents a pound, while bacon cost 70 cents a pound and pork 30 cents.

Salmon Run—Provided there is a good run of salmon, housewives this year will have a bumper supply available than in 1942, when the entire output went to England. Salmon prices will be lower, and maximum prices have been set for the canned variety, of which, it is hoped, there will be a quantity for domestic consumption.

During the afternoon, the couple received many beautiful gifts, including a silver tray, which was presented by the Mrs. Patrick, president of the Guild. In her address, Mrs. Patman made mention of Mr. Redner's work which Mrs. Redner honorary president of the Guild, had done for the Mission, and spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Redner are regarded by their many friends. Mrs. Ellis poured tea and a dainty lunch was served by Misses Jennie Redner, Joan Moore and Jean Price. The afternoon's enjoyable gathering was concluded by the cutting of the wedding cake by Mr. and Mrs. Redner. In the evening, there was a family dinner party at which approximately twenty-five guests. Dancing was enjoyed on the lawn, illuminated with colored lights. Refreshments were served; and Mrs. Robert Redner poured tea.

Mr. Redner, Mr. Redner was a pioneer sailor railroad man. Both he and his wife, the former Mary Carbutt, were born within a half mile of Belleville. They attended the same school and were married at the age of twenty eight.

Capt. Redner had commenced his career on the Great Lakes at the age of fifteen, and in this he spent five years. For eight years following his marriage, he worked on the railroad and in 1901 returned to the lakes. In 1915 he took up railroading as yardmaster and followed through until his superannuation in 1936. They have one son and one daughter, Robert Lockwood and Jennie Kathleen. The captain still enjoys fishing and for a number of years he has taken an interest in the schooner, "D. Freeman", from the time the world is made of green cheese. "Agree with him", observes Mrs. Redner, "in giving advice for wedded happiness.

In Manhattan— Tremendous Success Predicted For Film "This Is the Army"

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, July 31 — (CP) — A movie that will be financially, as it is artistically, one of the most successful ever made, is predicted in New York this week. It is called "This is the Army".

Little more than a year ago Irving Berlin's stage show with the same name opened on broadway. It was an enormous success. Berlin directed it, wrote all its songs—and most of them are hits—and himself starred and even sang in it.

The stage show, whose cast was exclusively made up of United States Army—and not an officer was included—earned some $10,000 for the United States army emergency fund.

Expected to Earn Millions

Now Warner Brothers have produced the movie, with the help of Berlin and the soldiers. Warner Brothers are not making a dime out of it. The Army emergency fund is expected to get something between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 from theatre boxoffices.

And the movie is terrific. Millions who have not yet heard Irving Berlin sing his "God Bless America" and "I'm the morning", that vintage number from the First Great War, will see him in this picture. Berlin has a crackly little barytone voice, not pure and lovely, but a Bing Crosby couldn't put over his songs. Nor Berlin starts out with his soldier troupe for the battle fronts. One section goes to Alaska, a second across the Atlantic they are transported to Africa and Britain.

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES IN ONTARIO

24 FARMERS, 30 PROFESSIONALS, 36 BUSINESS AND LABOUR MEN

From all aspects the list of 90 Progressive Conservative candidates is truly remarkable and outstanding.

That nearly one half of them have worn or are wearing the King's uniform may well be a record unsurpassed in the history of political campaigns. In the following list, however, we have them classified as farmers, business and labour or professional men.

Farmers	24
Business and labour	36
Professions	30
	90

Not less remarkable is the balanced representation of all ranks of society and human effort.

Analysis of the candidates' careers justifies this extraordinary observation: If the Progressive Conservative Party makes a wholesale clean sweep of the election, winning every seat in the Legislature, every aspect of Ontario life would be well and truly represented.

Each of the candidates has made a success of his own life and work.

George Drew, Leader of the Party, states that never before in the history of Ontario has such an outstanding group offered themselves for public service.

Chicago Cubs Move Into Thick Of Contention for First Division Honors in National League

Have Excellent Chance of Beating Three Teams for Second Place

WIN 21 OUT OF 30

By TED MEIER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Virtually unnoticed, Chicago Cubs have moved into the thick of contention for first division honors in the National League and today have an excellent chance of beating out Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and Cincinnati for second place.

The Bruins have won 21 of their last 30 games and jumped from last to fifth place, only 2 1-2 games out of the first division.

They beat Brooklyn for the third straight time yesterday, 12-3, as Hi Bithorn chalked up his 13th victory of the season and outfielder Lou Novikoff took over the major leagues leadership in runs batted in with 80, dominic Richardson added his 15th round-tripper in the third for what proved to be the winning run.

The first place Cardinals dropped an 11-inning game to the Phillies, 3-2, when pinchhitter Jimmy Wasdell singled home Buster Adams. Big Mort Cooper suffered his sixth defeat. He won 15.

In the American League new York Yankees made it three out of four and 21 victories in their last 31 games by beating Cleveland, 5-4. Although belted for two homers by Red Heath, Ernie Bonham pitched only six hits in winning his 10th of the campaign.

Longest Streak

Early Wynn slopped a three-game Washington Senators streak by hurling a five-hitter against Chicago White Sox for his 9th win, 5-1, while Phil Siebert singled home Johnny Welaj in the 11th inning to give Philadelphia Athletics a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Browns. Bobo Newsom started for the Browns, but was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Elmer Riddle hung up his 14th win in pitching Cincinnati to a three-hit 2-0 shutout over Boston Braves in the first game of a twin bill, but Red Barrett duplicated his performance in the nightcap for a 3-0 Boston triumph and a split.

New York Giants blanked over Chicago in the second inning seven runs in the first and added five against the Pirates in the nightcap to win, 6-1, while Ilgo Abbett

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO: 128

By SAM GORDON
The Milliner

A bridge player living near Mercer will raise you with nothing or worse. Report any day to beat his pals partner. Then him riding there in a hearse, sir.

A raise is an increase in the number of the last partnership contract. Thus a raise shows and promises one additional trick.

You have this hand:

♠A J 7 4 3
♥K Q 5 2
♦A K 5
♣A 6

Your hand contains six tricks: Two aces, a king, a queen, and two short cards in clubs. You also have the other needed values for an opening bid of one spade.

An opening bid of one shows and contains five tricks. So, your hand contains one trick not yet consumed by your opening. With that, you may raise once in the later rounds of bidding.

Suppose your partner responds with an assist to two spades. That is a jump bid. Your partner, being forced to bid, you may pass unless you have something new to show.

All bids follow the order of preference in T-A-N-S; takeout, skillet, no-trump. With no takeout suit, you look for an assist. In that case, it is an assist of an assisted suit.

Your second round bid in this spot is three spades. To assist in that suit, it was necessary to raise the last partner's contract. You thus consumed another trick.

In this manner, your partner learns you have six tricks; five tricks shown and consumed in your opening bid of one and another trick shown and consumed by one raise.

That's how partners tell each other the exact number of tricks they have. There is no guesswork to it. It is like counting on your fingers and toes and hips, if you have any.

You can tell your partner much with very few bids. But you should tell him only what you have. Some persons talk too much.

LESSON NO. 131

A rule is no fool. It does not pat too much faith in luck for its success. It is a rule because it works more often than not. That's why rules are so lucky.

One rule of bridge is: Each raise shows one trick not previously consumed. A player should not raise the last partnership contract unless he has an unmixed trick.

You have this hand:

♠A Q 9 5
♥T 3 2
♦A J 9 3 3
♣K 7

With two biddable suits of the same length, first bid the higher ranking suit. With two biddable suits of different lengths, first bid the longer.

Your opening bid with that hand is one diamond. An opening bid of one consumes five tricks. You have six tricks: Two aces, a king, a queen, a short cart in hearts and a short card in clubs.

Thus, you have one trick not yet consumed in your bidding. In any later round of bidding, you may show that trick with a raise in your partnership contract.

Suppose your partner responds with a bid of one no-trump. that is not a forcing bid. You are permitted to pass after such a bid. And you should pass unless you have something new to show.

Thus, you have something new to show: another biddable suit and a trick that has not yet been used up. So your second round bid in this spot is two spades.

Two spades over one no-trump is a raise of one. It shows that you have another trick. From which your partner learns you have a total of six tricks.

You bid diamonds before spades. That way you have at least five diamonds and four spades. From which your partner also learns that you have no more than four cards in both hearts and clubs.

Some players must trust too much to luck.

AT THE McCARTHY

Ann Miller, Rochester and Martin in five Jamboree. Ann Miller's tip-top dancing, Freddy Martin's sweet and low-down music and Rochester's uproarious fun all combine to make Columbia's "What's Buzzin' Cousin?", opening next at the McCarthy.

appeal of the favorite musical celebrities of the show world—including the orchestras of Freddy Martin, Count Basie, and Ray McKinley.

Then you know why everybody's talking about the supersmell kind of entertainment to be found in Republic's newest screen success, "Hit Parade of 1943" which opens Sunday midnight at the Capitol Theatre where it will stay for a three day run.

Directed by Albert S. Rogell under the supervision of associate producer Albert J. Cohen, the film more than fulfills expectations in every way. For "parade" is the odd word to describe the succession of sparkling song hits and eye-filling dance numbers.

In addition to those players already mentioned, importantly cast are Melville Cooper and Mary Treen.

The orchestras of Freddy Martin, Count Basie, and Ray McKinley play in the diglossive, hot-driving way for which each has become famous. Outstanding specialties are contributed by Chinita, renowned Latin-American dancer; the popular dance team of Pops and Louie; and such favorite songsters of the airwaves as the Golden Gate Quartette, the Three Cheers, and The Music Maids.

"Glass Key"

The kind of supercharged suspense and spattement that made Dashiel I Hammett's "Thin Man" and "Maltese Falcon" the hits they were, are said to be packed into his newest thriller, Paramount's "The Glass Key" which opens at the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight at the added thriller with Brian Donlevy, Veronica Lake and Alan Ladd co-starred.

The story has to do with shady politics, a high-powered, three-cornered romance and a baffling murder. Donlevy, politico boss, is engaged to Veronica who pretends to love him so that he will back her father in the mayoralty race. She really loves Ladd, Donlevy's right-hand-man. When Veronica's brother is murdered and Donlevy is accused, things pop fast and furiously.

Others in the film are Bonita Granville, Richard Denning, Joseph Calleia and William Bendix.

AT THE BELLE

"EDGE OF DARKNESS"

"Edge of Darkness" starring Errol Flynn and Ann Sheridan, adapted to the screen from the William Woods novel of the same name, which is scheduled to open at the Belle Theatre today, is the story of a little Norwegian town's unyielding defiance of Nazi domination.

The production was directed by Lewis Milestone, the man who brought to the screen the greatest story of World War I, "All Quiet On the Western Front". Milestone decisively believes that in "Edge of Darkness" he has the first truly great film story of the new World War.

An Outstanding Cast.

Given a powerful story of a masterly director, Warner Bros. set out to match it with an outstanding cast. Selecting Errol Flynn, Ann Sheridan and Walter Huston from Hollywood, Warner Bros. closed on Broadway for the best available talent. The result was a galaxy of New York names rarely seen together in one production. These include Judith Anderson, Ruth Gordon, Charles Dingle, Tonio Selwart, Roman Bohnen, Art Smith, Morris Carnovsky, Helena Thimig, Torben Meyer, Vyvyan Fadden and Francis Pierlot. To them, Warner Bros. added brilliant young Nancy Coleman, seen recently in "Kings Row" and "The Constant Nymph," Helmut Dantine, lately in "Casablanca", John Beal, Monte Blue, Virginia Christine and Dorothy Tree.

Milestone has stated, in this production, at a story that will typify the invincible determination of the "little man" all over the world to live in decency, self-respect and freedom.

The Canadian Paramount News and a Merrie Melodie Cartoon "Rabbit and the Beanstalk" precede the feature attraction.

Continuous shows will be presented today and Monday.

"The Human Comedy" Outstanding.

Fay Bainter, at the peak of her career as a result of her performance in "The War Against Mrs. Hadley" plays one of the leading characters in William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy" coming after Midnight to the Belle Theatre for one performance only with a cast of many of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's top-flight players.

Miss Bainter appears as Mrs. Macauley, mother of a typical American family, around which the story revolves. It is the contention of the Messenger with persons in all walks of life that paints the dramatic moral that all people, rich or poor, are inherently good and honest.

Miss Bainter, named the nation's first Block Mother, recently completed a leading role in "Journey for Margaret."

"The Human Comedy" was brought to the screen by William Saroyan. Based on William Saroyan's book, it has Mickey Rooney, Frank Morgan, James Craig, Marsha Hunt and many other well-known players in its large cast.

A new and popular community sing and a colorful cartoon will also be exhibited.

"What's Buzzin' Cousin?"

The advance reports on "What's Buzzin' Cousin?" — the Columbia musical which is coming to the McCarthy theatre next, are enthusiastic, as to form and substance of them being that "What's Buzzin' Cousin?" is the sort of merriest, maddest, swingiest musicals to come from the Hollywood studios this season. To top it all, it actually has a story, and a very one. What with good music, singing, dancing, comedy and a swell cast tossed restfully into a revolving mixer, this new production sounds like a screen fans paradise.

In looking over the cast we don't even need advance reports. We know what to except. There's Ann Miller, playing the feminine lead. You know Ann, that spirited lass who takes you breath away with those whirlwind tap dance routines. A mighty clever little actress she is too, what with her just about the prettiest and perfect bit of femininity out Hollywood way.

Need we tell anybody about Rochester? One word from him in that gravel-like voice and with that droll expression, and the fun is on Freddy Martin and His Orchestra go to town on a whole series of new songs which sound like his parace material. And since every story must have a romance Juvenile lead where can you find better than John Hubbard?

Miss Miller is an heiress in this new production...an heiress who inherits a ghost town. In company with three girl friends, Leslie Brooks, Jeff Donnell and Carol Hughes, who have helped her pay off the debt on the property she inherited, Ann goes to claim the land. The girls are particularly interested in running the Palace Hotel, which is part of the inheritance. When they get to the town they are thrown into despair at the desolate sight. The long deserted Palace Hotel, however, has a few guests. Freddy Martin and his orchestra, along with that handy man Rochester have run out of gas while driving through the town and were forced to seek shelter over night in the ghost trap.

After the flood of bitter feminine tears, the hotel is put into shape by Jeff, who plays the singer in the band, stay over to try to revive the town. They do, but means of a "gold fish" started when Rochester finds a nugget in his victory garden. Everybody's happy and business thrives. There's music and dancing and fun every night. Of course, a few complications ensue when it is discovered that the nugget is not gold but common fool's ore, but you'll see—everything ends just dandy.

ALLIES THRUST DEEPER INTO GERMAN FLANKS

Enemy at Catania Faces Threat of Being Trapped or Retreat to Messina

NEW AIR BLOWS

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, July 31 (AP)—Canadian and United States troops have driven deeper into the central and right flanks of the Germans' wavering Mount Etna line, Allied headquarters announced, as the Nazis strove desperately to repair the breach.

A communique said the Canadian 1st Division had "advanced farther against strong opposition," and that the U.S. 7th Army front from the north coast inland to captured Nicosia was "advanced in several places."

Advance 30 Miles in Two Days

The American assault had driven the Germans back about 30 miles in two days and threatened to trap the Nazis around Catania or force a general retreat toward Messina. The 7th Army was advancing beyond the strategic prize of Nicosia and exploiting the breakthrough made in temporary Nazi positions.

Canadians who captured Agira to the southeast, central pivot of the Mount Etna line, were menacing Regalbuto, six miles to the east, and facing another bitter struggle.

Allied air fleets in shattering new blows by day and night pounded the Axis reinforcement ports of Messina and Milazzo in Sicily, routed a convoy, and blasted airfields near Naples and Rome, it was announced today.

Destroyer Set Afire

R.A.F. Beaufighters attacking a convoy off the Italian coast left a merchant ship sinking, and a destroyer and motor torpedo boat on fire.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Wellingtons left huge fires blazing at airfields at Capodichino and Monte Corvino Racella, near Naples

American heavy fighters smashed airdrome installations at Viterbo, 50 miles northeast of Rome, meeting light anti-aircraft fire, U.S. medium bombers hit the airdrome at Aviano near Naples.

The air war reached new peaks of fury as the Sicilian campaign entered its final stages.

Unrest Mounts In Sofia, Panic Is Reported

New York, July 30 (CP)—The BBC reported that unrest is mounting in Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, where "the reinforced Gestapo no longer has the situation under control." The broadcast, recorded here by CBS, said demonstrating crowds had beaten the leader of the Bulgarian Fascist movement.

The Bulgarian parliament was the scene of a violent debate last night, the broadcast said, with deputies attacking the "dictatorial policy" of the Philoff regime and demanding peace.

It continued:

"Sofia is at a state of panic, and a revolution is expected from day to day . . .Sofia streets are filled with a feverish crowd and slogans are pasted on all walls, exhorting Bulgarians to follow Italy's example."

U.S. Navy Blimp Recently Lost After Unique Fight

Washington, July 30 —(AP)— A United States Navy blimp was lost at sea recently, the Navy Department reported today, after being damaged in an extraordinary fight with a surfaced enemy submarine. It was the first American airship ever reported so destroyed.

Only one man of the crew, which ordinarily numbers seven enlisted men and four officer-pilots, was lost.

What eventually happened to the submarine the Navy did not say, although if American craft were close enough to rescue the men from the airship they probably were close enough to attack the submarine.

DON'T BANKRUPT ONTARIO!

Clarion Call from the Premier to the Electors:

ON Wednesday, August 4th, you are given the opportunity of deciding at the Polls which of the three Parties now appealing for your support is to have control of the Provincial Government.

Since the dissolution of the Legislature on June 30th, I have travelled the Province from east to west and north to south. From my intimate contacts with thousands of our people, I am convinced beyond doubt that the Liberal Government will be sustained.

At the same time I feel it my bounden duty to sound a note of warning to the electors, and it is for this reason I am addressing this letter to you.

The decision that will be made on Wednesday next, August 4th, may be fraught with more serious consequences than any similar verdict made by the electors of this Province for half a century or more.

The platform so suddenly broadcast one evening recently by the Leader of the Conservatives contains 22 planks; that published by the C.C.F. Organization has 15 planks. These two programs have apparently so much in common that the respective leaders are still quarrelling as to who is the owner and who is the thief. I will make no attempt to referee that fight, but I have no hesitation in saying that they have in common certain proposals which if ever enacted into legislation would not merely jeopardize the magnificent financial and social structure so efficiently built up in Ontario during the present decade, but would inevitably bring despair, ruin and utter bankruptcy to this Province.

I fully realize that I am characterizing these proposals in strong words, but I make no apology for using them. This language is fully justified.

Just to mention one of Col. Drew's proposals, viz., that in which he promises the removal of educational taxes on real estate by "at least 50%" without making the slightest provision for the $20,000,000 or more thus made necessary. Was there ever such an utterly fantastic piece of bunkum placed before the electors of any democratic body! It can truly be characterized as "a rabbit from a hat". At least $100,000,000 would be required to finance the whole list of bribes spread by Col. Drew before the electors; and it is difficult to believe that Col. Drew could be so inconsistent after having himself introduced a resolution in the Legislature two years ago, to reduce Provincial expenditures by $25,000,000.

It is in no sense an extravagant statement to say that Colonel Drew's entire program, if enacted, would bankrupt the Province of Ontario.

And this at a time when we, both as individuals and as a government, are under solemn obligation to refrain from increasing taxation and from diverting any money from the supreme object of winning the war! Every spare dollar must go into Victory Bonds, or War Savings Certificates.

More threatening, if possible, than even the Drew proposals are some of the schemes outlined by the C.C.F. organization. The fifteen points covered in the present document, vicious and dangerous as are some of these proposed experiments, have carefully omitted a few of the wildest ventures being sponsored by the parent C.C.F. body.

If their language means anything it must involve the national ownership of all farms, mines, fisheries and factories of this country. I find it hard to believe that the solid, thoughtful people of Ontario are prepared to hand over the ownership and management of our great heritage into the hands of a group of men wholly without experience in public affairs and led by a 33-year-old lawyer, who has never been in Parliament. Yet this is part of the decision to be made at the polls on Wednesday next.

The record of the Government during the past nine years has been placed before you in straightforward, unmistakable terms, and neither of our opponents has seen fit to challenge that record at any point. During these nine years not a suggestion of scandal has been heard. The social legislation has been sane and progressive. The financial administration has called forth the admiration of every governing body in the Dominion of Canada. We are proud of the record and we appeal with confidence for a renewal of the trust you have placed in our hands.

I appeal to the common sense of the Ontario people to weigh very carefully the consequences of placing power in the hands of parties who are prepared to lead the Province into extravagant and adventurous experiments, especially, I repeat, at a time when every effort and every dollar should be devoted to the cause for which we are fighting.

On this very serious occasion therefore my pledge to the electors is that if this Government is returned to power on August 4th, we will continue as in the past to give sane, sound and progressive administration.

Yours faithfully,

Harry C. Nixon

Picton and District

H.&P.E. Reg't Now in Action Oldest Rural Reg't in Canada

Picton, July 31—Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, now officially reported as being in action in Sicily, has a long rural settlement in Canada and claims many "firsts" among its records. It is also distinguished by the fact that it is the oldest Militia (Rifle) Battalion in the First Brigade in the First Canadian Division. The regiment was one of the first non-permanent units to be called for active service in the present war, and went overseas in December, 1939, as it did in 1914, as part of the First Canadian Division.

Frontier Tree Generals

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is also distinguished by the fact that in this war it is provided two Generals to the Canadian active overseas, the Commanding Officer in 1940, Lieut.-Col. H. L. W. Salmon, M.C., was promoted to Brigadier, to command the 1st Canadian Division, the same rank he had attained in England in April 1942, Lt.-Col. Stewart L. Wood, Second-in-Command, who succeeded him as C.O., and who was promoted to second-in-command, was named Commanding Officer and is now promoted to the rank of Brigadier, commanding the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Made Up from Rural Areas

This famous Eastern Ontario unit is thought of by the Regiment as the unit that Lord (Maja) Alistair Tweedsmuir, one of the Governors-General of Canada (John Buchan) and Lady Tweedsmuir, has been second-in-command of the regiment for some time.

The 49th Centre unit also claims more "firsts". It was one of the first Canadian units to proceed to France in May 1941 just before the commencement of Major-General Salmon was then in command, having taken over from Lieut.-Col. Sherman Young, M.D., Picton, who resigned to remain here and accompanied it overseas, and since invalided home as a result of the effects of gassing in the First Great War.

On its return to England from France, the unit was attacked by a heat stroke epidemic, resulting from this unit brought it down, the first unit to be so attacked in the unit, a British paper stated. This unit was the first unit in one of the members of the regiment being awarded the British Empire Medal in the last King's Birthday honour list. Warrant Officer Arthur Storms of Picton, was the last Canadian to leave France at that time, having volunteered to remain behind with a British unit to demolish supplies that could not be evacuated.

This week, word was received by his wife in Trenton, that Lieut.-Col. Bruce Sutcliffe had been killed in action in Sicily. He succeeded Lieutenant-Colonel Salmon as Commanding Officer of the regiment.

Received From Enemy

Though recruited chiefly from the farms of the Bay of Quinte district, Prince Edward County, the ward Regiment spent three and a-half years in Britain, training faithfully and efficiently and showing a remarkable aptitude for military knowledge and life, until toward the end, when it was one of Canada's crack regiments of the line.

The unit is a United Empire Loyalist district, and many members of the regiment are descendants of the pioneers who remained loyal to the British Crown. As far as being the oldest rural unit in Canada, it points with pride to municipal units which are preserved here and which date back to 1792, when under Governor Simcoe, the militia training in what is now Picton, Prince Edward, Lennox, Addington and other relatives here.

Flamethrowers Thrown Into Munda Battle

Allied Headquarters, the South-west Pacific, July 31—AP)—Tanks and flamethrowers were buried into the battle for Munda yesterday to burn the Japanese out of their coconut log and coconut tree bunkers down their pillboxes.

Behind these armored wedges Allied troops crushed forward a few yards more. Amount of gain gained was not announced.

It was the first reported use of flamethrowers in the month-old fight for the enemy's important Central Solomons airbase. The old tanks had been attempted before but the coral and terrain stopped them.

While the armored units were blazing ahead southeast of Munda, other Allied troops closed in on the airdrome battered back a Japanese counter-attacks.

Navy fighters and divebombers, covered by fighters, struck heavily at coastal positions near the airdrome, where the Japanese still cling to beachhead.

Strong formations of bombers pounded enemy transport ships around Bairoko harbor 10 miles west of Munda.

New evidence of the growing Allied aerial strength was disclosed in today's communique. Heavy bombers, escorted by powerful forces of fighters, attacked Buka Island airdrome in the northern Solomons, causing huge fires.

The crippling attack against Japanese shipping continued. At least 11 barges attempting to run troops and supplies into Kolombangara were destroyed and many others damaged or destroyed.

Sharp fighting continued in the area between Mubo and Salamaua, New Guinea, but its progress was not detailed.

A verdict of accidental death was returned Friday evening by a coroner's jury at the inquest looking into the death of Mr. Damon McGrath of Summerhaven, and Mrs. Grace Cranston, St. Charles St., Belleville, who died in Belleville General Hospital as injuries sustained when their auto crashed into a cement culvert on No. 2 highway, July 24th.

NOT A PLEASANT SUMMER

Gananoque, July 31 —(CP)— What a hot, sweaty man, what next? —That's what Paul Ewing, Jr., of Gananoque, is asking. Confined to eight-year-old Kingston jail, summering here, he has had quite a summer. After being in a hospital with being stung seriously by a nest of hornets who resented his fishing, having been rescued from drowning and run into by a car, at present he is being treated for a severe case of poison ivy.

USEFUL INVENTION

The safety match came into use about the middle of the 19th century.

German Prisoners So Stunned By Canadian Artillery Barrage At Agira That They Could Not Speak

By ROSS MUNRO
(C.P. War Correspondent)

On the Canadian Front in Sicily, July 30 (delayed)—Through the mountain peak town of Agira fell to the Canadians at 3:15 p.m. today and crack German troops retreated in confusion after expending by Canadian artillery, infantry and tanks.

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry entered the town at about noon and mopped up pockets of resistance. Street fighting in the Seaforth Highlanders had carried the Canadian advance to the fringe of the town in heavy fighting during the night and early morning.

Agira fell to the Canadian troops was announced 44 Allied bombers in North Africa yesterday night.

The Loyal Edmontons were also in this action preceding the Pats entry into Agira. Hundreds of Germans were withdrawing in disorder. Formations of the Nazi crack 15th Panzer division had been ordered to resist to the last man and last tank to cover their retreat.

But the artillery barrages were too much for infantry and tank thrusts too tenacious.

Agira Key Point

Agira folded up. Batches of German prisoners who had arrived in the town during the night and mornings of Sunday and Monday, were dazed by the concentrated fire from the Canadian artillery.

More than 300 prisoners were taken in this action. Hundreds of enemy dead were also counted. Many of the Germans were stunned by the concentrated fire of rough fighting for the hills and could not speak a word. They were in a slight valley and capture of the important mountain peak town of Agira is inevitable now. Last night's fighting for Agira was one of the most bitter street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the Canadian sector.

The Canadians were given close support by Allied fighter-bomber bombers and fighter-bombers made several heavy attacks on the withdrawing enemy columns and on their localities around Agira.

In addition work of the Canadian artillery has been magnificent. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Seaforth Highlanders could not have asked for better support.

Climax of 2 Days' Reach Fighting

The Canadians reached the climax of rough fighting for the hills and road just after 10 a.m. today in a slight valley and capture of the important mountain peak town of Agira is inevitable now. Last night's fighting for Agira was one of the most bitter street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the Canadian sector.

Climax of 2 Days' Reach Fighting

The climax of 2 days' reach fighting of rough fighting for the hills and road just after 10 a.m. today in a slight valley and capture of the important mountain peak town of Agira is inevitable now. Last night's fighting for Agira was one of the most bitter street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the Canadian sector.

The terrifying artillery concentration was the work of the Germans. They could not stand it. Prisoners taken were so stunned they could not speak a word. Some came over to our lines by themselves. Others were found in slit trenches dazed and bewildered.

German Army Blasted in Piece.

The whole German army was literally blasted to pieces. The strength of our artillery here is enormous and Canadian gunners are taking full advantage of this.

The Canadians, Canada Infantry Regiments, the P.P.C.L.I. leading here on the main road, supported also by tanks, followed the barrages as it lifted from hill to hill and from ridge to ridge. The Pats stormed hills that had halted the Canadians for three days and then they were in the town. Then the Seaforths went through to advance to within a mile of Agira. Tanks were in action, destroying pillboxes and machine gun nests as they went. Engineers bombed. Everything the Canadians had available poured lead into the enemy—artillery, guns, tanks, machine guns.

It was great after each difficult fighting for three days to break through. The Germans threw back mortar bombs to cover their retreat. One officer began at 8 last night (Monday) when all our guns warmed up with a, 15-minute concentration on German positions outside this town.

Barrage Slowly Creeps On.

Then it lifted for 100 yards and held down enemy reinforcing load. Slowly it crept on with thunderous crashes that probably could be heard in Catania, 30 miles away.

Dust to dust this midnight every sunset.

Gore Bay Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding

Gore Bay, July 31 —(CP)— What a fine young man, what next! —That's what Paul Ewing, Jr., of Gananoque, is asking. Confined to eight-year-old Kingston jail, summering here, he has had quite a summer. Hour of Grace

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER 24

"I don't think they'll be going in tonight. She brought him home drunk again. But you never hear a sound. She doesn't quarrel with him or throw things as Helen would. . . . Her throwing the window. . . She had her dinner alone and the candles were lighted and the table changed for a dinner dress. Is that what you call carrying on?"

Meagan said it is impossible for Sue to throw things as it would be for you to bleach your hair."

Erica did not answer, for she was turning the car into the driveway. An instant later she gave the brakes her whole strength to avoid collision with another car that had been parked, lightless, in the driveway.

"Toby's car. . . Toby's car. . . Another car . . . Toby . . ."

Simultaneously they saw Toby in the windows of the lighted house, seeing Toby standing there. Though Helen was not visible, it was obvious that it was to her Toby was speaking.

Erica said, "I didn't know he was coming tonight." and her voice usually low, was tense and a little breathless.

Meagan pushed down the car handle.

"Give him my love", she tried to say lightly.

"What's you come in?"

"No. I must go directly over to Mrs. Van Nostrick."

They got out, together. Meagan standing for a few moments on the lawn while Erica hurried into the house. Standing in the semi-darkness and looking into the lighted house, she saw Erica enter the living room and with a quick, graceful gesture of her hand touch her windblown hair. Then she looked at Toby and smiled; there was all the tenderness in the world in her face. . . Toby stood still, his back to the door, looking down at the well cut blue coat. He did not smile or look at her. He looked at her coat in a grateful, apologetic way.

Up Charles Street she thought. What did it matter as long as there were tolerance and kindness and forgiveness and gratitude and humility? Once upon a time, Helen would have looked scornfully at Toby and walked out. To some it would matter still, to some who would continue to live with a dead past. This changing world.

. . . Let it be changed, she thought, if there will be no more bars, no sharp lines of division drawn, no one side of the railroad track better than the other. Where men fight for their beliefs, there are no sharp lines of division drawn. They are equals and fighting for the same things.

But she began to distrust Toby's gratitude and humility as she remembered the lines and pressed her fingers to the bell of Sue's house.

She did not wait. One never had to wait for Sue who loathed tardiness in any form. Sue, wearing a fresh tailored dress, opened the door. Since her dinner alone, Meagan thought, she had changed her dress.

"Hello, Meagan. Come in".

Meagan went in. "I know I'm late. But I'm going to be brief for things to-night."

"It's all right, dear, because we're not going to the club tonight. I tried to get you on the 'phone to tell you but there was no answer at your house. Van's father is quite bad again and the children and I are driving in in a few minutes".

Sue was saying Van, . . . She was leaving him asleep and alone with his father. . . . It was not true that Van's father had taken a turn for the worse. . . . That was her excuse. . . . And yet there was nothing in Sue's round, proud face or in her unusually superfluous manner to indicate the momentous decision she had made tonight.

Meagan said, "I hope it's . . . it's not too serious".

"It is rather, I'm afraid. I've packed the children's things and I've got to get them up. But I can manage. They'll go to sleep in the car".

"Is there anything I can do, Sue?"

"No. No. I'll attend to everything".

"I'm sorry. I'm terribly sorry".

Meagan walked to the door with an aching feeling. Why didn't they cry? Why didn't she go any of the things a woman does when her marriage has failed and she is leaving? But Sue did not. She was defending Van with her attitude. She loved him enough to defend him and in the end to win. No matter how torn she was inside or the tears she was crying inside she would tell no one. She would tell no one that she tried to make her widowed perfect because she had been certain that the children of Clare would wane if there were nothing for which to approach her. That . . . that was Sue, Meagan thought. Sue who by her determination for perfection hoped Van's son, Peter . . . and not Clare. That was Sue and all of the things that made her what she was. What was Clare and the things that made her what she was?

Standing by the door wanting to go and yet reluctant to go Meagan said, "I'm so sorry. I hope it won't mean that you won't be coming back for the rest of the summer".

She smiled, probably does. There's little much left of the summer anyway".

There was nothing she could do or say, Meagan thought. She said good-night and walked down the path to the road, seeing Sue go upstairs, where the sleeping children and dress them with efficient hands while their little bodies were still limp from sleep. They would be well and warmly dressed when she brought them downstairs and carried them out to the car. Then she would go in, bring out the baggage and arrange it neatly in the trunk. She would drive away from the perfect house and the perfect life in which no one was ever unwelcomed. And in the morning Van would awaken in an empty silent house and find a note written by hand that had not lost its neatness.

It was terrible to see a marriage fail. Somehow it was almost worse than when someone you have known for a long time died. For while death is inevitable, the failure of a marriage need not be. And while death is silence, the failure of a marriage lives to speak of its own destruction in shoddy terms. Death is the end but the failure of a marriage is that has failed flourish with seeds of disillusionment.

Erica said hoarsely, "Last night Itself seemed oppressive and the cost and exertion on her arm burdensome. When she reached the house and went in, she saw the note her mother had written before leaving for the club. Her mother had gone out for the evening leaving half a dozen lights needlessly burning in the house.

She went to her room and closed the door. Poor Sue, she thought! Now! It could no longer be postponed and it was a privilege she would take. To cry . . . She almost ran to the bed and fell upon it and covered her head with a pillow . . . as if it would solve everything to have anger and disappointment and pity and love as tears on her bed.

Meagan and her mother were at breakfast when Toby came down the following morning. It was a hot August morning when the sun seemed to penetrate every dark corner and to blister even the water of the Bay. . . . But from the dining room windows that looked mainly upon the shabby woodland Meagan had seen the year's first yellow leaves. She was looking out the window, her eyes seeming to see at a great distance, her throat rising brown and lovely from the cotton sports dress when Toby came down and took his place at the table.

Instantly Elinor McLean brightened. . . . Instantly she commenced things about her mother, Meagan thought. . . . Toby kissed her appearance in the morning. She looked as she always did in a suit with a dress with her white oxfords as white as ever shoes can be and her hair as neat as a pin. She was accustomed wave and with a sweet unselfishness that was as well as closely associated with her in Meagan's mind as the fact that she was her mother.

"Good morning, dear", Elinor McLean said. "Will you have cereal or an egg"

Toby shook lessaingly, "Can I have both?"

"Of course, dear. But you never want very much for breakfast".

"I'll have both. What I have wanted and what I want now are two different things. Who wishes the privilege of fixing my breakfast?"

Meagan said, 'I'll do it, Toby. I've finished with Mother hasn't. I'm sure you've eaten scarcely nothing, dear. You'll never gain any weight that way".

"Don't say that", Toby said, "She thinks I'm fat. I'm not. Meagan's weight is all in the right places, aren't you, Meagan? Stand up for me". He read and laughed. "He's flatter. He's thinner. Women can be like the way you pooh eggs. They never look healthy together for me. I don't know why it is. I ask my friends how they cook various things and they do exactly what I do and still men never turn out right. You must have to have a knack for it. With flowers it's different. I've always had success with flowers".

Meagan went to the kitchen hearing Elinor's closed door and Toby's good humored voice following it by her mother's laughter. Rolling up her sleeves she set to flour Elinor McLean as to have her son taste her cooking. Nothing beam a day so long as she was to begin it with Toby in good spirits, a hungry Toby appreciative of food. She might hear bad news of her friends later in the day or get poor hands or bridges or ruin the roast but if she had begun her day with Toby hungry and happy then nothing could dim her brightness. And nothing could ever dim the love for the child of a child being punished for a fault. It was most comfortable that for Toby to be silent or sharp and cross with her, or nothing to eat.

Later when Toby was eating she looked at him and her mother and the flowers in the silver bowl in the centre of the table and she had a sense that she had a genius' shabbiness. And she wished she could stop thinking of Sue and wondering where she was this morning and whether she could feel in a country far from the island and the water that she had loved to play in. . . . She wished she could stop thinking of Sue and Van and calling up stories and Van awakening alone in the perfect house would be perfection. . . . Such a house she would soon leave. . . . And Clare and Payne Whitney and Peter and Sue's father and Van's father and Helen's daughter Mary Ann and Herman had lived there and it had been a beautiful and charming home. . . . She wished she could stop thinking that unduly unpredictable things precipitated Toby's hunger, his appetite and his coming down in time to have breakfast with his mother and her.

Didn't it occur to her mother that Toby was happy, hungry and on fine when he was about to ask for money or carry out his schemes or announce an already accomplished trip? Her hands, picking up the second cup of coffee, were a little tremulous. They would finish his breakfast, declare it excellent, light a cigarette . . . and tell them. Thus it had always been. She waited, wondering and anxious, curbed her haughtiness. It would not shock her. This morning it was as if it were out of her capable of shock. She thought, it might be pleasant but we've all become such unpleasant, suspicious people this summer; I don't dare hope for good news.

She held her breath when Toby lighted a cigarette. He looked at her then, his eyes quickening and he looked at his mother and heard his throat.

"I have some news . . . I—I don't quite know how to begin".

Elinor McLean said, "Tell me you're in love".

"Trouble? Who said anything about trouble?" He leaned forward, laughed, put a hand on the hand of his mother. Reassured, he was happy. Whatever it was, death is inevitable, the failure of a marriage need not be. And while death is silence, the failure of a marriage lives to speak of its own destruction in shoddy terms. Death is the end but the failure of a marriage that has failed flourish with seeds of disillusionment.

Erica said hoarsely, "Last night Itself seemed oppressive and the cost and exertion on her arm burdensome. When she reached the house and went in, she saw the note her mother had written before leaving for the club. Her mother had gone out for the evening leaving half a dozen lights needlessly burning in the house.

She went to her room and closed the door. Poor Sue, she thought! Now! It could no longer be postponed and it was a privilege she would take. To cry . . . She almost ran to the bed and fell upon it and covered her head with a pillow . . . as if it would solve everything to have anger and disappointment and pity and love as tears on her bed.

Meagan and her mother were at breakfast when Toby came down the following morning. It was a hot August morning when the sun seemed to penetrate every dark corner and to blister even the water of the Bay. . . . But from the dining room windows that looked mainly upon the shabby woodland Meagan had seen the year's first yellow leaves. She was looking out the window, her eyes seeming to see at a great distance, her throat rising brown and lovely from the cotton sports dress when Toby came down and took his place at the table.

Meagan knew that that would be the first thing her mother would tell her friends about Toby's fiancee. Also she knew that in her mother's mind Roy looked exactly like Thomas Kilbey.

Toby smiled. Then he said, "She's of Scotch ancestry, her parents are dead and she's everything I'm not and I'm crazy about her. She's going to get a job in the defence plant where her brother is. . . . I couldn't stand that and that's what I expected".

"And you're happy, darling, really happy?"

He looked at her, a long sober look. "Sure I'm happy. I proposed to her. She's going to marry me".

"It's so romantic and nothing romantic has happened to us for such a long time. A wedding! I'm glad, Toby. . . . I feel it wonderful, Meagan?"

"It is wonderful, Mother."

"I won't cry, Toby. You'll be back in the navy but we'll be in the same city together. Have you talked about your future? I am by adore weddings, you know. Will it be elaborate or . . ."

"No. A small affair. We didn't talk about it much but we did decide to be married . . . Soon".

"And the date?" Meagan asked.

"I wanted it to be next week but she said she needed a little time. The new clothes, maybe. . . . We decided on the last Saturday in August. Is another month time? I am the bland church".

"Oh, splendid!" his mother said. "We always wanted you and Meagan to be married at the bland church".

The Conquest of the Germ

By PROFESSOR I. J. WITTE
(BSC Press Service)

I wonder how many come into your mind when you hear the word, germ. Now, it's true that good is a very important weapon in the conquest of the germ, but I think the whole story. One is to keep germs away by good hygiene, pure water, pasteurized milk and so forth. We teach that coughs and sneezes spread diseases, and we segregate women like Typhoid Mary, who gave typhoid fever to all the families she cooked for. The most important example of that in our present day inoculation against diphtheria. If we give the tod-dler a minute dose or two of the poison of the diphtheria germs, they learn to digest it and are much less likely to have a bad attack of diphtheria when they begin to mix with other children. These three methods—hygiene, segregation and inoculation—are purely defensive and we all know how much defence we have to put up. We're concerning the germ, today by actually killing it when it's inside the body. That's a pretty tall order, so kill the germ without hurting the patient.

* * *

As often happens the big fellows were the first to give in. These were germs or little animals cause in the main, tropical diseases like malaria. In the past few years mankind had learned to cure malaria before the discovery of the malaria parasite or germ. The natives of Peru and Bolivia had discovered that the bark of the cinchona tree was good for malaria, and when the Spaniards conquered Peru, the Jesuits brought the quinine powder to Europe; and, in the fullness of time, we learned that it is the quinine in the cinchona bark which kills the malaria germ without hurting the patient. And so the thing could be done. But how to do it again for other diseases?

* * *

That was the discovery of the great scientist Ehrlich. Ehrlich was a German Jew. All his life he was fascinated by the action of coloured dyes. Why on earth could take up one dye very strongly and not another. And he hoped that out it should be possible to discover something which would be a poison and a special affinity for the germ and not for the host. Or he first thought of the seaweed which concentrates in its substance iodine which is present in infinitesimal dilution in the sea. And he hoped that it would be possible to make drugs which could be given to the patient which would concentrate in the blood stream as the iodine concentrates in the seaweed which would be so diluted that they would not hurt the patient. Ehrlich's discovery, tested in lethal strength in the substance of the germ. Ehrlich himself had never been in a white. The end of his life, in 1910, he discovered that salvarsan, which can contains arsenic in such a form that it is concentrated in the germ without damaging the patient. Salvarsan was important enough in itself, because it cures the various and a number of other diseases. But more than that, Salvarsan marks an epoch, an epoch-making discovery. It was a germ plane to fly. Arsenic, antimony bismuth, mercury, iodine are all poisons in the same way, and a great number of other substances discovered, particularly for tropical diseases. The power of the little animals was shattered and mankind entered into possession of the first of the three kingdoms.

But oddly enough these drugs which killed the little animals or protozoa wouldn't work against the bacteria and the viruses. The bacteria refused to be stained by the dyes. They refused to concentrate the poisons in their little systems. So the whole discovery of the remaining two kingdoms of germs was postponed until the study of diseases of temperate climates. A great deal of research was needed on medical scientists. Up till 1935 it was almost an article of faith that you could kill the smaller kinds of germs with drugs without getting spread diseases, and we segregate women like Typhoid Mary, who gave typhoid fever to all the families she cooked for. The most important example of that in our present day inoculation against diphtheria. Everyone nowadays has heard about vitamins, but the folly of underconsumption of drugs in the world is equally grievous. Effective drugs are costly. And to put it bluntly, the great mass of mankind cannot afford essential drugs. So there are two urgent needs. Increased production of known drugs. Increased exploitation of new techniques for discovery of new drugs. Mr. Wells has urged us to face up to our inheritance and our ever-growing knowledge. I suggest that three of us who live in the heart of the Empire should face up to our responsibilities. I've tried to make it clear what medical progress has achieved, and what great hopes we have of the discovery of It's very important that the ordinary citizen should know these things. When the war against the germ is won, how are we going to switch men and materials on to the war against the germ? That's the problem I'd like you to discuss.
